Colorado Solons Demand Return Of Vast Areas of Federal Land

DENVER (UPI)— Colorado state senators cast aside party differences Wednesday to ask President Johnson and Congress to return vast areas of federally-owned lands to Colorado.

Sen. Frank L. (Ted) Gill, R-Hillrose, was the chief sponsor of two land proposals. Both were in the form of memorials to Congress and both had many co-sponsors.

The memorials will be considered by the Senate today.

The first proposal memorialized congress and Johnson to take action to transfer ownership of land purchased by the federal government under the Bankhead-Jones Act of 1937 to Colorado and other states for use for education purposes.

The memorial said the land constituted a great portion of the surface of many states. In Colorado, Gill said, the land areas covers about 625,000 acres in Weld, Baca, Prowers and Otero counties alone.

Limited use of the land by the federal government, Gill said, constituted an economic waste in the "fact that only a small part of the potential revenues from these lands is being collected."

"The failure of these lands to return proper revenues results in an irreparable loss to the people," the memorial said. It also said it was a burden to the federal government from the standpoint of administrative costs.

The lands, Gill said, could

Philadelphia Is Facing New Transport Strike

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The contract talks between the Transport Workers Union and the Philadelphia Transportation Co. were said by union officials Wednesday to be "in hopeless deadlock."

In consequence, the city, which two years ago experienced a three-week crippling, transit strike, braced itself for another walkout. The TWU has set a strike deadline at a minute past midnight Thursday. Unless there is a down-to-the-wire agreement, 5,300 PTC employes will walk out.

The union's statement came after another futile effort by city and state mediators to get an offer on wages and fringe benefits in a new contract. The PTC was steadfast in its denial of any pay increases.

A PTC spokesman reaffirmed the management's position that increases in wages, pensions or insurance are "uncalled for and would require an undesirable fare increase." The company has said that higher fares would result in business losses.

The union seeks wage increase of 47 cents an hour, an

Dr. Schweitzer Observes His 90th Birthday

By ANDREW BOROWIEC

LAMBARENE, Gabon (AP) — Dr. Albert Schweitzer's famous jungle hospital was thronged today as the man often called the world's greatest living missionary celebrated his 90th birthday.

Hundreds of well-wishers were still en route to the outpost three miles from Lambarene where Schweitzer has spent much of his life treating the sick of French Equatorial Africa.

The throng included black men, entire villages of grateful tribesmen, and white men, some 200 Europeans and a few Americans from outside Africa. They came by plane, river boat and on foot.

Schweitzer, who has helped more than 60,000 persons at the hospital he founded 40 years ago and won a Nobel peace prize, is stooped and burdened with age.

But the old man with the bushy white hair and the drooping mustache still had his familiar twinkle as he told visitors:

"I assure you I feel wonderful. I am grateful you could come."

A living legend because of his humanitarian work, Dr. Schweitzer is also one of the controversial figures of Africa. Despite criticism from some Africans, he has refused to change either his methods or the crowded corrugated iron shacks that serve as his hospital.

"He treats our people like savages instead of bringing progress," a Gabonese official said recently.

Springs Man Convicted in Murder Case

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI) — Daniel Romo, 29, Colorado Springs, Colo., was convicted Wednesday of first-degree murder for driving a car over his bicycle-riding cousin and injuring him fatally.

Romo was found guilty in the non-jury Superior Court trial of killing Jesus Romo, 27, San Diego. Witnesses testified that the defendant ordered them to stand aside so he could drive over the victim again after he had been knocked to the pavement Aug. 11.

Romo died in a hospital of head injuries 10 days later. Testimony disclosed the two had quarreled over a woman.

Judge Gerald C. Thomas will pronounce sentence Feb. 3. Romo faces life in prison or death in the San Quentin prison gas chamber.

Snooper Devices Being Probed by Congressman

By HARRY KELLY

"The Snooper. World's only private listening device. Aim it at a group of friends a block away and pick up every word."

Giving the imagination a nudge, it added, "Just think of the ways you can use this."

The sale price was less than $20.

Another "amazing little device" being offered to the public can be placed against any wall, according to its hucksters, and "you can detect the faintest of voices and sounds in the next room — good for knowing what the kids are doing without their realizing it."

Data about these electronic eaves-droppers and —similar devices are in the files of Rep. Cornelius Gallagher's Government Operations subcommittee, which is investigating invasion of privacy and intends to open hearings late this month or early February. The New Jersey Democrat's group is one of at least five congressional committees probing various facets of the situation.

The hearings will concentrate on how far Uncle Sam has stepped across the thin line of a man's privacy.

At the congressman's request the General Services Administration is conducting a survey of private contractors to learn

Completely Automated Supermarket Predicted

By ROGER LANE

NEW YORK (AP) — Imagine, housewives, shopping for your groceries in a supermarket without clerks, without market baskets and with all the products behind glass.

And with an electronic device to add up the bill and record charges in place of the usual checkout counter.

It's coming in perhaps five to 10 years the experts say. Forerunners already have appeared in France and Sweden.

"Of course, the ultimate step may be elimination of all supermarkets," said Herbert R. Brinberg, who as market research director of American Can Co. studies such possibilities.

"I mean it very seriously. If people become accustomed to buying without touching, there's no reason they couldn't get used to ordering by video telephone two or three times a week."

Brinberg sees an automated supermarket as working like this:

Products are arrayed in customary groupings — preserves, breakfast foods, and the like — behind a transparent partition dotted with key slots.

Choosing her brand of coffee, the shopper inserts the key into the slot in the partition, turns and withdraws it. Then she moves on to the soups, detergents and so on.

At the conclusion of her aisle-touring, she inserts the key into an electronic scanner, charge-reckoning and clearing device hooked into a computer that starts things moving in a warehousing zone of the store.

The arrangement presupposes

Raymond Klei, 1131 W. Colorado Ave., sustained a laceration on the back of his head and on his chin. Eight stitches were required to close the wound on his head, police said.

Michael Moralas, 21, 1232 W. Colorado Ave., suffered a laceration on the right cheek, and refused medical attention, police said.

U.S. Fighter-Bombers Pound Cong Supply Lines

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. fighter-bombers have been smashing at Communist supply and reinforcement lines running through Laos for at least a month, government sources said today.

Wednesday's strike — which cost the United States two Air Force jets — bore down on Route 7, key segment of a road and trail network feeding both the Red Pathet Lao in Central Laos and the Communist guerrillas in South Viet Nam.

American authorities refused to say anything publicly beyond the terse announcement that an F100 Supersabre and an F105 Thunderchief were shot down in Central Laos by ground fire.

Both pilots were recsued, first Capt. Albert C. Vollmer of Denton, Kan., and Henrietta, N.Y., then Capt. Charles L. Ferguson of Clovis, N.M., and Parma, Idaho. Ferguson, piloting the F100, first was listed as missing, but early Thursday the Defense Department said he had been recovered and was all right.

LBJ Asks $3.38 Billion For More Foreign Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson asked Congress today for $3.38 billion in foreign aid to promote the defense and economic strength of free countries.

Johnson's proposal—$1.17 billion in arms aid and $2.21 billion in economic assistance during the coming fiscal year—was the lowest such presidential request since the beginning of massive foreign aid under the Marshall Plan after World War II.

In a special message to Congress outlining the 1965-66 aid program, Johnson said more than a half-billion dollars will be used for weapons and economic help to counter Communist guerrillas in Viet Nam and Laos.

"Indeed, $500 million may not be enough," the President said.

He said he would ask an additional open-end "standby authorization," for use if he decides later that more money is needed "to protect our interests there" against the Reds' "frontal attack."

The presidential message left undecided some touchy matters that are likely to come up in Congress as it begins work on the bills to set ceilings for, and name the amounts of, the aid programs for the coming year.

The message did not say whether further aid will be going to Egypt and Indonesia, whose presidents have publicly scorned U.S. assistance.

Murder a Day Not Philadelphia 'Crime Wave'

By LEE LINDER

"No," says Philadelphia Police Commissioner Howard Leary. "The current pattern is typical for this time of year."

"Yes," says Councilman Edward McNulty, who is demanding more policemen patroling beats on foot. He said people are afraid to walk the streets at night. In some neighborhoods, they're afraid even in daytime.

"No," says City Managing Director Fred T. Corleto. "Every major city in the nation has experienced an increase in crime over the past decade — and it's lower in Philadelphia than in New York, Chicago, Los Angeles and Detroit."

Corleto said the public outcry has been loud over the number of homicides in Philadelphia since mid-December — 29 killings. Seven occurred in a 36-hour period Dec. 31-Jan. 1.

"The facts show that every one of the 10 largest cities in the nation has experienced similar increases," said Corleto.

Leary said his statistics show that violent crimes in Philadelphia "annually increase from a period beginning about Thanksgiving and ending several weeks into the new year."

There were 188 homicides in Philadelphia last year, 43 per cent more than the 116 in 1963. Of the 188, Leary said, police solved 180 and "we have made arrests in eight of the 11 committed this year.

Police Chief Is Alarmed by Vigilantes

As head of a 27,000-member force, he is faced with an increase of crimes against women.

As the crimes are reported, vigilante groups have popped up to guard single apartment buildings, housing developments and whole neighborhoods.

Murphy said in a speech Wednesday night that he believes such activity is a police responsibility that he does not intend to hand over or share with any group "no matter how well intentioned."

"The civilian, lacking the legal and tactical training given police," he said, "lacking arms and the knowledge of how and where to use them, is in a tenuous and hazardous position.

"Should they constitute themselves as self-appointed peace officers, they must realize they have no true police power and that they themselves will be subject to police action for any illegal act."

Sukarno Asks Plebiscite Of Disputed Borneo Area

By ANTOINE YARED

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — President Sukarno called today for a new investigation by an African-Asian commission or by the United Nations of whether the people of North Borneo want to remain in Malaysia.

Sukarno said he would abide by the decision of either group and added, "Am I not peaceful?"

"I am for a peaceful solution of the Malaysia issue," Sukarno told newsmen, "but let us investigate the real feelings of the people of North Kalimantan."

North Kalimantan is the name the Indonesians apply to Malaysia's North Borneo states of Sabah and Sarawak.

Asked if he would agree to a second investigation by a United Nations mission in Sabah and Sarawak although Indonesia has withdrawn from the U.N., Sukarno replied:

"Yes, I am calling on (Malaysian prime minister) Tunku Abdul Rahman to come back. I shall abide by any decision of an Afro-Asian study commission. I will (also) abide by any decision of a United Nations commission."

A U.N. team conducted a survey in August and September of 1963 to ascertain whether Sabah and Sarawak wanted to join Malaysia. The result was positive, but Indonesia rejected it with the contention that it was held under the threat of British bayonets.

Sukarno had said previously that the Malaysia dispute could be solved by a plebiscite in Sabah and Sarawak. He also accepted Philippine President Diosdado Macapagal's proposal that an African-Asian conciliatory commission seek a solution of the dispute.

Malaysia also agreed to the proposed African-Asian commission but demanded that Indonesia first withdraw its guerrillas from Malaysian Borneo. This Sukarno refused to do.

Meanwhile, combat-ready Gukha troops from Hong Kong landed in Malaysian Borneo today and began moving toward the Indonesian border, where Indonesian troops have been reported massing.

'Weak Voice of Science' Should Speak, CC Told

The weak voice of science should contribute its ideas with more volume in the complex society of America today, Dr. Eugene I. Rabinowitch, editor of "The Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists," said here Wednesday night.

Dr. Rabinowitch was speaking at the third annual Colorado College Symposium, this one "The New Science."

"Because of the scientific revolution," Dr. Rabinowitch said, "This influence of science and scientists needs to be strengthened. What science inflicts on mankind only science can cure. The 'Spirit of Science,' respect for facts, readiness for change, openness to criticism, humility in the face of the immense, unknown universe, is needed to deal with the problems of the scientific age.

"Ultimately, nations should develop new types of leaders — not scientists, but men with understanding for the problems, methods and possibilities of science. This will require integration of science into the education for citizenship and political leadership.

"The effect of the scientific revolution is even greater in international than in national affairs. Military applications of science have destroyed the rationality of war. Local limited conflicts, like that in Indo-China can go on for a while but these are last convulsions of an obsolete institution. They do, however, still threaten the world with escalation into a nuclear catastrophy.

"Also, unequal relations between races is made impossible by the technological revolution. Science has a tradition of world-wide cooperation. It is the first enterprise of mankind as a whole. This spirit of international cooperation is of major significance for mankind, rent apart by national, ideological and racial conflicts, yet cooped together in a shrinking planet and faced with common chal-

U.S. Air Attache Shadowed by Polish Police

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — The U.S. air attache who was ousted from Warsaw on Wednesday had been followed by the Polish secret police for months and had even been roughed up, his father said Wednesday night.

George F. Carey Sr. said his son, who had been at the Warsaw Embassy for 2½ years, was not hurt when the police assaulted him.

"This boy of ours takes care of himself," said Carey, a retired Boston policeman.

The senior Carey said the surveillance had been stepped up recently although there had been no more attacks.

He said the charges that his son was spying were ficticious. "Since when do our embassy personnel do espionage," Carey said.

He added that he was glad his son was returning home, but said he was sorry he was under a cloud of false accusations.

The senior Carey, who has lived in retirement here for five years, said his son had four children, one in college, two in high school and one child with him in Warsaw.

St. Francis Gets $354,436 More Federal Funds

St. Francis Hospital officials said this morning they would receive $358,436 in additional federal Hill-Burton funds to build their new hospital wing.

The funds will be matched with money raised by the hospital and spent on the new 84-bed wing.

This wing, now under construction, will cost approximately $3 million and have laboratory facilities, administrative offices and other improvements. A small portion of the latest grant will also be used for renovation of the main portion of the old building.

Last October the hospital was awarded $850,676 in Hill-Burton funds. A private drive by the hospital raised more than half a million dollars in donations from institutions and citizens.

Up to now federal funds for the new hospital wing total $1,209,110. Matched with hospital money this equals more than $2,400,000.

Diver Says He Has Found Spanish Treasure Ship

DECATUR, Ga. (AP) — A 41-year-old diver said Wednesday he has found a sunken Spanish galleon, laden with 17th century treasure, in the Bahamas.

"I don't want to say too much because of some tax problems," said diver John Klinner. "But I will say this: It could be worth $3 or $4 million. Who knows?"

An Atlanta diving expert, Charles Vezzani, has confirmed Klinner's discovery. But he estimated its worth at about $100,000.

Where is the treasure ship? Klinner's not saying.

"I don't want anybody trying to move in," he explained.

Klinner said he had left his partner, C. B. Bryson, aboard their 38-foot vessel, The Black Witch, to guard the treasure.

Klinner said he already has recovered several thousand dollars worth of gold and silver coins and bullion. He added that he had brought about 1,700 17th century Spanish coins to the surface.

Vezzani, an experienced treasure hunter, examined the coins and estimated they were worth between $35 and $75 each. One rare coin, he reported, may be worth $600.

The treasure trove has left him with a major headache: taxes.

"We can't sell anything until we get this tax thing settled," he complained. "Everybody, the State of Florida and everybody else, is trying to get in on the taxes."

Klinner made headlines in 1963 when a yacht he was aboard went down off Cuba. After spending five days in the water, he and his companions were picked up by Cubans, charged with being spies for the Central Intelligence Agency and jailed. They were released after 69 days.

Klinner said he was on a treasure hunt at the time.

A native of Decatur, he was in Georgia on a business trip.

Snooper Devices Being Probed by Congressman

By HARRY KELLY

"The Snooper. World's only private listening device. Aim it at a group of friends a block away and pick up every word."

Giving the imagination a nudge, it added, "Just think of the ways you can use this."

The sale price was less than $20.

Another "amazing little device" being offered to the public can be placed against any wall, according to its hucksters, and "you can detect the faintest of voices and sounds in the next room — good for knowing what the kids are doing without their realizing it."

Data about these electronic eaves-droppers and —similar devices are in the files of Rep. Cornelius Gallagher's Government Operations subcommittee, which is investigating invasion of privacy and intends to open hearings late this month or early February. The New Jersey Democrat's group is one of at least five congressional committees probing various facets of the situation.

The hearings will concentrate on how far Uncle Sam has stepped across the thin line of a man's privacy.

At the congressman's request the General Services Administration is conducting a survey of private contractors to learn

Completely Automated Supermarket Predicted

By ROGER LANE

NEW YORK (AP) — Imagine, housewives, shopping for your groceries in a supermarket without clerks, without market baskets and with all the products behind glass.

And with an electronic device to add up the bill and record charges in place of the usual checkout counter.

It's coming in perhaps five to 10 years the experts say. Forerunners already have appeared in France and Sweden.

"Of course, the ultimate step may be elimination of all supermarkets," said Herbert R. Brinberg, who as market research director of American Can Co. studies such possibilities.

"I mean it very seriously. If people become accustomed to buying without touching, there's no reason they couldn't get used to ordering by video telephone two or three times a week."

Brinberg sees an automated supermarket as working like this:

Products are arrayed in customary groupings — preserves, breakfast foods, and the like — behind a transparent partition dotted with key slots.

Choosing her brand of coffee, the shopper inserts the key into the slot in the partition, turns and withdraws it. Then she moves on to the soups, detergents and so on.

At the conclusion of her aisle-touring, she inserts the key into an electronic scanner, charge-rechoning and clearing device hooked into a computer that starts things moving in a warehousing zone of the store.

The arrangement presupposes

Three Injured In Springs Street Fight

A street fight early Thursday morning in front of Giuseppe's Restaurant, 122 S. Cascade Ave., resulted in injuries to three persons, police reported.

George W. Renkel, 21, 2130 W. Cucharras St., suffered a laceration on the back of his head and 25 stitches were taken to close the wound at St. Francis Hospital.

Raymond Klei, 1131 W. Colorado Ave., sustained a laceration on the back of his head and on his chin. Eight stitches were required to close the wound on his head, police said.

According to statements of the injured parties and also of

Police Chief Is Alarmed by Vigilantes

As head of a 27,000-member force, he is faced with an increase of crimes against women.

As the crimes are reported, vigilante groups have popped up to guard single apartment buildings, housing developments and whole neighborhoods.

Murphy said in a speech Wednesday night that he believes such activity is a police responsibility that he does not intend to hand over or share with any group "no matter how well intentioned."

"The civilian, lacking the legal and tactical training given police," he said, "lacking arms and the knowledge of how and where to use them, is in a tenuous and hazardous position.

"Should they constitute themselves as self-appointed peace officers, they must realize they have no true police power and that they themselves will be subject to police action for any illegal act."

'Weak Voice of Science' Should Speak, CC Told

The weak voice of science should contribute its ideas with more volume in the complex society of America today, Dr. Eugene I. Rabinowitch, editor of "The Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists," said here Wednesday night.

Dr. Rabinowitch was speaking at the third annual Colorado College Symposium, this one "The New Science."

"Because of the scientific revolution," Dr. Rabinowitch said, "This influence of science and scientists needs to be strengthened. What science inflicts on mankind only science can cure. The 'Spirit of Science,' respect for facts, readiness for change, openness to criticism, humility in the face of the immense, unknown universe, is needed to deal with the problems of the scientific age.

"Ultimately, nations should develop new types of leaders — not scientists, but men with understanding for the problems, methods and possibilities of science. This will require integration of science into the education for citizenship and political leadership.

"The effect of the scientific revolution is even greater in international than in national affairs. Military applications of science have destroyed the rationality of war. Local limited conflicts, like that in Indo-China can go on for a while but these are last convulsions of an obsolete institution. They do, however, still threaten the world with escalation into a nuclear catastrophy.

"Also, unequal relations between races is made impossible by the technological revolution. Science has a tradition of world-wide cooperation. It is the first enterprise of mankind as a whole. This spirit of international cooperation is of major significance for mankind, rent apart by national, ideological and racial conflicts, yet cooped together in a shrinking planet and faced with common chal-

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. fighter-bombers have been smashing at Communist supply and reinforcement lines running through Laos for at least a month, government sources said today.

Wednesday's strike — which cost the United States two Air Force jets — bore down on Route 7, key segment of a road and trail network feeding both the Red Pathet Lao in Central Laos and the Communist guerrillas in South Viet Nam.

American authorities refused to say anything publicly beyond the terse announcement that an F100 Supersabre and an F105 Thunderchief were shot down in Central Laos by ground fire.

Both pilots were recsued, first Capt. Albert C. Vollmer of Denton, Kan., and Henrietta, N.Y., then Capt. Charles L. Ferguson of Clovis, N.M., and Parma, Idaho. Ferguson, piloting the F100, first was listed as missing, but early Thursday the Defense Department said he had been recovered and was all right.

Defense Department spokesman Arthur Sylvester declined

LBJ Asks $3.38 Billion For More Foreign Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson asked Congress today for $3.38 billion in foreign aid to promote the defense and economic strength of free countries.

Johnson's proposal—$1.17 billion in arms aid and $2.21 billion in economic assistance during the coming fiscal year—was the lowest such presidential request since the beginning of massive foreign aid under the Marshall Plan after World War II.

In a special message to Congress outlining the 1965-66 aid program, Johnson said more than a half-billion dollars will be used for weapons and economic help to counter Communist guerrillas in Viet Nam and Laos.

"Indeed, $500 million may not be enough," the President said.

He said he would ask an additional open-end "standby authorization," for use if he decides later that more money is needed "to protect our interests there" against the Reds' "frontal attack."

The presidential message left undecided some touchy matters that are likely to come up in Congress as it begins work on the bills to set ceilings for, and name the amounts of, the aid programs for the coming year.

The message did not say whether further aid will be going to Egypt and Indonesia, whose presidents have publicly scorned U.S. assistance.

Murder a Day Not Philadelphia 'Crime Wave'

By LEE LINDER

"No," says Philadelphia Police Commissioner Howard Leary. "The current pattern is typical for this time of year."

"Yes," says Councilman Edward McNulty, who is demanding more policemen patroling beats on foot. He said people are afraid to walk the streets at night. In some neighborhoods, they're afraid even in daytime.

"No," says City Managing Director Fred T. Corleto. "Every major city in the nation has experienced an increase in crime over the past decade — and it's lower in Philadelphia than in New York, Chicago, Los Angeles and Detroit."

Corleto said the public outcry has been loud over the number of homicides in Philadelphia since mid-December — 29 killings. Seven occurred in a 36-hour period Dec. 31-Jan. 1.

"The facts show that every one of the 10 largest cities in the nation has experienced similar increases," said Corleto.

Leary said his statistics show that violent crimes in Philadelphia "annually increase from a period beginning about Thanksgiving and ending several weeks into the new year."

There were 188 homicides in Philadelphia last year, 43 per cent more than the 116 in 1963. Of the 188, Leary said, police solved 180 and "we have made arrests in eight of the 11 committed this year.

Mayor James H. J. Tate said the police have been doing a good job. He places part of the responsibility for a breakdown

Sukarno Asks Plebiscite Of Disputed Borneo Area

By ANTOINE YARED

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — President Sukarno called today for a new investigation by an African-Asian commission or by the United Nations of whether the people of North Borneo want to remain in Malaysia.

Sukarno said he would abide by the decision of either group and added, "Am I not peaceful?"

"I am for a peaceful solution of the Malaysia issue," Sukarno told newsmen, "but let us investigate the real feelings of the people of North Kalimantan."

North Kalimantan is the name the Indonesians apply to Malaysia's North Borneo states of Sabah and Sarawak.

Asked if he would agree to a second investigation by a United Nations mission in Sabah and Sarawak although Indonesia has withdrawn from the U.N., Sukarno replied:

"Yes, I am calling on (Malaysian prime minister) Tunku Abdul Rahman to come back. I shall abide by any decision of an Afro-Asian study commission. I will (also) abide by any decision of a United Nations commission."

A U.N. team conducted a survey in August and September of 1963 to ascertain whether Sabah and Sarawak wanted to join Malaysia. The result was positive, but Indonesia rejected it with the contention that it was held under the threat of British bayonets.

Sukarno had said previously that the Malaysia dispute could be solved by a plebiscite in Sabah and Sarawak. He also accepted Philippine President Diosdado Macapagal's proposal that an African-Asian conciliatory commission seek a solution of the dispute.

Malaysia also agreed to the proposed African-Asian commission but demanded that Indonesia first withdraw its guerrillas from Malaysian Borneo. This Sukarno refused to do.

Meanwhile, combat-ready Gukha troops from Hong Kong landed in Malaysian Borneo today and began moving toward the Indonesian border, where Indonesian troops have been reported massing.

Atom Container Tests Reported To Be Success

St. Francis Gets $354,436 More Federal Funds

St. Francis Hospital officials said this morning they would receive $358,436 in additional federal Hill-Burton funds to build their new hospital wing.

The funds will be matched with money raised by the hospital and spent on the new 84-bed wing.

This wing, now under construction, will cost approximately $3 million and have laboratory facilities, administrative offices and other improvements. A small portion of the latest grant will also be used for renovation of the main portion of the old building.

Last October the hospital was awarded $850,676 in Hill-Burton funds. A private drive by the hospital raised more than half a million dollars in donations from institutions and citizens.

Up to now federal funds for the new hospital wing total $1,209,110. Matched with hospital money this equals more than $2,400,000.

U.S. Air Attache Shadowed by Polish Police

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — The U.S. air attache who was ousted from Warsaw on Wednesday had been followed by the Polish secret police for months and had even been roughed up, his father said Wednesday night.

George F. Carey Sr. said his son, who had been at the Warsaw Embassy for 2½ years, was not hurt when the police assaulted him.

"This boy of ours takes care of himself," said Carey, a retired Boston policeman.

The senior Carey said the surveillance had been stepped up recently although there had been no more attacks.

He said the charges that his son was spying were ficticious. "Since when do our embassy personnel do espionage," Carey said.

He added that he was glad his son was returning home, but said he was sorry he was under a cloud of false accusations.

The senior Carey, who has lived in retirement here for five years, said his son had four children, one in college, two in high school and one child with him in Warsaw.

Diver Says He Has Found Spanish Treasure Ship

DECATUR, Ga. (AP) — A 41-year-old diver said Wednesday he has found a sunken Spanish galleon, laden with 17th century treasure, in the Bahamas.

"I don't want to say too much because of some tax problems," said diver John Klinner. "But I will say this: It could be worth $3 or $4 million. Who knows?"

An Atlanta diving expert, Charles Vezzani, has confirmed Klinner's discovery. But he estimated its worth at about $100,000.

Where is the treasure ship? Klinner's not saying.

"I don't want anybody trying to move in," he explained.

Klinner said he had left his partner, C. B. Bryson, aboard their 38-foot vessel, The Black Witch, to guard the treasure.

Klinner said he already has recovered several thousand dollars worth of gold and silver coins and bullion. He added that he had brought about 1,700 17th century Spanish coins to the surface.

Vezzani, an experienced treasure hunter, examined the coins and estimated they were worth between $35 and $75 each. One rare coin, he reported, may be worth $600.

"We can't sell anything until we get this tax thing settled," he complained. "Everybody, the State of Florida and everybody else, is trying to get in on the taxes."

Klinner made headlines in 1963 when a yacht he was aboard went down off Cuba. After spending five days in the water, he and his companions were picked up by Cubans, charged with being spies for the Central Intelligence Agency and jailed. They were released after 69 days.

Klinner said he was on a treasure hunt at the time.

A native of Decatur, he was in Georgia on a business trip.

Retired General Is Reported Ill

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Retired Gen. Walter Krueger, suffering from a combination of illnesses, was listed in serious condition today at Brooke Army Medical Center.

Krueger, 83, was the colorful commander of the U.S. 6th Army against the Japanese in World War II. The late Gen. Douglas MacArthur called the German-born Krueger "the ablest Army commander of the war."

Confined to the hospital periodically the last five months, Krueger has lived in San Antonio with a daughter since he retired 18 years ago.

He has one son, Col. Walter Krueger Jr. of Philadelphia, Pa.

Krueger's Army career spanned nearly 50 years. He will be 84 on Jan. 26, a birth date he shared with Gen. MacArthur.

BOB HOPE TELLS PLANS FOR TV SHOW OF TOUR

HOLLYWOOD — Bob Hope tells me he and his troupe got into places and did things in the orient that only Lowell Thomas knows about, but he didn't make it to Hong Kong yet. They shot 123,000 feet of film which Bob's cutting to size for his TV show next Friday. Don't miss it. "I may call the whole thing 'I and the King,'" he said, "because we've got the king of Thailand and his royal band performing. He has a great thing going over there. He and his wife (Queen Sirikit — best dressed in the world), go out with the band and play benefits for college students. He plays sax, and she's on piano. I'm in love with many girls — Janis Paige, Jill St. John, Anita Bryant, Anna Maria Alberghetti, Ann Sidney, and Miss World. They are the greatest. They worked in snow and blistering heat, sang, 'Hey, Look Us Over,' and were as fresh at the tour's end as when we started. They missed out on Gen. Maxwell Taylor's party in Viet Nam. Somebody whipped their luggage back to the airport when a bomb nearly blasted our hotel, but Jerry Colonna, John Bubbles, and I made it. Later we went over to the hospital, but a big guy with a gun stopped us. Nobody got in. A demolition sguad was hunting for a bomb inside. We've got great guys over there and they're doing a marvelous job coping with the terrorist campaign that's being waged. It's fantastic."

Edwin Lester chose Ricardo Montalban to play the king in "The King and I" and Florence Henderson to play the Gertie Lawrence role when it's produced at our Music Center. They wanted Mary Martin to open the New York State Theater in that play, but she said, "The only role I would consider would be the king."

The D'Oyly Carte company playing Gilbert and Sullivan at our new Pavilion is practically sold out. I've got to fight my way in somehow because my husband, De Wolf Hopper, was one of the greatest in all those operas. He was 6 feet 4 and the Japanese are short, so he played the Lord High Executioner in "The Mikado" bowlegged. I swear he didn't look over 5 feet. And if you get me in the right mood, I'll sing all his songs beginning with "Taken from the County Jail."

Fred Waring is making the longest tour of his life. He's been out since October; doesn't finish until April. Carries 40 people with him. He plays here in Santa Monica; also the Shrine; then Pasadena. Several players have been with him 49 years.

Those experts on "To Tell the Truth" will have to guess which of three girls is Anne Douglas, Kirk's wife. Here's the tipoff — look for the best dressed. Had this note from Kirk, who's now in Norway shooting "Heroes of Telemark": "While home I got your note, but it went to the wrong address. We haven't lived there in seven years. You can't imagine what that might lead to. You might want to bawl the hell out of me, sent a letter there and I'd never get it. Or you might want to say something nice, and that letter would be knocking around some dusty file at the postoffice marked 'address unknown.'"

Rosie Dolly, one - half of the famous sisters, checked into the Beverly Wilshire. She's had eye surgery — her eyelashes grew inward. Rosie's been in Palm Springs since October. Tells me it's so cold there all her flowers died.

Hollywood producers wouldn't listen, so now bills are being introduced in Washington and Sacramento to prohibit distribution, exhibition, or any form of dissemination of "morally corruptive matter" to anyone under 21 years of age. And that means motion pictures. The mothers of this country got through to their lawmakers, and if one of those bills pass, censorship is here. Producers can't say they haven't been warned.

Warren Beatty got in yesterday. His press agent, Jim Mahoney, and his wife are expecting their fifth. They have the cutest kids you've ever seen.

I've fallen hard for Sammy Jackson on No Time for Sergeants. Those southern boys sure have something, and that goes for Gomer Pyle and Andy Griffith, too.

Happy birthday to Art Baker, my announcer on radio for three years. Last year was the best he's ever had. He never stops working, and hopes it continues.

Fred Waring is making the longest tour of his life. He's been out since October; doesn't finish until April. Carries 40 people with him. He plays here in Santa Monica; also the Shrine; then Pasadena. Several players have been with him 49 years.

Those experts on "To Tell the Truth" will have to guess which of three girls is Anne Douglas, Kirk's wife. Here's the tipoff — look for the best dressed. Had this note from Kirk, who's now in Norway shooting "Heroes of Telemark": "While home I got your note, but it went to the wrong address. We haven't lived there in seven years. You can't imagine what that might lead to. You might want to bawl the hell out of me, sent a letter there and I'd never get it. Or you might want to say something nice, and that letter would be knocking around some dusty file at the postoffice marked 'address unknown.'"

Rosie Dolly, one - half of the famous sisters, checked into the Beverly Wilshire. She's had eye surgery — her eyelashes grew inward. Rosie's been in Palm Springs since October. Tells me it's so cold there all her flowers died.

Hollywood producers wouldn't listen, so now bills are being introduced in Washington and Sacramento to prohibit distribution, exhibition, or any form of dissemination of "morally corruptive matter" to anyone under 21 years of age. And that means motion pictures. The mothers of this country got through to their lawmakers, and if one of those bills pass, censorship is here. Producers can't say they haven't been warned.

Warren Beatty got in yesterday. His press agent, Jim Mahoney, and his wife are expecting their fifth. They have the cutest kids you've ever seen.

I've fallen hard for Sammy Jackson on No Time for Sergeants. Those southern boys sure have something, and that goes for Gomer Pyle and Andy Griffith, too.

Happy birthday to Art Baker, my announcer on radio for three years. Last year was the best he's ever had. He never stops working, and hopes it continues.

Burton Says It Was Idea Of Elizabeth

By RAYMOND E. PALMER

LONDON (AP) — Richard Burton says Elizabeth Taylor's decision to renounce her American citizenship was her idea.

"I had nothing to do with it at all," the brunette beauty's Welsh husband said in an interview. "It was entirely Elizabeth's idea.

"She had dual nationality because she was born in London of American parents and had always used her American nationality. Then, about a year ago, she decided she would like to be British.

"While we were in the United States, Elizabeth applied for and got a British passport. She first used it when we came across on the Queen Elizabeth last October."

In October, Miss Taylor arranged with the U.S. Embassy in Paris to send a consular official to her hotel so that she could renounce her American citizesnhip. The State Department refused to recognize her renunciation because it was not in the prescribed form. Miss Taylor refused to forswear allegiance and loyalty to the United States.

"She has been using her British passport since last October and it was apparently only last week in Paris that someone noticed it," Burton said.

Burton has just started work in the lead role of a cold-war espionage movie being filmed in London.

John Springer, Miss Taylor's press agent, denied that she wants to give up her American citizenship to escape American taxes on her earnings.

"That certainly was not her idea," said Springer. "In fact we don't even know if she will gain a tax advantage out of this switch of nationality. If she does, it will be an unlooked for result — a sort of fringe benefit."

An official of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service in London said the general rule is that an American citizen living abroad is liable to pay U.S. taxes on income earned abroad in excess of $20,000 annually.

Any income tax paid to a foreign government would be credited against the U.S. taxes for which he or she was liable, he said. In general, British subjects living abroad pay no income tax.

Radcliffe Girl Assails Harvard Tradition

The coveted role of class marshal has gone to a male without exception since the university was founded.

Miss Levine points out that Radcliffe girls have attended Harvard classes since World War II and have received Harvard diplomas since last year.

"If I'm going to get a Harvard diploma then I should be permitted to run for class marshal," she said. "If I can't run for marshal, then I don't want their diploma."

Miss Levine has been turned down by Harvard student government officials in her bid to have her name placed on the ballot for Monday's voting. College officials say her candidacy is illegal because she's not a male.

Thirty-three men seek the honor to lead the commencement procession and become the only undergraduate to receive his — or her — diploma at the ceremony. All other seniors receive their diplomas at their residential houses following the ceremonies.

Need for Dental School Pointed Out

DENVER (UPI)—Dr. Donald J. Walden, president-elect of the Metropolitan Denver Society, Sunday pointed out the need of a dental school in Colorado.

The dentist said state residents now were handicapped because prospective dental students in the state practically had no place to go for training.

He said it would become increasingly difficult for Coloradans to attend dental schools in neighboring areas.

Dr. Walden said he hoped the 1965 General Assembly would appropriate a $50,000 request for planning a dental school at the University of Colorado Medical Center. He said the Dental Foundation of Colorado would add another $100,000 to that.

"A sufficient number of legislators are giving serious attention to the matter," he said. "They realize, if we start now, it will be 10 years before we can graduate a class."

Famed Choral Group to Be Discontinued

The Army Air Defense Command (ARADCOM) Choral Group, well known in this area and throughout the country, made its final appearance Tuesday performing for the Lions Club of Denver at a luncheon-meeting at the Albany Hotel, Denver.

The singing group, formed in May, 1958, will be officially discontinued as of Friday, according to a statement by Lt. Gen. Charles B. Duff, commanding general of ARADCOM.

In a talk to the soldier members, Gen. Duff called the organization "tops" in its field, and said he was discontinuing it with regret.

He explained, however, that the job "spaces" occupied by the approximately 35 members would be returned to the Nike missile sites where they originated. Most of the men are trained missilemen.

The primary purpose of the ARADCOM Choral Group was to provide entertainment for ARADCOM's soldiers at the missile sites, but the group also sang for residents of nearby communities.

Its prestige grew, and it made appearances on such national television programs as the Arthur Godfrey Show, Don McNeill's Breakfast Club, the Tennessee Ernie Ford Show, and the Bell Telephone Hour.

Henry Beckett of the New York Post said: "Judging by applause, the audience shared this reporter's desire for much more from the chorus, a group of good voices amazingly well trained."

Ralph N. Philips Services Friday

Ralph N. Philips, 322 N. Hancock St., retired railroad postal clerk, died Tuesday, at 86, at a local nursing home. He had been a resident of Colorado Springs since 1920 and was a member of the Postal Clerks Association and the National Association of Retired Civil Employes.

Mr. Philips was born in Cordova, Ill., May 19, 1878. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Maude Philips, of Colorado Springs; a daughter, Mrs. Richard D. Barger, Colorado Springs, and two granddaughters.

Funeral services will be held at 3:30 p.m. Friday at the Law Drawing Room. The Rev. Elmer Larson will officiate. Burial will be in Evergreen Cemetery.

Mrs. Bula Smith Died Here Wednesday

Mrs. Bula H. Smith, wife of George R. Smith, 719 N. Walnut St., died at 77 Wednesday at a local hospital. She homesteaded in El Paso County in 1912 and taught school in Ellicott. She had been a resident of Colorado Springs since 1936 and was a member of Unity Church. She was said to have been the first woman home demonstration agent and 4-H Club worker in Colorado.

Mrs. Smith was born in Ashland, Ohio, Oct. 3, 1887. Besides her husband she is survived by two sons, Stuart E. Smith, of Denver, and Loren E. Smith, Boulder, Colo.; two daughters, Mrs. Arlene Roe, Littleton, Colo., and Mrs. Barbara Stacey, San Diego, Calif.; two sisters, Mrs. Helen Bott, Ashland, Ohio, and Mrs. Ruth Kennedy, Pasadena, Calif.; two brothers, Ernest Herschler, New Philadelphia, Ohio, and Barton Herschler, Tucson, Ariz., and 11 grandchildren.

Private funeral services will be held at the Law Drawing Room Friday. The Rev. Carol Guentel will officiate. Cremation will follow.

Personal Injury Suit Filed Against Cabbie

An $11,000 personal injury suit was filed in District Court this morning by John L. Arminante, 326 S. 8th St., against the Yellow Cab Co., and Monroe Andrewlight.

According to the complaint the plaintiff was a passenger in a cab driven by Andrewlight Sept. 27 and at 8th and Cimarron Street the vehicle hit the curb and tipped throwing Arminante to the floor. It is alleged he was injured.

Colorado Solons Demand Return of Federal Land

serve as a permanent source of income for Colorado and its public schools.

The second proposal memorialized congress to transfer ownership and administration of vacant and unreserved public domain lands to western states.

These lands, Gill said, cover eight million acres in the west and "serve no good general public service as administered by the federal government.

The memorial asked Congress to return the lands without reservation, except that the states would guard against misuse, misappropriation and would take proper conservation steps.

Copies of the memorials, if passed by the Senate and the House, would be sent to Johnson, the president of the U. S. Senate, the speaker of the U.S. House, and the six members of Colorado's six-member congressional delegation.

'Weak Voice of Science' Should Speak, C.C. Told

"International cooperation in science and technology is even more extensive now than most persons realize. It is the chief responsibility of scientists everywhere to strengthen it, particularly in this year, designated by the UN as 'The Year of International Cooperation.' "

Earlier in the day, persons attending the symposium heard Dr. Richard O. Moore, professor, Department of Agricultural Biochemistry, Ohio State University, discuss possible repercussions of scientific achievement.

"We are standing on the threshold of new scientific achievement," Dr. Moore said.

"Biology's first duty was to describe. There was no conflict with religion, politics or history. But today the knowledge rising out of biology is increasing tremendously and man must learn to increase his wisdom with it. Wisdom, defined in this sense is the proper evaluation of the goals in life.

"An increase in the knowledge of how to manipulate nature alone is not enough. The descrepancy in the rate of growth of the understanding of nature and man's understanding of man is not proportional. Our critical need is the increase of our understanding of man in society.

"We need ideas that mean the same to all men — to establish ethics and values which all men will understand.

"Improved biological science has produced longer, healthier life, and even aids for easing one's mind. But the destructive ability of biology also has been found in biological warfare, germ warfare, the exploding population wherein the mass of human flesh may choke itself into non-existence, etc.

"We must learn to overcome the detrimental moral, legal and psychiatric effects of a spare-part human, for instance.

"Consider eugenics as man's own controlled evolution. Thanks to recent advancements in the biological sciences, the stage now is set for man to be the determiner of his own future type. Scientifically we are at the threshold of bringing the reproductive cycle under regulation and it probably will become possible to prescribe the sex of the offsprings and to produce, at will, multiple births. Science already understands genetically why man is what he is and it may soon be able to describe chemically those features which we call character.

"But who is to select the characteristics most favorable to society. The thoughtful, unselfish appraiser would say they are warmth of human feeling, a sense of cooperation, moral courage and integrity, intellectual honesty, ability of expression, an appreciation of nature and a depth and breadth of intellectual capacity.

"Thus, those who are optimistic about eugenics believe that with the intelligent help of man himself, our cultural and our biological evolution will go on to undreamed of heights.

"But the debate over ideal characteristics goes on. Our purpose here is not to evaluate the debate but merely to remind you that it exists and to hope your intelligent opinion will be counted."

casks, were conducted at Sandia Laboratory during an international symposium on packaging and transportation of radioactive materials.

Non-nuclear materials were used. A Sandia spokesman said that had radioactive materials been used they would have been contained, "but it would have been awful hot."

The 200-pound British cask reached an inside temperature of about 1,380 degrees Fahrenheit in a jet fuel fire that was to simulate the burning of an aircraft. A spokesman said the container remained intact and exceeded its designed specifications.

The two Sandia-built American containers, a two-ton cask and a 15-ton fuel element cask, also withstood the heat.

The non-nuclear material in the British container ignited after the external temperatures reached 1,900 degrees.

In two later tests, the casks were dropped from a 30-foot tower and were tied down to a railroad flat car and bumped against a string of loaded gondola cars.

Mrs. Nellie Anderson Services Set Friday

Mrs. Nellie Isabelle Anderson, wife of Ross E. Anderson, 1813 W. Kiowa St., died Monday at a local hospital, at the age of 80. She had been a resident of Colorado Springs since 1958. She formerly resided at Glen Elder, Kan., but came to Colorado Springs from Arriba, Colo. She was a member of the Evangelical United Brethren Church of Glen Elder.

Mrs. Anderson was born in Allegany County, N. Y., Feb. 14, 1884. She and Mr. Anderson were married May, 12, 1909, in Ionia, Kan. Besides her husband she is survived by two sons, Donald M. Anderson, of Englewood, Colo., and Gerald L. Anderson, Arriba; two daughters, Mrs. Margaret G. Graves, and Miss Leta Corrine Anderson, both of Colorado Springs; a sister, Mrs. Maggie Gourley, Ordway, Colo., and eight grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 1 p.m. Friday at the Chapel of Memories Mortuary. The Rev. Floyd W. Shiery will officiate. Burial will be in Memorial Gardens. Pallbearers will be: Harry Hogan, Bob Auldridge, Leonard Smith, A. E. Mantz, Max Jelinek and John Nichols, Jr. Honorary pallbearers: Fred Schneider, S. H. Brent, Kenneth Silsbee, Ralph Seaburg, Lloyd Lundien and William Pierce.

Television Set Taken From Apartment

A television set valued at $150 was taken from an apartment between 6:30 a.m. and 4:45 p.m. Wednesday, police reported.

Seratio Medina, 315 N. El Paso St., told police the set, a nine inch model with a black leather case, was in the upstairs apartment where Medina lives with two brothers. A third brother lives in the downstairs apartment with his wife, according to the report. Police said the wife of the fourth brother was home all day Wednesday, and she said she didn't hear anything suspicious during the day.

Three Injured In Springs Street Fight

two men involved in the fight who were questioned later by police, the fight started when Renkel, Klei, Moralas, and Obed O. Martinez, 21, 1232 W. Colorado Ave., drove up in front of Guiseppe's at approximately 12:05 a.m. Thursday and began talking to some girls. At this point two men came out of Guiseppe's and after an exchange of words a fight started between the two men on the street and the four in the car.

Apparently, the fight had just started when a sports car drove up, two more men got out and joined the fight, and then another car drove up and an additional two men joined in. The occupants of the second car were identified as Thomas Darreil Wilkey, 20, 3006 De Cortez St., and Larry W. Ivy, 18, 404 Rose Drive in Security. According to police, during the fight Wilkey went back to Ivy's car and got a .22 caliber pistol, and said he was going to use it to threaten some of the fighters in order to make them stop fighting. Wilkey said he got the gun because one of the men had a club and another had a broken bottle, according to the report.

Police said that during the fight the gun Wilkey got from the car went off, and apparently this broke up the fight. Police were contacted by Renkel at the police station, and the three injured parties were then taken to St. Francis Hospital.

Police reported that both sets of participants in the fight wished to sign complaints against each other, and they were informed they would be able to do so sometime today.

Consumer Chiefs Up in Arms Over LBJ's Policy

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON —(Special)— President Johnson is uneasily in the middle of a dynamite loaded wrangle between consumer and business forces over the make-up of the 12-member Consumers' Advisory Council.

Cause of this explosive backstage hassle is Johnson's insistence on naming businessmen to the council — which the late President Kennedy established in 1962 for the express purpose of giving consumers a "voice in government at the White House level."

Consumer organizations and their champions in Congress are up in arms over the President's unpublicized intention, and are threatening a public row.

The issue arose when the President cold-shouldered a list of recommendations for new appointments to the council submitted by Mrs. Esther Peterson, his special adviser on consumer affairs. The terms of the 12 original members have expired, and Mrs. Peterson proposed that most of them be renamed.

Instead, the President returned her list with a note that he wanted "business representation on the council."

Then to make sure Mrs. Peterson got the point, he called her in and frankly stated that a number of businessmen who had supported him last year felt that business should have a place on this important consumer agency.

"I see nothing wrong with that," said Johnson. "It seems fair and proper to me."

Mrs. Peterson pointed out that no consumer representatives are on the Business Advisory Council, which functions closely with the Commerce Department. Briskly brushing that aside, the President reiterated his insistence that businessmen be included on the Consumers' Council.

This emphatic edict was quickly relayed by Mrs. Peterson to congressional consumer leaders — foremost among them Senator Paul Douglas, D-Ill., vice chairman of the Joint Economic Committee; Senator Philip Hart, D-Mich., head of the Anti-Monopoly Subcommittee, and Representative John Dingell, D-Mich., member of the House Commerce Committee.

They hit the ceiling, bluntly served notice on Johnson that the Consumers' Council be kept as originally set up — or else!

ON THE SPOT

The Consumers' Council would remain unchanged, but "consulting committees," with businessmen as members, would be created as adjuncts of the council.

Neither side has yet accepted this plan. Both are studying it.

Meanwhile, consumer forces are closely eying what stand is taken — if any — by Vice President-elect Huberty Humphrey and Senator Walter Mondale, D-Minn. Until his recent appointment to Humphrey's seat, Mondale, as state attorney general, was a member of the Consumers' Council.

Leading consumer organizations — among them the Cooperative League of the USA, California Consumers' Council, and Consumers' Union — are pressing Humphrey and Mondale to back Mrs. Peterson. No less vigorously, advertising interests, who have been warring with her, are urging them to keep hands off.

So far, that's exactly what they have been doing. How long they can keep it up remains to be seen.

Also spit on the issue are members of the President's Committee on Consumer Interests. This group of high-placed government officials was set up to work closely with the Consumers' Council.

Favoring businessmen on the council are John P. Lewis, member of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, and Dr. Richard Holton, assistant commerce secretary for economic affairs. Opposing are Paul Rand Dixon, head of the Federal Trade Commission, and Assistant Labor Secretary Daniel P. Moynihan.

Reverent Robert McEwen, chairman of the Massachusetts Consumers' Council, proposed for appointment to the national council by Speaker McCormack, D-Mass., hinted at this backstage storm in a recent address to the Consumers' Protection Conference in Dallas, Tex.

"Voices are being raised suggesting that the President's Consumers' Council needs businessmen," said McEwen. "I must warn that only disillusionment and frustration will follow any ill-advised attempt to remake the consumer voice into just another voice of business . . . Business interests have no proper place on the Consumers' Council."

Also being closely eyed by consumer forces is what the President does about Federal Power Commission Chairman Joseph Swidler.

Appointed by Kennedy, Swidler's term expires in June. He is strongly favored by consumer groups, and they are watching to see what Johnson does about him. Reason for their concern is hints from White House insiders that Swidler is slated to be replaced.

Significantly, these intimations are accompanied by pointed references to a statement made by the President at a White House meeting with business leaders last month.

"We will not harass you nor persecute you," Johnson told them. "We want to help you in every way we can."

Carefully not consulting the White House, Senator Philip Hart, D-Mich., chairman of the Anti-Monopoly Subcommittee, is quietly setting in motion a wide-ranging probe of the ownership of pharmaceutical concerns and drugstores by doctors and groups of doctors.

Also planned by Hart is renewal of his investigation of the "high cost of dying," with special attention paid to manufacturers of caskets and funeral establishments.

County Planners Approve Seven Zoning Petitions

The El Paso County Planning Commission approved seven new zoning petitions Wednesday afternoon including one area that will be used by a steel fabrication plant.

The commission also approved two final plats, a preliminary plat and tabled a petition by Harry C. Bryan and Mary D. Bryan. They asked to change an A-3 airport farming district to an R-1 residential district containing about 29 acres and located south of Galley Rd. north of Route 24. The petition will be heard at the February meeting of the commission.

Pending consideration by the County Commissioners, planners approved a petition from Janitell Farms Inc. to change an A-1 garden home district to an A-2 farming district and M industrial district.

However, because of the nature of the fabrication plant's operations, the commission approved the Janitell petition stipulating that part of the land be included in an M-1 industrial park district.

The area petitioned by Janitell Farms takes in 320 acres and is located south of Evergreen Cemetery and east of Interstate No. 1.

Opposing the planned steel construction firm, which voiced protests through representatives at the public hearing Wednesday, was the city Park Board.

The board opposed the fabrication plant on grounds that noise, smoke and nature of building would not be in the best interests of Evergreen Cemetery.

Stuart Richter, director of city parks and recreation,, said it has been estimated that 1,000 persons visit the cemetery a week and the board was thinking of a lighter type of business in the area.

R. D. Janitell said a buffer strip, at least 700 feet wide, could be left between the plant and cemetery to help reduce noise levels. Richter said a vegetation screen could be placed inside cemetery boundaries facing the plant. Janitell told the commission that the plant would cover a 2½ acre area and would be located away from the cemetery.

The two parties involved have 45 days to work out a compromise before the approved petition comes before County Commissioners.

Other new petitions approved were:

H. C. Gerber to change from an R-2 residential district to an A-1 garden home district. The land covers 2.52 acres and is south of Interstate 25 east of South Corona St. Two three-sotry apartment complexes are planned for the area.

Everett R. Conover and Clarence H. Stanton to change an R-1 residential district to an R-2 residential district. The 2.25 acres are located south of Cragmor Rd. and east of Panorama Rd. One lot encompassing 18,000 square feet is involved.

J. C. Reinhard and E. O. Shepard to change an A-1 garden home district to an M industrial district. The area contains 5.2 acres and is located east of Pike View Rd. and south of Garden of the Gods Rd.

John B. Jiron to change an R-2 residential district to a C-2 suburban business district in Oakview. The area takes in one lot adjacent to a two-lot section and will be used for a single unit trailer.

Leo A. McCann to change an R-2 residential district to a C-2 suburban business district. Located in block No. 2 of Lihue, the property will be used for apartments.

York Investment Co to change an A-1 garden home district to a C-2 suburban business district. The 6.17 acres lies west of Academy Blvd. opposite Brockwood Dr. The investment company said the land is unusuable for residential purposes, but has the feasibility for some commercial use. The firm has no specific commercial use in mind.

Final plats approved were by Pine Valley Estates Subsivision, presented by Frank A. Vale and Gilbert J. Robbins. The area lies on the west side of Burgess Road and contains 79.245 acres, according to Colorado Engineers Surveyors. The second final plat approved was by Stratmoor Valley Fifth Filing, addition No. 1, presented by the Stratmoor Development Co. This area lies south of Bates Bridge and is between Fountain Creek and Interstate 25. It contains 5.040, according to Karcich & Weber Surveyors.

The commission approved a preliminary plat by Falcon Forest Subdivision No. 2, presented by Henry W. Danley. The area lies north of Shoup Road, between Howells Road and Milan Road and contains 259.06 acres, according to R. Keith Hook & Associates Surveyors. The commission approved the plat stipulating that access roads be given to the north at lots 8-9 and at lots 2-3 in the southwest corner.

These boil down to computer directed, mechanical means of discharging cans, packages and jars from storage bins into belts and chutes that collect the items at a delivery point.

But he sees the danger as not only invading the home, but offices, places of work, hotel rooms.

"The state of the art has reached such an advanced stage," said a Gallagher investigator, "that you can turn your back on your coat for 10 minutes and when you come back you'll be a walking radio station."

Famed Choral Group to Be Discontinued

The Army Air Defense Command (ARADCOM) Choral Group, well known in this area and throughout the country, made its final appearance Tuesday performing for the Lions Club of Denver at a luncheon-meeting at the Albany Hotel, Denver.

The singing group, formed in May, 1958, will be officially discontinued as of Friday, according to a statement by Lt. Gen. Charles B. Duff, commanding general of ARADCOM.

In a talk to the soldier members, Gen. Duff called the organization "tops" in its field, and said he was discontinuing it with regret.

He explained, however, that the job "spaces" occupied by the approximately 35 members would be returned to the Nike missile sites where they originated. Most of the men are trained missilemen.

The primary purpose of the ARADCOM Choral Group was to provide entertainment for ARADCOM's soldiers at the missile sites, but the group also sang for residents of nearby communities.

Its prestige grew, and it made appearances on such national television programs as the Arthur Godfrey Show, Don McNeill's Breakfast Club, the Tennessee Ernie Ford Show, and the Bell Telephone Hour.

Henry Beckett of the New York Post said: "Judging by applause, the audience shared this reporter's desire for much more from the chorus, a group of good voices amazingly well trained."

The second proposal memorialized congress to transfer ownership and administration of vacant and unreserved public domain lands to western states.

These lands, Gill said, cover eight million acres in the west and "serve no good general public service as administered by the federal government.

The memorial asked Congress to return the lands without reservation, except that the states would guard against misuse, misappropriation and would take proper conservation steps.

Copies of the memorials, if passed by the Senate and the House, would be sent to Johnson, the president of the U. S. Senate, the speaker of the U.S. House, and the six members of Colorado's six-member congressional delegation.

'Weak Voice of Science' Should Speak, C.C. Told

"International cooperation in science and technology is even more extensive now than most persons realize. It is the chief responsibility of scientists everywhere to strengthen it, particularly in this year, designated by the UN as 'The Year of International Cooperation.' "

Earlier in the day, persons attending the symposium heard Dr. Richard O. Moore, professor, Department of Agricultural Biochemistry, Ohio State University, discuss possible repercussions of scientific achievement.

"We are standing on the threshold of new scientific achievement," Dr. Moore said.

"Biology's first duty was to describe. There was no conflict with religion, politics or history. But today the knowledge rising out of biology is increasing tremendously and man must learn to increase his wisdom with it. Wisdom, defined in this sense is the proper evaluation of the goals in life.

"An increase in the knowledge of how to manipulate nature alone is not enough. The descrepancy in the rate of growth of the understanding of nature and man's understanding of man is not proportional. Our critical need is the increase of our understanding of man in society.

"We need ideas that mean the same to all men — to establish ethics and values which all men will understand.

"Improved biological science has produced longer, healthier life, and even aids for easing one's mind. But the destructive ability of biology also has been found in biological warfare, germ warfare, the exploding population wherein the mass of human flesh may choke itself into non-existence, etc.

"We must learn to overcome the detrimental moral, legal and psychiatric effects of a spare-part human, for instance.

"Consider eugenics as man's own controlled evolution. Thanks to recent advancements in the biological sciences, the stage now is set for man to be the determiner of his own future type. Scientifically we are at the threshold of bringing the reproductive cycle under regulation and it probably will become possible to prescribe the sex of the offsprings and to produce, at will, multiple births. Science already understands genetically why man is what he is and it may soon be able to describe chemically those features which we call character.

"But who is to select the characteristics most favorable to society. The thoughtful, unselfish appraiser would say they are warmth of human feeling, a sense of cooperation, moral courage and integrity, intellectual honesty, ability of expression, an appreciation of nature and a depth and breadth of intellectual capacity.

"Thus, those who are optimistic about eugenics believe that with the intelligent help of man himself, our cultural and our biological evolution will go on to undreamed of heights.

"But the debate over ideal characteristics goes on. Our purpose here is not to evaluate the debate but merely to remind you that it exists and to hope your intelligent opinion will be counted."

to his staff of 50 men and women, some of whom come from the world's best hospitals.

Renouncing a successful career in Europe, he first came to Africa in 1913. Although he was to win recognition later as a missionary, he had already achieved greatness as a young man.

Born the son of a preacher in the Alsace village of Kayersberg, Schweitzer enjoyed a wide reputation in music, philosophy and theology before he turned to medicine at the age of 30.

As an organist, he attracted large audiences in European concert halls. As a scholar, he left a storehouse of knowledge on subjects ranging from music, German literature and Bach to studies of Jesus.

"We need to crack down on criminals," said Tate.

The current rash of murders apparently are unconnected. They have occurred in every section of the city.

Last week leary assigned some policemen to do detective work. This week he announced plans to hire 30 additional detectives, increasing this force to 420.

Joseph P. McNulty Died at His Home

Joseph P. McNulty, 2420 W. Platte Ave., a retired pattern maker for the Denver Equipment Co., died Tuesday at his home. He had been a resident of Colorado Springs for 73 years.

Mr. McNulty was born in Council Bluffs, Iowa, Aug. 1, 1886. He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Edith A. Hobbs, of Colorado Springs, two grandchildren and a great-grandchild.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a.m. Friday at the Law Drawing Room. Dr. Howard E. Hansen will officiate. Burial will be in Fairview Cemetery. Pallbearers will be: Max Walt, Robert Street, John Dunlap, Raymond Headley, William Swanson and Jess Charles.

Burglars Take Tools, Torch From Building

Three boxes of hand tools and a butane torch were taken from a building by burglars who knocked out a window to gain entrance, police reported. The stolen articles were valued at more than $500, according to the report.

John Talbot, stockholder in the Service Development Corp., 105 W. Costilla St., told police the corporation's building was broken into between 10 p.m., Tuesday and 12 p.m. Wednesday He said the thieves broke a window in the rear of the building to gain entrance.

Four Navy and Air Force jets were shot down over Laos prior to Wednesday's losses. Each was either conducting photo reconnaissance or escorting planes taking pictures of Red supply roads and trails.

For weeks, the Communist Chinese and North Vietnamese have been claiming that U.S. air and sea forces have been raiding Communist territory.

The U.S. government evidently is not ready to acknowledge that its war planes are in combat outside the borders of South Viet Nam.

The degree of escalation of the war still is rather low.

The issue of whether it will be stepped up further — possibly to strike at production and supply centers, rail lines and military bases inside Viet Nam — is in doubt.

Three Injured In Springs Street Fight

two men involved in the fight who were questioned later by police, the fight started when Renkel, Klei, Moralas, and Obed O. Martinez, 21, 1232 W. Colorado Ave., drove up in front of Guiseppe's at approximately 12:05 a.m. Thursday and began talking to some girls. At this point two men came out of Guiseppe's and after an exchange of words a fight started between the two men on the street and the four in the car.

Apparently, the fight had just started when a sports car drove up, two more men got out and joined the fight, and then another car drove up and an additional two men joined in. The occupants of the second car were identified as Thomas Darreil Wilkey, 20, 3006 De Cortez St., and Larry W. Ivy, 18, 404 Rose Drive in Security. According to police, during the fight Wilkey went back to Ivy's car and got a .22 caliber pistol, and said he was going to use it to threaten some of the fighters in order to make them stop fighting. Wilkey said he got the gun because one of the men had a club and another had a broken bottle, according to the report.

Police said that during the fight the gun Wilkey got from the car went off, and apparently this broke up the fight. Police were contacted by Renkel at the police station, and the three injured parties were then taken to St. Francis Hospital.

Police reported that both sets of participants in the fight wished to sign complaints against each other, and they were informed they would be able to do so sometime today.

Mrs. Opal Lee Nelson Died While at Work

Mrs. Opal Lee Nelson, 56, of 31 E. Platte Ave., an employe of the Colorado Springs Secretarial Service in the Exchange National Bank Building, died suddenly this morning of a possible heart attack while at work.

The Fire Department was called at 7:03 a.m. Battalion Chief L. L. Fooshee and the Station No. 1 rescue squad responded. A resuscitator was used for 35 minutes, after which the patient was pronounced dead by the coroner.

Mrs. Nelson had been employed by the Colorado Springs Secretarial Service for 14 years. Her husband is deceased. The Swan Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements.

RITCHARD IN ANOTHER MUSICAL

NEW YORK (AP) — Another musical comedy workout is coming up for Cyril Ritchard. The Australian star, who was Captain Hook for Mary Martain's "Peter Pan" and a Roman emperor in "Romulus," teams with Anthony Newley in "The Roar of the Greasepaint —The Smell of the Crowd." The show arrives from London in March.

Consumer Chiefs Up in Arms Over LBJ's Policy

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON —(Special)— President Johnson is uneasily in the middle of a dynamite loaded wrangle between consumer and business forces over the make-up of the 12-member Consumers' Advisory Council.

Cause of this explosive backstage hassle is Johnson's insistence on naming businessmen to the council — which the late President Kennedy established in 1962 for the express purpose of giving consumers a "voice in government at the White House level."

Consumer organizations and their champions in Congress are up in arms over the President's unpublicized intention, and are threatening a public row.

The issue arose when the President cold-shouldered a list of recommendations for new appointments to the council submitted by Mrs. Esther Peterson, his special adviser on consumer affairs. The terms of the 12 original members have expired, and Mrs. Peterson proposed that most of them be renamed.

Instead, the President returned her list with a note that he wanted "business representation on the council."

Then to make sure Mrs. Peterson got the point, he called her in and frankly stated that a number of businessmen who had supported him last year felt that business should have a place on this important consumer agency.

"I see nothing wrong with that," said Johnson. "It seems fair and proper to me."

Mrs. Peterson pointed out that no consumer representatives are on the Business Advisory Council, which functions closely with the Commerce Department. Briskly brushing that aside, the President reiterated his insistence that businessmen be included on the Consumers' Council.

This emphatic edict was quickly relayed by Mrs. Peterson to congressional consumer leaders — foremost among them Senator Paul Douglas, D-Ill., vice chairman of the Joint Economic Committee; Senator Philip Hart, D-Mich., head of the Anti-Monopoly Subcommittee, and Representative John Dingell, D-Mich., member of the House Commerce Committee.

They hit the ceiling, bluntly served notice on Johnson that the Consumers' Council be kept as originally set up — or else!

ON THE SPOT

The Consumers' Council would remain unchanged, but "consulting committees," with businessmen as members, would be created as adjuncts of the council.

Neither side has yet accepted this plan. Both are studying it.

Meanwhile, consumer forces are closely eying what stand is taken — if any — by Vice President-elect Huberty Humphrey and Senator Walter Mondale, D-Minn. Until his recent appointment to Humphrey's seat, Mondale, as state attorney general, was a member of the Consumers' Council.

Leading consumer organizations — among them the Cooperative League of the USA, California Consumers' Council, and Consumers' Union — are pressing Humphrey and Mondale to back Mrs. Peterson. No less vigorously, advertising interests, who have been warring with her, are urging them to keep hands off.

So far, that's exactly what they have been doing. How long they can keep it up remains to be seen.

Also spit on the issue are members of the President's Committee on Consumer Interests. This group of high-placed government officials was set up to work closely with the Consumers' Council.

Favoring businessmen on the council are John P. Lewis, member of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, and Dr. Richard Holton, assistant commerce secretary for economic affairs. Opposing are Paul Rand Dixon, head of the Federal Trade Commission, and Assistant Labor Secretary Daniel P. Moynihan.

Reverent Robert McEwen, chairman of the Massachusetts Consumers' Council, proposed for appointment to the national council by Speaker McCormack, D-Mass., hinted at this backstage storm in a recent address to the Consumers' Protection Conference in Dallas, Tex.

"Voices are being raised suggesting that the President's Consumers' Council needs businessmen," said McEwen. "I must warn that only disillusionment and frustration will follow any ill-advised attempt to remake the consumer voice into just another voice of business . . . Business interests have no proper place on the Consumers' Council."

Also being closely eyed by consumer forces is what the President does about Federal Power Commission Chairman Joseph Swidler.

Appointed by Kennedy, Swidler's term expires in June. He is strongly favored by consumer groups, and they are watching to see what Johnson does about him. Reason for their concern is hints from White House insiders that Swidler is slated to be replaced.

Significantly, these intimations are accompanied by pointed references to a statement made by the President at a White House meeting with business leaders last month.

"We will not harass you nor persecute you," Johnson told them. "We want to help you in every way we can."

Carefully not consulting the White House, Senator Philip Hart, D-Mich., chairman of the Anti-Monopoly Subcommittee, is quietly setting in motion a wide-ranging probe of the ownership of pharmaceutical concerns and drugstores by doctors and groups of doctors.

Also planned by Hart is renewal of his investigation of the "high cost of dying," with special attention paid to manufacturers of caskets and funeral establishments.

County Planners Approve Seven Zoning Petitions

The El Paso County Planning Commission approved seven new zoning petitions Wednesday afternoon including one area that will be used by a steel fabrication plant.

The commission also approved two final plats, a preliminary plat and tabled a petition by Harry C. Bryan and Mary D. Bryan. They asked to change an A-3 airport farming district to an R-1 residential district containing about 29 acres and located south of Galley Rd. north of Route 24. The petition will be heard at the February meeting of the commission.

Pending consideration by the County Commissioners, planners approved a petition from Janitell Farms Inc. to change an A-1 garden home district to an A-2 farming district and M industrial district.

However, because of the nature of the fabrication plant's operations, the commission approved the Janitell petition stipulating that part of the land be included in an M-1 industrial park district.

The area petitioned by Janitell Farms takes in 320 acres and is located south of Evergreen Cemetery and east of Interstate No. 1.

Opposing the planned steel construction firm, which voiced protests through representatives at the public hearing Wednesday, was the city Park Board.

The board opposed the fabrication plant on grounds that noise, smoke and nature of building would not be in the best interests of Evergreen Cemetery.

Stuart Richter, director of city parks and recreation,, said it has been estimated that 1,000 persons visit the cemetery a week and the board was thinking of a lighter type of business in the area.

R. D. Janitell said a buffer strip, at least 700 feet wide, could be left between the plant and cemetery to help reduce noise levels. Richter said a vegetation screen could be placed inside cemetery boundaries facing the plant. Janitell told the commission that the plant would cover a 2½ acre area and would be located away from the cemetery.

The two parties involved have 45 days to work out a compromise before the approved petition comes before County Commissioners.

Other new petitions approved were:

H. C. Gerber to change from an R-2 residential district to an A-1 garden home district. The land covers 2.52 acres and is south of Interstate 25 east of South Corona St. Two three-sotry apartment complexes are planned for the area.

Everett R. Conover and Clarence H. Stanton to change an R-1 residential district to an R-2 residential district. The 2.25 acres are located south of Cragmor Rd. and east of Panorama Rd. One lot encompassing 18,000 square feet is involved.

J. C. Reinhard and E. O. Shepard to change an A-1 garden home district to an M industrial district. The area contains 5.2 acres and is located east of Pike View Rd. and south of Garden of the Gods Rd.

John B. Jiron to change an R-2 residential district to a C-2 suburban business district in Oakview. The area takes in one lot adjacent to a two-lot section and will be used for a single unit trailer.

Leo A. McCann to change an R-2 residential district to a C-2 suburban business district. Located in block No. 2 of Lihue, the property will be used for apartments.

York Investment Co to change an A-1 garden home district to a C-2 suburban business district. The 6.17 acres lies west of Academy Blvd. opposite Brockwood Dr. The investment company said the land is unusuable for residential purposes, but has the feasibility for some commercial use. The firm has no specific commercial use in mind.

Final plats approved were by Pine Valley Estates Subsivision, presented by Frank A. Vale and Gilbert J. Robbins. The area lies on the west side of Burgess Road and contains 79.245 acres, according to Colorado Engineers Surveyors. The second final plat approved was by Stratmoor Valley Fifth Filing, addition No. 1, presented by the Stratmoor Development Co. This area lies south of Bates Bridge and is between Fountain Creek and Interstate 25. It contains 5.040, according to Karcich & Weber Surveyors.

The commission approved a preliminary plat by Falcon Forest Subdivision No. 2, presented by Henry W. Danley. The area lies north of Shoup Road, between Howells Road and Milan Road and contains 259.06 acres, according to R. Keith Hook & Associates Surveyors. The commission approved the plat stipulating that access roads be given to the north at lots 8-9 and at lots 2-3 in the southwest corner.

that the housewife will be billed at the end of the month. Provision could be made for cash collection.

The shopper then elects whether to have her purchases delivered or bagged for loading into her car.

"The bulk of space in this type of store would be devoted to an automated warehouse. It would employ technologies now rapidly growing in use in commercial warehousing," Brinberg said in an interview.

These boil down to computer directed, mechanical means of discharging cans, packages and jars from storage bins into belts and chutes that collect the items at a delivery point.

The preliminary hearings will be of an exploratory nature with experts discussing invasion of privacy in many fields and its ramifications.

Gallagher, who demanded last year's hearings on government use of lie detectors, says "man's home or 'castle,' his traditional bastion of privacy, is in danger of becoming a fish bowl."

But he sees the danger as not only invading the home, but offices, places of work, hotel rooms.

"The state of the art has reached such an advanced stage," said a Gallagher investigator, "that you can turn your back on your coat for 10 minutes and when you come back you'll be a walking radio station."

15 Persons Arrested At School Meeting

CHICAGO (AP) — Police arrested 15 persons at a meeting of the Chicago Board of Education Wednesday after they staged a sit-in demonstration against Supt. Benjamin C. Willis.

The demonstration ended when the board adjourned the eight-hour meeting after approving a record $322,197,000 budget for 1965.

About 30 demonstrators, both white and Negro and most of them in their early 20s, were at the meeting. Two attempted to present copies of a paper calling for the dismissal of Willis. He has been superintendent since 1953 and his contract expires in August.

After two demonstrators were arrested, 13 others sat in a semi-circle and locked arms for about one hour before they were escorted from the building and taken to police headquarters.

Club Owners Wants to Buy Gas Chamber

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — A hotel and night club operator wants to buy the state's gas chamber. The voters abolished the death penalty in November.

Hotelman Harvey Dick said he was not sure what he would do with the chamber, but he wants the state to set a price for it.

State officials are not sure they will. They noted that Oregon abolished the death penalty in 1914 but restored it in 1920.

Even the man who invented the gas chamber in 1933 had a suggestion.

"I'd put that thing on a ship and dump it 500 miles at sea. I don't believe in capital punishment and I never have," said Earl Liston, a retired engineer at Denver.

Viet Nam Mock Attack for Movie Blasted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The show will go on — but any sounds of battle from South Viet Nam must be real and not staged for U.S. propaganda.

With this decision behind him, U.S. Information Agency Director Carl Rowan awaited an explanation from Saigon today on why his movie-makers had Vietnamese troops put on a mock attack.

Rowan said the first he knew about it was from an Associated Press story by Peter Arnett from the scene Wednesday. Arnett went to Tan Hiep to check reports of a battle — and found the soldiers, with weapons blazing away, enthusiastically attacking an "enemy village" for cameramen.

A U.S. Army officer said "they might as well have sent me to Hollywood." A veteran combat photographer voiced hope that the actors "don't end up ambushing themselves."

No Communist Viet Cong were in sight — other troops were on guard against their getting into the act. A USIA officer explained that in real life one never gets pictures of the elusive guerrillas.

"What we are looking for is realism," he said.

A spokesman said Rowan feels terror and suffering in Viet Nam is real enough already without staging it.

The spokesman said USIA will go ahead with the $100,000 project for a 30-minute movie to be shown around the world.

The purpose of the film, he said, is "to better inform the rest of the free world about the critical importance of today's struggle in South Viet Nam."

Club Owners Wants to Buy Gas Chamber

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — A hotel and night club operator wants to buy the state's gas chamber. The voters abolished the death penalty in November.

Hotelman Harvey Dick said he was not sure what he would do with the chamber, but he wants the state to set a price for it.

State officials are not sure they will. They noted that Oregon abolished the death penalty in 1914 but restored it in 1920.

Even the man who invented the gas chamber in 1933 had a suggestion.

"I'd put that thing on a ship and dump it 500 miles at sea. I don't believe in capital punishment and I never have," said Earl Liston, a retired engineer at Denver.

Viet Nam Mock Attack for Movie Blasted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The show will go on — but any sounds of battle from South Viet Nam must be real and not staged for U.S. propaganda.

With this decision behind him, U.S. Information Agency Director Carl Rowan awaited an explanation from Saigon today on why his movie-makers had Vietnamese troops put on a mock attack.

Rowan said the first he knew about it was from an Associated Press story by Peter Arnett from the scene Wednesday. Arnett went to Tan Hiep to check reports of a battle — and found the soldiers, with weapons blazing away, enthusiastically attacking an "enemy village" for cameramen.

A U.S. Army officer said "they might as well have sent me to Hollywood." A veteran combat photographer voiced hope that the actors "don't end up ambushing themselves."

No Communist Viet Cong were in sight — other troops were on guard against their getting into the act. A USIA officer explained that in real life one never gets pictures of the elusive guerrillas.

"What we are looking for is realism," he said.

A spokesman said Rowan feels terror and suffering in Viet Nam is real enough already without staging it.

The spokesman said USIA will go ahead with the $100,000 project for a 30-minute movie to be shown around the world.

The purpose of the film, he said, is "to better inform the rest of the free world about the critical importance of today's struggle in South Viet Nam."

Thorough Study Of Finances Is Urged by Love

DENVER (AP) — Republican Gov. John A. Love called today for thorough study and debate by the Colorado Legislature of the financial program which he presented in his message to the General Assembly.

The program calls for an increase in the state sales tax from 2 per cent to 3 per cent with the money to be returned to the school district to replace property taxes and calls for an increase in the cigarette tax from 3 cents a package to 5 cents, with all money from the levy to be used for construction at colleges and institutions.

The governor said at a news conference that he is "not of a closed mind" on the program but emphasized he does not think anyone can face up to his obligation to the state simply by taking a negative approach.

The governor said he plans to confer with several legislative leaders on the program, including some Democrats, but he did not identify any of them by name.

Love said he is interested in the approach or program which the Democrats will advance.

The governor's remarks came as the legislators began the second week of their 1965 session.

Democrats control the House 42-23 and Republicans control the Senate 20-15.

House Democrats called a caucus today to begin discussions of the financial program.

Democratic leaders held an initial session on it Friday afternoon, only two hours after the governor presented it.

Sitting in on this closed door discussion were Robert Maytag, Democratic state chairman, and Prof. Reuben Zbrow, University of Colorado research expert who wrote the controversial income tax section of the 1959 tax program espoused by then Gov. Steve McNichols, a Democrat.

The governor, answering another question, said the fact that his proposed sales tax increase would be collected before the money is paid out to counties would help in the state's cash flow revenue picture.

"This has been a tight thing," the governor commented.

He also said that the state might profit as much as $1.7 million from the first round of the proposed sales tax collections because of the different budgeting years.

Touching on another topic, the governor reemphasized that he thinks an institution should be started immediately in the Denver area to give two years of college training, including both college or a full four year metropolitan college, he said, is not the point for immediate decision.

Love also said he intends to make several major appointments shortly.

Terms of Chairman Henry Zarlengo of the Colorado Public Utilities Commission and President Arthur Ramsey of the Board of Land Commissioners expire tonight. The utilities commission pays $14,000 yearly. The land board carries a $9,000 salary. Both Ramsey and Zarlengo are Republicans.

Mesa College Will Get New Building

DENVER (AP) — Gov. John A. Love said today that Mesa College at Grand Junction will get money for a new buildings, even though it was not included in the budget he presented to the legislature Friday.

Without going into details at his news conference, the governor said that some money is available in the district and that the statewide committee administering the Federal Facilities Act already has made a grant to the college for the building.

These funds, he said, insure enough money to start the project and state money probably will not be needed until next year.

The governor said that if his program of increasing the cigarette tax and using the money to finance construction, including the right to issue anticipation warrants against expected revenue, is adopted by the Legislature, the state will have sufficient money to make a grant to Mesa College during next fiscal year.

Wyoming Asked to Boost Sales Tax

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — Gov. Cliff Hansen today said he would recommend that the 1965 Wyoming Legislature increase the state sales tax from two to three cents on the dollar for one year only.

Under the governor's proposal the tax increase would go into effect next July and expire on June 30th of 1966. It would produce an estimated $6,750,000 in the year's time.

The governor also said he will ask for an increase of the state beer tax from tow to six cents a gallon and would request the State Board of Equalization to increase the state property tax from one to two mills.

The beer tax would produce an estimated $380,000 during the coming biennium and the property tax increase would provide an extra $2,330,000. The property tax boost would also result in a larger share of auto tax receipts estimated at $160,000 for the two years.

The governor said his fiscal package would produce an additional $9,620,000 during the period.

Hanover News

By MRS. RUTH CHISMAN

A large crowd attended the Sunday School rally at the Hanover Community Church. I had a count of 152 when flokx of various places were being counted, and there may have been a few more. The count I have was: Peyton, 8; Security, 28; Black Forest, 32; Lytle, 10; Colorado Springs, 23, Littleton, 10; Woodland Park, 2; Ellicott, 4; Hanover, 40.

There were specials from Black Forest, Littleton, Hanover. Also Mr. Ingersol and Joyce Gianesin played a duet, Joyce on accordion and Mr. Ingersol on guitar. A duet "Back of the Clouds" by Dovie and Nettie Huffmaster, accompanied by Joyce Gianesin, a solo by the Rotz boy, accompanied by his father, a duet by Sevilla and Rosa Baker, accompanied by Nettie Huffmaster, also a number on electric guitar by a boy of Security. Immanuel Baptist Church. Election of officers was held. Karl Kerlin and Bill Baker were nominated. Karl Kerlin was elected president of the Rally for this year.

After the specials and election an inspiring message on Phillipians 3:13 and 14 was given by Rev. Perry Eppley, retired minister of Woodland Park. Reports also were given of the progress of the Sunday schools. Mrs. Avery, of Lytle, expressed thanks to all who helped raise Gift Stars to purchase the combination can opener, knife and scissor sharpener for Camp Iana. This will be very useful for camp. Mrs. Avery presented it Sunday, Jan. 10 to Mrs. Irene Vette, who is one of the kitchen committee at camp.

The Roy Rogers, Charles Chismans, Verne Houtchens, of Colorado Springs, and Harper Baker of Pueblo, who used to live here, also attended the Rally, also the Bud McGuire family of Security, our pastor for eight years.

Larry Owen and Bonnie Jean Barton were married at the Christian Church in Colorado Springs Saturday, Jan. 9, 1965, by the Rev. Warren Hile. The reception was held at the Knob Hill Community Center. Larry is the oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Owen of Squirrel Creek.

A large crowd attended the funeral of Ralph Clements Thursday at the Swan Funeral Home. Burial was in Evergreen Cemetery. Rev. Bud McGuire officiated.

Mr. and Mrs. Harper Baker and son of Pueblo visited at the Bill Bakers and attended the Rally. Ruth Chisman Monday until Thursday morning was in Pueblo at the Robert Chismans, so Marvin could stay home while his daddy was at work and his mother was in Mexico.

Chase and Charles Chisman Jr. arrived at Roy Chismans Sunday night from Texas for a short visit with relatives. Charles is on a 30-day furlough. His ship, the Kearsarge, recently returned to its home port, Long Beach, Calif. after six months in the East.

Dorothy Owen got to leave the hospital and attend Larry's wedding. Dorothy underwent surgery some time back. Ollie Hill was in the hospital for examination, but got to return home Sunday, Jan. 10.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Rehle, Virginia and Timmy, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Reble and Geraldine and Mrs. Maude Patterson drove to Morrison, Saturday, Jan. 9, and spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Wessleman.

Hanover News

By MRS. RUTH CHISMAN

A large crowd attended the Sunday School rally at the Hanover Community Church. I had a count of 152 when floks of various places were being counted, and there may have been a few more. The count I have was: Peyton, 8; Security, 28; Black Forest, 32; Lytle, 10; Colorado Springs, 23; Littleton, 10; Woodland Park, 2; Ellicott, 4; Hanover, 40.

There were specials from Black Forest, Littleton, Hanover. Also Mr. Ingersol and Joyce Gianestin played a duet, Joyce on accordion and Mr. Ingersol on guitar. A duet "Black of the Clouds" by Doyle and Nettie Huffmaster, accompanied by Joyce Gianestin, a solo by the Rotz boy, accompanied by his father, a duet by Sevilla and Rosa Baker, accompanied by Nettie Huffmaster, also a number on electric guitar by a boy of Security Immanuel Baptist Church. Election of officers was held. Karl Kerlin and Bill Baker were nominated. Karl Kerlin was elected president of the Rally for this year.

After the specials and election an inspiring message on Phillipians 3:13 and 14 was given by Rev. Jerry Eppley, retired minister of Woodland Park. Reports also were given of the progress of the Sunday schools.

Mrs. Avery, of Lytle, expressed thanks to all who helped save Gift Stars to purchase the combination can opener, knife and scissor sharpener for Camp Iana. This will be very useful for camp. Mrs. Avery presented it Sunday, Jan. 10 to Mrs. Irene Vette, who is one of the kitchen committee at camp.

The Roy Rogers, Charles Chismans, Verne Hutchens, of Colorado Springs, and Harper Baker of Pueblo, who used to live here, also attended the Rally, also the Bud McGuire family of Security, our pastor for eight years.

Larry Owen and Bonnie Jean Barton were married at the Christian Church in Colorado Springs Saturday, Jan. 9, 1965, by the Rev. Warren Hile. The reception was held at the Knob Hill Community Center. Larry is the oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Owen of Squirrel Creek.

A large crowd attended the funeral of Ralph Clements Thursday at the Swan Funeral Home. Burial was in Evergreen Cemetery. Rev. Bud McGuire officiated.

Mr. and Mrs. Harper Baker and son of Pueblo visited at the Bill Bakers and attended the Rally. Ruth Chisman Monday until Thursday morning was in Pueblo at the Robert Chismans, so Marvin could stay home while his daddy was at work and his mother was in Mexico.

Chase and Charles Chisman Jr. arrived at Rev Chismans Sunday night from Texas for a short visit with relatives. Charles is on a 30 day furlough. His ship, the Kearsarge, recently returned to its home port, Long Beach, Calif. after six months in the East.

Dorothy Owen got to leave the hospital and attend Larry's wedding. Dorothy underwent surgery some time back. Ollie Hill was in the hospital for examination, but got to return home Sunday, Jan. 10.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Rebie, Virginia and Timmy, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Rebie and Geraldine and Mrs. Maude Patterson drove to Morrison, Sunday, Jan. 9, and spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Wessleman.

Wyoming Asked to Boost Sales Tax

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — Gov. Cliff Hansen today said he would recommend that the 1965 Wyoming Legislature increase the state sales tax from two to three cents on the dollar for one year only.

Under the governor's proposal the tax increase would go into effect next July and expire on June 30th of 1966. It would produce an estimated $6,750,000 in the year's time.

The governor also said he will ask for an increase of the state beer tax from tow to six cents a gallon and would request the State Board of Equalization to increase the state property tax from one to two mills.

The beer tax would produce an estimated $380,000 during the coming biennium and the property tax increase would provide an extra $2,330,000. The property tax boost would also result in a larger share of auto tax receipts estimated at $100,000 for the two years.

The governor said his fiscal package would produce an additional $9,620,000 during the period.

U. N. Special Fund To Boost Spending

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The governing council of the U.N. Special Fund approved Wednesday a boost in its administrative budget for 1965. It includes a $143,000 rental item for new quarters in a skyscraper going up near U.N. headquarters.

After some debate and grumbling from France and the Soviet Union, the council approved a budget of $6.1 million, an increase of 33 per cent.

With the growing staff of the United Nations jamming the main Secretariat building, Secretary-General U Thant has asked the Special Fund, the expanded Technical Assistance Board and the U.N. Children's Fund to move out.

France's Maurice Viaud and the Soviet Union's E. N. Makeev questioned the feasibility of the move and the amount of the rent.

Four Men Are Killed In Explosion on Ship

ANTOFAGASTA, Chile (AP) — A crane's cable broke, dropping a propane gas cylinder into the hold of the Chilean freighter Maria Elizabeth Wednesday.

Other cylinders in the hold began exploding.

The Chilean navy said four men were killed and eight seriously injured.

"The figure may be higher," officials said. "We have not been able yet to determine how many of the men who were working aboard the ship are missing."

Some sources said there might be 30 or more dead.

Fair Housing Bill Offered In Legislature

By GORDON G. GAUSS

DENVER (AP)—A new Fair Housing bill was offered today in the Colorado House of Representatives which would cover sales of all property and would provide fines ranging forom $100 to $500 for violations.

The measure is stronger than the one offered last week in the Senate by Sen. Donald Kelley, R-Denver, a member of Governor Love's special committee studying housing.

Rep. Gerald Kopel, D-Denver, and 11 co-sponsors offered the new measure.

The co-sponsors all Democrats, are Phillip Massari of Trinidad, Betty Kirk West of Pueblo, Jerry Yost of Thornton, John S. Carroll of Westminster, and Charles DeMoulin, Ben Klein, Isaac Moore, Wayne Knox, Daniel Grove, Victor Grandy and Frank Anaya, all of Denver.

The bill offered by Kelley would not apply to houses sold and occupied by their owners but the new measure applies to all sales. The Kelley bill also contained no fines.

Among the bills introduced into the Senate was one by Richard F. Hobbs, D-Pueblo, which in effect would require all motorists to carry minimum public liability and property damage insurance. It would require that an individual have this insurance before he could obtain a driver's license.

Hobbs said it puts the insurance up to the individual.

"Hundreds of guys buy a $35 jalopy and can run into anyone with no responsibility. The man with a good car is left holding the bag."

He said his bill is drawn largely from Oregon's law.

Similar bills have failed to win approval in past sessions.

Sen. Ruth Stockton, R-Lakewood, introduced a measure to eliminate issuance of motor permits to anyone under 16 years of age. The minimum age is now 14. Existing licenses would remain in effect.

Rep. John G. Mackie, R-Longmont, offered a measure allowing voters in any county to decide at the 1966 election whether to eliminate the post of county superintendent of schools. Way for the elimination was opened when the voters adopted a constitutional amendment last fall.

Sen. Sam T. Taylor, D-Walsenburg introduced a measure providing for sale of state lands by sections—640 acres—rather than quarter sections — 160 acres. Taylor also offered a measure to raise salaries of land board members from $9,000 yearly to $11,000.

A measure offered by Sen. Frank L. Gill, R - Hillrose, would make underground water pumped to the surface or seeping to the surface subject to the same priorities of use as surface waters.

Boy Shot, Killed By Neighbor Boy

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A boy, 8, was shot and killed Wednesday by his neighbor, 5, police reported.

They said Michael Sullivan had died of shotgun wounds in the head and face after having been shot by Winston Burney Jr. during their lunch recess at elementary school.

The boys had quarreled over Burney's coat, police said. They said Burney had taken his father's shotgun from his living room, then stood on the front steps of his home and fired.

The boy will not be arrested because youngsters are not legally considered capable of forming intent until they are seven years old, officials said.

Baby More Difficult Than Training Lions

VENICE, Fla. (AP) — A pert Polish girl who has tamed scores of lions and tigers is taking a week off to train her 6-pound, 9-ounce boy, born Wednesday.

"Having a baby is considerably more complicated than working with the lions," she said through an interpreter at a hospital. "But I feel it was worth all the trouble."

A trouble it was, too, agreed Dr. Charles O. Becker, who said a translator was needed to aid in the delivery.

While Adela (Ada) Smeija, 24, and her boy, named Brunon Gerard, were doing fine, her husband, a clown with the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus, carried on with his act at Miami Beach.

Adela has been training wild animals for four years and is currently a member of the Polish National Circus.

More Flexible Trade Is Urged With Reds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Advocating a flexible trade policy toward the Reds, a State Department report suggested today that the Eastern European countries may be turning once again toward the West for a major share of their trade.

The report to Congress also disclosed that atomic power in 1964 to the list of Western items barred from shipment to the Communists.

What to do about East-West trade, now under review by the administration and Congress, also was discussed. A 14-year-old law controls exports of strategic goods to the Sino-Soviet bloc.

Lying to Police May Be Made State Felony

BOULDER (AP)—State legislation will be sought to make it a felony for a person to lie to a police officer during an investigation.

The Colorado District Attorneys Association voted Saturday to take this step, but only by a narrow margin, 17-16. Dist. Atty. Floyd Marks of Adams County said at the association's convention he would favor the proposal "only when you can guarantee that police reports are accurate."

Dist. Atty. Martin P. Miller of Arapahoe County, retiring as association president, said the threat of such a law would eliminate false statements in many cases.

The association also approved legislation to provide up to life terms for robbers, regardless of age, who use a mask or pretend to have a concealed weapon and also to allow judges to pass sentence on accused murderers who plead guilty, instead of providing jury trials in such cases.

Dist. Atty. Al Haas of Durango was elected president. Vice presidents elected included James Shelton of Greeley, Robert Russel of Colorado Springs, Rex Scott of Boulder and Bert Keating of Denver.

How to Cut Your Own Income Tax

By RAY DE CRANE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

The payment of unusually high medical expenses admittedly is a hard way to get a tax deduction. But don't overlook this possibility if your medical bills ran high in 1964.

Many taxpayers overlook this opportunity for a deduction, fearing the rules are too complex. You shouldn't. The extra effort required to learn the rules and furnish the information can be rewarding.

We discussed the special rules applicable to medical expenses for those over 65. For all others, medical expenses are not deductible until after they have exceeded 3 per cent of adjusted gross income. For example, if adjusted gross income is $10,000 the excess of medical expenses beyond $300 is deductible.

In totaling your medical expenses separate the cost of medicines and drugs from other items. Drugs may be included after their cost exceeds one per cent of income. In the $10,000 example, all drug costs beyond $100 are deductible.

Your medical expenses may be considered only in the year paid. You may take into account payments made in 1964 on the previous year's doctor's fee, but you may not consider the cost of 1964's operation if no payment has yet been made to the surgeon.

Include in your personal medical expense calculation the cost of any hospital or health insurance premiums, fees paid a doctor, dentist, optometrist, chiropractor, psychiatrist, Christian Science practitioner, hospital, mental institution, private duty nurse, and all expenses for laboratory fees, X rays, false teeth, eyeglasses, hearing aids and their maintenance, including batteries. List also the purchase price or rental of wheel chairs or crutches and the cost of an ambulance ride.

If you have a sufficiently high amount to call for a deduction don't forget to include your transportation expenses in obtaining medical care. This will include roundtrip bus, train or taxi fares to a doctor or dentist's office, hospital, clinic, etc. A recent IRS ruling permits a flat deduction of five cents per mile for use of your own car for such purposes.

You may include medical expenses paid for yourself, your spouse, dependent children, your parents if you are furnishing chief support or for any other person who would have qualified as a dependent had not he or she earned $600 last year.

Any reimbursement received from a hospital, health or accident insurance policy must be deducted from the cost of your medical expenses. If Blue Shield paid $300 of your $500 surgical fee last year only the $200 actually paid by you may be shown in your computation.

Here is a typical medical expense deduction for a family with income of $10,000:

Prescribed Drugs (Doctors' Pharmacy)	$125.32
Less 1 per cent of Adjusted Gross Income	100.00
Excess	25.32
Hospital & Surgical Insurance	216.84
Dr. W. D. Walker, M. D.	115.00
Dr. S. M. Sprague, D. D. S.	62.00
Transportation Expense (Taxi and bus)	10.85
Eyeglasses (Smith Optical Co.)	35.00
Total Medical Expense	$465.01
Less 3 per cent of Adjusted Gross Income	$300.00
Deductible	$165.01

Here are some often-asked questions in this area — and the the answers to them:

Q — May I include funeral expenses with my medical deduction?

A — Medical expenses cease at the moment of death. No burial expenses may be considered.

Q — I have a heart condition and my doctro prescribed three one-ounce drinks of whisky daily. May I count this as a medical expense?

A — Lucky you. I counts as a medical expense.

Q — My daughter who married in November was a dependent until the day of her marriage. She is filing a joint return with her husband. May I deduct a $300 orthodontist bill I paid for her early in 1964?

A — This is one of those exceptional cases where she otherwise would have qualified as your dependert had she not filed a joint return with her husband. You may claim her medical expense.

Q — I am a diabetic and my doctor requires that I eat special foods. Is the cost of these foods a medical deduction:

A — If these foods merely replace other foods in your diet they are not deductible. If they supplement regular food they ar deductible.

Criminals Are Being Taught To Be Artists

JACKSON, Mich. (AP) — Will learning to wield an artist's brush help criminals from using more deadly implements when they get out of prison?

The idea, says a psychologist, is that a prisoner tortured by pangs of hostility "works off these feelings on canvas before they develop into an explosive nature."

The program has been so successful that Dr. E. L. V. Shelley, supervisor of treatment for the State Corrections Department, hopes to expand it to other institutions.

Not only does painting help prisoners reduce hostility, Shelley says, but it also "helps them develop a sense of worthiness.

"They create something that other people recognize and appreciate," he explains. "Many convicts have feelings they don't know how to express or are afraid to express.

The class takes up to 25 students at a time. The best paintings are sent on exhibition tours. When some went to college campuses last year sales brought in about $1,000.

A foundation grant of $5,000 is being sought to buy art materials and establish a gallery at the Jackson institution.

Steam Room New Hollywood Status Symbol

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Back in the stone age of Hollywood's history, the status symbol was the tennis court. Then it became the swimming pool — the grander it was, the higher the status.

More recent times have brought the private projection room, the fully equipped soda fountain, the yacht — yachts lately have been out — the Palm Springs house — currently in — plus the shifting vogue in cars, ranging from custom jobs of obscure European make to the always acceptable Rolls-Royce.

Another wrinkle was the car telephone. This was pioneered by Frank Sinatra, a pace-setter in the field of status symbols — private plane, helicopter pad, etc.

All this is by way of introduction to the latest toy of the film famous: the steam room. Sinatra has one, natch. So does Glenn Ford. Dean Martin has been mulling one. Numerous other actors and producers have had steam rooms installed or planned. Some new homes in posh districts come equipped with saunas. They're a must for luxury Hollywood apartment buildings.

The cost for sweating it out, Hollywood style? It can range from $2,200 for a wood-lined cubicle with steam machine to $10,000 for a sumptuous steam room like the one built by television producer William Dozier.

One of the most popular of the Beverly Hills steam rooms is owned by Tony Owens, ebullient husband of Donna Reed and producer of her television series. I dropped by his house one afternoon and talked to him through a glass door as he took his daily steam. He was alone, which was unusual.

"When I get home at night, I never know who I'm going to find in here," he said.

A three-time visitor gets a towel with his name embroidered on it; Owens has a closet full of the towels and a rack for the most frequent patrons. Even the rack is subject to status.

Said Owens: "One day Eddie Fisher was taking a steam and he looked at the rack. 'I sing a better song than Dean Martin,' he said, and he placed his towel above Dean's on the rack. Now everybody wants top billing."

The producer pooh-poohs the notion that the steam is good for weight reduction.

"Drink a glass of water and you've got the fluids back again," he said.

"I take the steam because it makes me feel good. I've got a touch of rheumatism in my hip and the heat is great for it.

He Wants Taxpayers To Pay for Training

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Earl J. Barnes wants to cancel his 1960 adoption of five children. The reason: They don't love him, says Barnes.

Barnes is a 37-year-old fireman who, after he and his wife wed, adopted her five children by a prior marriage. He says she talked him into it.

Yvonne B. Barnes, 33, divorced Barnes in 1963, and was awarded $243.50 a month in child support.

Barnes, in a suit filed Wednesday, asked that the adoption be canceled and the $4,992 he has paid in child support be returned him. The children range in age from 9 to 16 years.

Udall Approves Fryingpan Cost Repayment Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall approved today a proposed repayment agreement with the South-eastern Colorado Water Conservancy District for water service from the Fryingpan-Arkansas project in Colorado.

The proposed contract will be sent to the reclamation bureau's regional director in Denver for execution with the district.

The contract will be the second largest ever entered into by the Reclamation Bureau for water service. Udall said it is designed to return at least $60 million to the government, plus interest on those costs which are allocated to municipal and industrial water supplies.

The only larger contract in the bureau's 62-year history was to irrigate the 400,000 acre Wastelands Water District in California.

Udall said the Colorado contract contains provisions for increasing the amount to be repaid to the government should costs rise significantly during the 15-year construction period. Estimated cost of the Fryingpan-Arkansas project is $170 million.

A separate contract will be entered into later if the bureau is called on to build a municipal and industrial water conveyance system to serve various communities in Colorado's Arkansas River Valley, Udal said.

Such a system, estimated to cost $14,661,000, would be built by the bureau only if the communities involved are enable to undertake its construction, he added.

"By the end of the repayment period, Udall said "these contracts could return $75 million or more to the government, plus interest on the municipal and industrial water component.

"The Fryingpan - Arkansas project would then rank among the three top reclamation developments in terms of dollar value of returns from the water users. And in addition to these returns, the balance of the project's reimbursable cost will — as usual — be paid off by hydro power revenues."

With the estimated construction costs running $169,950,000, plus $4,630,000 in interest during construction, estimated total cost is $174,535,000. Allocations are: Irrigation $69,946,000; power $62,049,000; municipal and industrial water $21,639,000; flood control $14,437,000; fish and wildlife $6,409,000; and recreation $55,000.

Except for certain amounts that will be paid by other water users, the district will repay $53,568,744 of the construction costs allocated to irrigation and — with interest — all of the basic $6,978,000 allocated to construction of municipal and industrial water supply facilities. The balance of $21,639,000 allocation for municipal and industrial supply facilities covers the conveyance system which may or may not be built later by the bureau.

The costs allocated to power will be repaid with interest from the proceeds of hydro-electric generation at project power plants. Power revenues also will repay $16,377,256 of costs allocated to irrigation.

Those costs allocated to flood control, fish and wildlife, and recreation are considered to be in the general public interest and are not reimbursable.

Landslide Demolishes Two Columbia Houses

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP) — The Mounted Police said today that a landslide had demolished two duplex houses in the coastal lumber town of Ocean Falls, B.C., 300 miles northwest of Vancouver.

There were no immediate reports of casualties.

Radio reports told of torrential rains and heavy snow runoffs due to high temperatures.

Cop Reprimanded For Offering Whisky

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — A police sergeant drew a strong reprimand last month, Chief Jesse Curry said, for offering whisky as a prize to the subordinate issuing the most traffic tickets.

Curry discussed the incident Wednesday after it was mentioned by City Councilman Joe Moody in a dispute over the Police Department.

Moody said earlier that official pressure on police to write traffic tickets takes time which should go into investigation of more serious law violations.

Four officers under command of the unnamed sergeant were reported to have issued 90 traffic tickets in three hours.

Curry said the sergeant offered a fifth of whisky as a prize. The sergeant was told "in strong words" that he had displayed poor judgment, Curry added.

RIVER GETS BUBBLE BATH

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) —To rid the St. Johns river of a heavy black oil scum left by a leaky oil tanker, the city fire department poured $24,000 worth of high-powered detergent on the river in the vicinity of the Jacksonville Shipyards.

"It worked like soap and water when you wash your hands," C. I. Stephens, superintendent of the shipyard, explained. The detergent acted to break up the molecular construction of the oil, thus dissolving it.

CLIMBS

TOKYO (AP) — A Japanese mountain climber has scaled a previously unconquered 22,637-foot Himalayan mountain, it was reported today.

The newspaper Asahi said Hiroaki Tamura, 27, climbed to the top of Mt. Pentang Karpo in Nepal last October.

Dividend Bonded Gas Set For New Site Opening

Five-thousand gallons of gasoline will be given away at Dividend Bonded Gas' fifth Colorado Springs location, on Circle Drive one block south of U.S. Highway 24, during grand opening festivities Friday and Saturday. In addition, Dividend will have free baloons, bubble gum and treats for the youngsters.

Grueskin opened the first Dividend outlet, at Cimarron Street and Nevada Avenue, in March, 1958. A second station was opened at Union Boulevard and Boulder Street 14 months later.

Then, in April, 1961, Grueskin threw away the keys to the station at 9th Street and West Colorado Avenue. The ceremonial key throwing follows the opening of each Dividend station, denoting its 24-hour service. In fact, since the first station opened in 1958, Dividend has only locked its doors once, that was on the day of funeral services for the late President Kennedy.

Fillmore and Prospects Streets serve as the location for Dividend in the northern end of the city. It opened in March, 1963. The latest addition to the successful gas business opened in December, 1964.

The secret to Dividend's success and tremendous growth has been in its fast service. Says Grueskin, "We specialize in service." With this in mind, Dividend employs 55 persons at the five stations, making sure that there's always someone waiting to tend to a customer's needs, whether it is gas and oil and a clean windshield, a check of air in the tires or just to have a payroll check cashed free. Dividend also offers free Gold Bond Stamps with every purchase.

The Dividend Store at Union Boulevard and Boulder Street was added to the chain of stations several months before the north end station was built. It features all types of automotive accessories, from spark plugs and oil to ice scrapers.

How good is Dividend gas? Grueskin says, "We have the finest gasoline available." Each station was built along the same lines, with 12 gas pumps and a small office building. Each of the five stations features the same prices, two cents cheaper than major brands.

Grueskin came to Colorado Springs from Sioux City, Iowa, where he worked in the cattle business, in January, 1958. He opened the first Dividend station and entered the retail gasoline sales business because, as he put it, "Colorado Springs looked like a growing community with a natural need for this type of outlet."

The building of new stations, almost one per-year, has been "a vote of confidence in the continued growth of the city."

He and his wife, Charlotte, along with their four children, live at 18 2nd St.

NEW YORK (AP) — Marion B. Folsom, former secretary of health, education and welfare, says the taxpayer — not the patient — should pay for hospital training and research programs.

Because these costs are used in determining the hospital rate structure, he said at a news conference Wdnesday, it has placed a heavy financial burden on patients and hospital insurance programs. Folsom is chairman of a New York state committee on hospital costs.

Iraq and Kurdish Forces Clash Again

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — About 40 Iraqi government troops have been killed in recent clashes with rebel Kurdish tribesmen in northern Iraq, informed sources report.

The clashes reportedly occurred after the Kurds established control over large areas in the Sulemania and Diala districts and imposed a curfew.

The rebels have demanded a measure of autonomy and a share of the country's oil revenues. An uneasy truce has been in effect since last February.

Palmer Lake Area

By MARIAN McINTYRE McDONOUGH — 481-2323

Friends of Mrs. Alex Manzaneras of Monument extended sympathy to her and the family at the death of her mother in Pueblo last week.

The sympatny of residents of the area is also extended to the family of Mrs. Nellie Waddill of Monument who died recently at a Colorado Springs hospital.

The Crawford family announced the engagement of Miss Beverly Crawford to D. Edward Kite on Sunday last. The couple plans to be married in March

Mr. and Mrs. William Dobson of Scott City, Kan., who were to spend the weekend with Mr. Dobson's brother-in-law and sister, Col. and Mrs. Carl F. Duffner, were unable to come because of illness.

The Palmer Lake Extension Homemakers Club will be hostesses to five of the county clubs at a regular meeting, covered dish luncheon and program on Friday, Jan. 15 at the Town Hall. The clubs attending are Eastonville, Black Forest, Cherry Homemakers and Monument. The business meeting will be at 10 a.m. followed by a program. Carl Mathis will present some of his pupils at the Lewis-Palmer High School in Monument in a selection of songs. Mathis will sing one solo. Mrs. Carol Jones, Mrs. Donna Edgett and Mrs. Jody Watkins will sing two numbers for the group. In the afternoon films on Civil Defense will be shown to the clubs.

Col. Hugh Nevins of Red Rocks Ranch met with an accident on Sunday and lost one of his thumbs. He has been at the United States Air Force Academy Hospital.

The annual meeting of Palmer Lake Historical Society will be held on Thursday evening, Jan. 21. All members are urged to attend. An interesting film, "The Pathfinders," borrowed from the State Historical Society will be shown to the group.

Expanded Space Flight Program Is Predicted

WASHINGTON (AP) — An expanded program of two-man space flights during the coming year was forecast today by Sen. Clinton P. Anderson, D-N.M.

"I look for more Gemini flights this year than first planned," Anderson, chairman of the Senate Space Committee, said after an organizational meeting of this group.

Gemini is the two-man space project which follows the initial solo Mercury orbits by U.S. astronauts.

Anderson also predicted that spending by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration will level off now at about $5 billion for the next several years.

He said initial proposals for the new space budget mounted as high as $13 billion for a year but have been trimmed.

The White House has announced a delay in President Johnson's space proposals until later this month. Initially the message was scheduled to reach Congress Friday.

Anderson said no successor has been named for Frank C. DiLuzio, staff director of the Senate Space Committee, who is resigning to head the office of Saline aWters in the Interior Department.

Udall Approves Fryingpan Cost Repayment Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall approved today a proposed repayment agreement with the South-eastern Colorado Water Conservancy District for water service from the Fryingpan-Arkansas project in Colorado.

The proposed contract will be sent to the reclamation bureau's regional director in Denver for execution with the district.

The contract will be the second largest ever entered into by the Reclamation Bureau for water service. Udall said it is designed to return at least $60 million to the government, plus interest on those costs which are allocated to municipal and industrial water supplies.

The only larger contract in the bureau's 62-year history was to irrigate the 400,000 acre Wastelands Water District in California.

Udall said the Colorado contract contains provisions for increasing the amount to be repaid to the government should costs rise significantly during the 15-year construction period. Estimated cost of the Fryingpan-Arkansas project is $170 million.

A separate contract will be entered into later if the bureau is called on to build a municipal and industrial water conveyance system to serve various communities in Colorado's Arkansas River Valley, Udal said.

Such a system, estimated to cost $14,661,000, would be built by the bureau only if the communities involved are unable to undertake its construction, he added.

"By the end of the repayment period, Udall said "these contracts could return $75 million or more to the government, plus interest on the municipal and industrial water component.

"The Fryingpan - Arkansas project would then rank among the three top reclamation developments in terms of dollar value of returns from the water users. And in addition to these returns, the balance of the project's reimbursable cost will — as usual — be paid off by hydro power revenues."

With the estimated construction costs running $169,950,000, plus $4,630,000 in interest during construction, estimated total cost is $174,535,000. Allocations are: Irrigation $69,946,000; power $62,049,000; municipal and industrial water $21,639,000; flood control $14,437,000; fish and wildlife $6,409,000; and recreation $55,000.

Except for certain amounts that will be paid by other water users, the district will repay $53,568,744 of the construction costs allocated to irrigation and — with interest — all of the basic $6,978,000 allocated to construction of municipal and industrial water supply facilities. The balance of $21,639,000 allocation for municipal and industrial supply facilities covers the conveyance system which may or may not be built later by the bureau.

The costs allocated to power will be repaid with interest from the proceeds of hydro-electric generation at project power plants. Power revenues also will repay $16,377,256 of costs allocated to irrigation.

Those costs allocated to flood control, fish and wildlife, and recreation are considered to be in the general public interest and are not reimbursable.

Landslide Demolishes Two Columbia Houses

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP) — The Mounted Police said today that a landslide had demolished two duplex houses in the coastal lumber town of Ocean Falls, B.C., 300 miles northwest of Vancouver.

There were no immediate reports of casualties.

Radio reports told of torrential rains and heavy snow runoffs due to high temperatures.

BUSINESS IS BOOMING — A grand opening for this fifth Dividend Bonded Gas station, on Circle Drive a block south of U. S. Highway 24, will be held this Friday and Saturday. At the opening, everyone who drives into Dividend will receive one gallon of gas free and could win up to 10 gallons. Also featured will be free balloons and treats for the kids. Cop Reprimanded For Offering Whisky

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — A police sergeant drew a strong reprimand last month, Chief Jesse Curry said, for offering whisky as a prize to the subordinate issuing the most traffic tickets.

Curry discussed the incident Wednesday after it was mentioned by City Councilman Joe Moody in a dispute over the Police Department.

Moody said earlier that official pressure on police to write traffic tickets takes time which should go into investigation of more serious law violations.

Four officers under command of the unnamed sergeant were reported to have issued 90 traffic tickets in three hours.

Curry said the sergeant offered a fifth of whisky as a prize. The sergeant was told "in strong words" that he had displayed poor judgment, Curry added.

RIVER GETS BUBBLE BATH

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) —To rid the St. Johns river of a heavy black oil scum left by a leaky oil tanker, the city fire department poured $24,000 worth of high-powered detergent on the river in the vicinity of the Jacksonville Shipyards.

"It worked like soap and water when you wash your hands," C. I. Stephens, superintendent of the shipyard, explained. The detergent acted to break up the molecular construction of the oil, thus dissolving it.

CLIMBS

TOKYO (AP) — A Japanese mountain climber has scaled a previously unconquered 22,637-foot Himalayan mountain, it was reported today.

The newspaper Asahi said Hiroaki Tamura, 27, climbed to the top of Mt. Pentang Karpo in Nepal last October.

Dividend Bonded Gas Set For New Site Opening

Five-thousand gallons of gasoline will be given away at Dividend Bonded Gas' fifth Colorado Springs location, on Circle Drive one block south of U.S. Highway 24, during grand opening festivities Friday and Saturday. In addition, Dividend will have free baloons, bubble gum and treats for the youngsters.

Grueskin opened the first Dividend outlet, at Cimarron Street and Nevada Avenue, in March, 1958. A second station was opened at Union Boulevard and Boulder Street 14 months later.

Then, in April, 1961, Grueskin threw away the keys to the station at 9th Street and West Colorado Avenue. The ceremonial key throwing follows the opening of each Dividend station, denoting its 24-hour service. In fact, since the first station opened in 1958, Dividend has only locked its doors once, that was on the day of funeral services for the late President Kennedy.

Fillmore and Prospects Streets serve as the location for Dividend in the northern end of the city. It opened in March, 1963. The latest addition to the successful gas business opened in December, 1964.

The secret to Dividend's success and tremendous growth has been in its fast service. Says Grueskin, "We specialize in service." With this in mind, Dividend employs 55 persons at the five stations, making sure that there's always someone waiting to tend to a customer's needs, whether it is gas and oil and a clean windshield, a check of air in the tires or just to have a payroll check cashed free. Dividend also offers free Gold Bond Stamps with every purchase.

The Dividend Store at Union Boulevard and Boulder Street was added to the chain of stations several months before the north end station was built. It features all types of automotive accessories, from spark plugs and oil to ice scrapers.

How good is Dividend gas? Grueskin says, "We have the finest gasoline available." Each station was built along the same lines, with 12 gas pumps and a small office building. Each of the five stations features the same prices, two cents cheaper than major brands.

Grueskin came to Colorado Springs from Sioux City, Iowa, where he worked in the cattle business, in January, 1958. He opened the first Dividend station and entered the retail gasoline sales business because, as he put it, "Colorado Springs looked like a growing community with a natural need for this type of outlet."

The building of new stations, almost one per-year, has been "a vote of confidence in the continued growth of the city."

He and his wife, Charlotte, along with their four children, live at 18 2nd St.

He Wants to Cancel Adoption of Five

NEW YORK (AP) — Marion B. Folsom, former secretary of health, education and welfare, says the taxpayer — not the patient — should pay for hospital training and research programs.

Because these costs are used in determining the hospital rate structure, he said at a news conference Wdnesday, it has placed a heavy financial burden on patients and hospital insurance programs. Folsom is chairman of a New York state committee on hospital costs.

Iraq and Kurdish Forces Clash Again

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — About 40 Iraqi government troops have been killed in recent clashes with rebel Kurdish tribesmen in northern Iraq, informed sources report.

The clashes reportedly occurred after the Kurds established control over large areas in the Sulemania and Diala districts and imposed a curfew.

The rebels have demanded a measure of autonomy and a share of the country's oil revenues. An uneasy truce has been in effect since last February.

Palmer Lake Area

By MARIAN McINTYRE McDONOUGH — 481-2323

Friends of Mrs. Alex Manzaneras of Monument extended sympathy to her and the family at the death of her mother in Pueblo last week.

The sympatny of residents of the area is also extended to the family of Mrs. Nellie Waddill of Monument who died recently at a Colorado Springs hospital.

The Crawford family announced the engagement of Miss Beverly Crawford to D. Edward Kite on Sunday last. The couple plans to be married in March

Mr. and Mrs. William Dobson of Scott City, Kan., who were to spend the weekend with Mr. Dobson's brother-in-law and sister, Col. and Mrs. Carl F. Duffner, were unable to come because of illness.

The Palmer Lake Extension Homemakers Club will be hostesses to five of the county clubs at a regular meeting, covered dish luncheon and program on Friday, Jan. 15 at the Town Hall. The clubs attending are Eastonville, Black Forest, Cherry Homemakers and Monument. The business meeting will be at 10 a.m. followed by a program. Carl Mathis will present some of his pupils at the Lewis-Palmer High School in Monument in a selection of songs. Mathis will sing one solo. Mrs. Carol Jones, Mrs. Donna Edgett and Mrs. Jody Watkins will sing two numbers for the group. In the afternoon films on Civil Defense will be shown to the clubs.

Col. Hugh Nevins of Red Rocks Ranch met with an accident on Sunday and lost one of his thumbs. He has been at the United States Air Force Academy Hospital.

The annual meeting of Palmer Lake Historical Society will be held on Thursday evening, Jan. 21. All members are urged to attend. An interesting film, "The Pathfinders," borrowed from the State Historical Society will be shown to the group.

An old riddle asks: "What has 30 elbows and 12 left feet?" All together now, teens, moan in unison, "Me!"

You mature unevenly, in starts and stops. During adolescence your limbs shoot out in a new spurt of growth. It takes time to get your new long arms and legs coordinated, and cooperating with the rest of you. Being clumsy is just part of the price of growing up.

You can prevent some of your humiliating moments by thinking before you act. Before you grab your coat at the next party and make like a matador, look about and see what you might send crashing down with a wave of your cape.

Limit your horseplay and wrestling matches to the great outdoors, and fight all impulses to prove your juggling skill with the hostess's favorite dinner plates.

Boys can increase their coordination by playing basketball, tennis and other skill sports.

Girls can learn exercises to lessen awkwardness and increase poise through charm courses. Ballet, too, is excellent for smoother and more graceful movements.

Hosts can help by buying sturdy furniture, locking ye olde china in the closet and generally making home less like an obstacle course.

But despite all the precautions, you'll still have your share of accidents. When accidents do happen, take these three steps.

1. Apologize. Simply and unemotionally let the host know that you're sorry and want to set things right. If you break something, replace it at the earliest moment.

If it's irreplaceable, or too expensive, express your sorrow and give what you can.

2. Break the ice. Until the group sees how you take the accident, they will be ill at ease. After apologizing, make a joke about it. Congratulate me, gang. I've just been nominated as 'Slob of the year!' "

"I've got to be an octopus to have so many awkward arms!" can also break the ice, or if you spill something, "Head for the hills; the dam broke!" is a fun way to ease the embarrassing tension.

3. Help clean up, or repair the damage. The sooner things are put to order, the sooner everyone will relax again.

If you are overcome with nervous laughter when you have an accident, leave the room at once. Return when you've regained control of yourself and say something like this, "Gosh, I'm sorry, Mrs. Long. When I'm embarrassed I really get the giggles. I'm awfully sorry about the mess. May I borrow a sponge to clean up a little?"

If your clothes are a mess because of the accident, clean up the best you can and go on with the evening. The others will overlook it if you do. It's use less to ruin your date's night or bug others by rushing home.

Here's the point: Don't take yourself too seriously; don't expect perfection. You won't be shot down when the awkward moments pile up.

Accept the fact that you'll have your share of "want to die nights, and preplan some dialogue to use at embarrassing moments. If you have a healthy sense of humor about yourself, you won't turn a minor mishap into a major crisis. (A Bell-McClure Syndicate Feature.)

Ele and Walt Dulaney welcome letters from readers. All will be answered in DATE-LINE or individually. Enclose a stamped, self - addressed envelope.

14 Japanese Seamen Are Missing at Sea

TOKYO (AP) — A Japanese patrol boat and a U.S. Air Force plane searched waters east of Tokyo Bay today for 14 seamen missing after their Nationalist Chinese freighter broke up in rough seas.

The Maritime Safety Agency said 23 of the 7,198-ton freighter Grand's 43 crewmen were rescued and six bodies were recovered.

Nine of the rescued crewmen were heading for San Francisco aboard the American freighter Japan Bear.

Countless Good Alternatives Replace "Smear"

By H. L. HUNT

The word "smear has an angry sound.

The cry of smear is frequently used by individuals and groups in offering defenses which take full advantage of the democratic judicial processes.

Judges get tired of hearing the word "smear" and the public is bored with seeing it in print.

There are many excellent words of highly-accurate meaning which convey the same impression for which "smear" is intended.

Everyone understands "defame"; "downgrade" is simple; "degrade" sounds as though it was factual about something that has happened, but it can be used. "Discredit" could be applied to those who have been afforded credit. "Belittle" could fit a person who has been partially smeared.

Anyone suffering a slight persecution complex who does not want to complain of being the victim of a smear could prepare an arsenal of words with a choice of the following or other terms some of them suggest:

Countless persons are going to be far happier after they have conferred with friends and selected good alternates for "smear."

Prof Becomes Troubleshooter On Campus

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — A sociology professor who has researched human behavior in disasters, riots and panics assumed a trouble-shooter role Wednesday on the restless Berkeley campus of the University of California.

Dr. Neil Smelser, 34, was assigned to keep in touch with the problem-plagued, among the 21,400 students, and try to resolve the problems before they erupt into demonstrations.

Last October, police arrested more than 800 demonstrators — dragging many limply away — from the steps of Sproul Hall, the administration building. It was a tumultuous end of a sit-in protesting rules limiting on-campus advocacy of such activities as civil rights work in the South.

UC's new acting chancellor, Martin Meyerson, who replaced on Jan. 2 a chancellor criticized for his interpretation of the rules, created the new post for Smelser. It is assistant to the chancellor in charge of student political activity.

Smelser's powers are primarily advisory but Meyerson said Smelser will "promote political activities with the widest diversity of content and style."

Meyerson provoked laughter at a meeting of 300 faculty members when he pointed out that Smelser has written books dealing with "panics, riots and reform movements."

Last September at Montreal, Smelser gave a report on which he had worked six years on how people act in disasters. It involved 18 months of research on "social aspects of nuclear attack and recovery."

Rebelling students, led by Mario Savio, 22, a junior philosophy major, called a recess in the UC demonstrations after Meyerson was appointed and took such swift moves as permitting students open discussions on the steps of Sproul Hall.

Meyerson told the faculty members that Smelser, who holds degrees from Harvard and Oxford, will receive and consider student proposals on political action and try to resolve differences peacefully.

Meyerson's predecessor, Chancellor Edward W. Strong, was accused by some critics of remaining too aloof from the students. Strong asked and got a leave of absence to recover from illness but has said he hopes to return to his post.

Still to be resolved is the plea by the Savio-led Free Speech Movement for dismissal of charges against the Sproul Hall sit-in demonstrators.

On Jan. 26 the demonstrators — including 590 students —are scheduled to begin entering pleas in Berkeley Municipal Court.

The charges variously involve trespassing, refusal to disperse and resisting arrest.

One of Gunman's Victims Dies

GARDENA, Calif. (AP) — One of 29 persons whom police say were shot by a berserk gunman died Wednesday night at a hospital.

He was Arthur Adrian Archibald, 73, of Burbank. Police said he was one of the many wounded when Louis Koullapis, 70, shot up three poker parlors early Tuesday.

Archibald was in the Rainbow Club when the gunfire began.

Koullapis has been hospitalized with a broken collar bone which police say he suffered when they wrestled him to the ground 10 minutes after the shooting.

Police say Koullapis emptied six guns into the poker parlors before he fled. He was captured near his home.

Acquaintances of Koullapis, a retired machinist, described him as a loner.

Hospital Director Was Last to Know

GRAND JUNCTION (UPI)— Dr. J.W. Standeven, director of the Veterans Administration Hospital at Grand Junction, was one of the last to know that the VA planned to close his hospital.

"It's a little embarrassing," he said Tuesday. "I've only heard the news this morning on the radio."

The VA announced it would close 14 hospitals and 17 regional offices across the country in an economy move.

Dr. Standeven said the 152-bed Grand Junction hospital, completed in 1949, had 123 patients at present and a staff of 178.

Another hospital in the Rocky Mountain area to be axed was at Fort Bayard, N.M. Officials said they also would close the VA regional office at Cheyenne, Wyo., and move its operations to Denver.

Six-Month Marriage Fails for Oldsters

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — "I thought I was getting a sweetheart," said Jacob Brash in court, "but I didn't get one.

"I was warm, sweet and affectionate. But she chased me away. She even hit me in the mouth. She's larger than I.

"I wanted a sweetheart, not a friend."

Superior Court granted Brash an annulment Wednesday on the ground the six-month marriage to Mrs. Helen Brash was not consumated.

Cancer Prediction Research Conducted

DENVER (AP) — Dr. Geno Saccomanno of St. Mary Hospital at Grand Junction described today experiments he has been making in efforts to predict the possibility of lung cancer developing.

He said in an interview the test "seems to work" on uranium miners he has studied during the last seven years. He said the experiments also might be used to predict the outbreak of mouth cancer.

The experiment involves immersing the sputum of a patient in a 50 per cent alcohol solution.

Dr. Saccomanno said possibly five more years of laboratory work will be needed to say positively the test works. He said the test is similar to the smear test given women to detect the possibility of cervical cancer.

Dr. Saccomanno came here for the Denver Dental Society's midwinter meeting.

Boys can increase their coordination by playing basketball, tennis and other skill sports.

Girls can learn exercises to lessen awkwardness and increase poise through charm courses. Ballet, too, is excellent for smoother and more graceful movements.

Hosts can help by buying sturdy furniture, locking ye olde china in the closet and generally making home less like an obstacle course.

But despite all the precautions, you'll still have your share of accidents. When accidents do happen, take these three steps.

1. Apologize. Simply and unemotionally let the host know that you're sorry and want to set things right. If you break something, replace it at the earliest moment.

If it's irreplaceable, or too expensive, express your sorrow and give what you can.

2. Break the ice. Until the group sees how you take the accident, they will be ill at ease. After apologizing, make a joke about it. Congratulate me, gang. I've just been nominated as 'Slob of the year!' "

"I've got to be an octopus to have so many awkward arms!" can also break the ice, or if you spill something, "Head for the hills; the dam broke!" is a fun way to ease the embarrassing tension.

3. Help clean up, or repair the damage. The sooner things are put to order, the sooner everyone will relax again.

If you are overcome with nervous laughter when you have an accident, leave the room at once. Return when you've regained control of yourself and say something like this, "Gosh, I'm sorry, Mrs. Long. When I'm embarrassed I really get the giggles. I'm awfully sorry about the mess. May I borrow a sponge to clean up a little?"

If your clothes are a mess because of the accident, clean up the best you can and go on with the evening. The others will overlook it if you do. It's useless to ruin your date's night or bug others by rushing home.

Here's the point: Don't take yourself too seriously; don't expect perfection. You won't be shot down when the awkward moments pile up.

Accept the fact that you'll have your share of "want to die nights, and preplan some dialogue to use at embarrassing moments. If you have a healthy sense of humor about yourself, you won't turn a minor mishap into a major crisis. (A Bell-McClure Syndicate Feature.)

14 Japanese Seamen Are Missing at Sea

TOKYO (AP) — A Japanese patrol boat and a U.S. Air Force plane searched waters east of Tokyo Bay today for 14 seamen missing after their Nationalist Chinese freighter broke up in rough seas.

The Maritime Safety Agency said 23 of the 7,198-ton freighter Grand's 43 crewmen were rescued and six bodies were recovered.

Nine of the rescued crewmen were heading for San Francisco aboard the American freighter Japan Bear.

Countless Good Alternatives Replace "Smear"

By H. L. HUNT

The word "smear has an angry sound.

The cry of smear is frequently used by individuals and groups in offering defenses which take full advantage of the democratic judicial processes.

Judges get tired of hearing the word "smear" and the public is bored with seeing it in print.

There are many excellent words of highly-accurate meaning which convey the same impression for which "smear" is intended.

Everyone understands "defame"; "downgrade" is simple; "degrade" sounds as though it was factual about something that has happened, but it can be used. "Discredit" could be applied to those who have been afforded credit. "Belittle" could fit a person who has been partially smeared.

Anyone suffering a slight persecution complex who does not want to complain of being the victim of a smear could prepare an arsenal of words with a choice of the following or other terms some of them suggest:

Countless persons are going to be far happier after they have conferred with friends and selected good alternates for "smear."

Prof Becomes Troubleshooter On Campus

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — A sociology professor who has researched human behavior in disasters, riots and panics assumed a trouble-shooter role Wednesday on the restless Berkeley campus of the University of California.

Dr. Neil Smelser, 34, was assigned to keep in touch with the problem-plagued, among the 21,400 students, and try to resolve the problems before they erupt into demonstrations.

Last October, police arrested more than 800 demonstrators — dragging many limply away — from the steps of Sproul Hall, the administration building. It was a tumultuous end of a sit-in protesting rules limiting on-campus advocacy of such activities as civil rights work in the South.

UC's new acting chancellor, Martin Meyerson, who replaced on Jan. 2 a chancellor criticized for his interpretation of the rules, created the new post for Smelser. It is assistant to the chancellor in charge of student political activity.

Smelser's powers are primarily advisory but Meyerson said Smelser will "promote political activities with the widest diversity of content and style."

Meyerson provoked laughter at a meeting of 300 faculty members when he pointed out that Smelser has written books dealing with "panics, riots and reform movements."

Last September at Montreal, Smelser gave a report on which he had worked six years on how people act in disasters. It involved 18 months of research on "social aspects of nuclear attack and recovery."

Rebelling students, led by Mario Savio, 22, a junior philosophy major, called a recess in the UC demonstrations after Meyerson was appointed and took such swift moves as permitting students open discussions on the steps of Sproul Hall.

Meyerson told the faculty members that Smelser, who holds degrees from Harvard and Oxford, will receive and consider student proposals on political action and try to resolve differences peacefully.

Meyerson's predecessor, Chancellor Edward W. Strong, was accused by some critics of remaining too aloof from the students. Strong asked and got a leave of absence to recover from illness but has said he hopes to return to his post.

Still to be resolved is the plea by the Savio-led Free Speech Movement for dismissal of charges against the Sproul Hall sit-in demonstrators.

On Jan. 26 the demonstrators — including 590 students —are scheduled to begin entering pleas in Berkeley Municipal Court.

The charges variously involve trespassing, refusal to disperse and resisting arrest.

One of Gunman's Victims Dies

GARDENA, Calif. (AP) — One of 29 persons whom police say were shot by a berserk gunman died Wednesday night at a hospital.

He was Arthur Adrian Archibald, 73, of Burbank. Police said he was one of the many wounded when Louis Koullapis, 70, shot up three poker parlors early Tuesday.

Archibald was in the Rainbow Club when the gunfire began.

Koullapis has been hospitalized with a broken collar bone which police say he suffered when they wrestled him to the ground 10 minutes after the shooting.

Police say Koullapis emptied six guns into the poker parlors before he fled. He was captured near his home.

Acquaintances of Koullapis, a retired machinist, described him as a loner.

Hospital Director Was Last to Know

GRAND JUNCTION (UPI)— Dr. J.W. Standeven, director of the Veterans Administration Hospital at Grand Junction, was one of the last to know that the VA planned to close his hospital.

"It's a little embarrassing," he said Tuesday. "I've only heard the news this morning on the radio."

The VA announced it would close 14 hospitals and 17 regional offices across the country in an economy move.

Dr. Standeven said the 152-bed Grand Junction hospital, completed in 1949, had 123 patients at present and a staff of 178.

Another hospital in the Rocky Mountain area to be axed was at Fort Bayard, N.M. Officials said they also would close the VA regional office at Cheyenne, Wyo., and move its operations to Denver.

Six-Month Marriage Fails for Oldsters

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — "I thought I was getting a sweetheart," said Jacob Brash in court, "but I didn't get one.

"I was warm, sweet and affectionate. But she chased me away. She even hit me in the mouth. She's larger than I.

"I wanted a sweetheart, not a friend."

Superior Court granted Brash an annulment Wednesday on the ground the six-month marriage to Mrs. Helen Brash was not consumated.

Cancer Prediction Research Conducted

DENVER (AP) — Dr. Geno Saccomanno of St. Mary Hospital at Grand Junction described today experiments he has been making in efforts to predict the possibility of lung cancer developing.

He said in an interview the test "seems to work" on uranium miners he has studied during the last seven years. He said the experiments also might be used to predict the outbreak of mouth cancer.

Dr. Saccomanno said possibly five more years of laboratory work will be needed to say positively the test works. He said the test is similar to the smear test given women to detect the possibility of cervical cancer.

Dr. Saccomanno came here for the Denver Dental Society's midwinter meeting.

Viet Cong Flee Attack by Loyal Troops

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — An attack by 1,200 Vietnamese soldiers on a Viet Cong concentration 140 miles southwest of Saigon today resulted in 11 Communists killed and 12 taken prisoner.

Helicopters flew the Vietnamese into the Soc Trang area for an assault on an estimated 800 Communist guerrillas. Reports said the Viet Cong did not stand and fight, and were fleeing.

Most of the Communist dead apparently resulted from air strikes preceding the troop attack. No casualties were reported among the government forces.

Two U.S. Army men were injured today when their single-engine plane crash-landed at a rubber plantation south of Tay Ninh.

Army reports said the plane, on a reconnaissance mission suffered an engine failure. The plane was destroyed.

About 20 heavily armed Viet Cong attacked a police headquarters guarding the Saigon University's faculties in Thu Duc, six miles from the capital last night. One policeman was killed and another wounded.

Meanwhile, Premier Tran Van Huong in a broadcast said that "every complaint and point of concern has been erased." He obviously was referring to the recent dispute between army leaders and civilian politicians.

Huong appealed for support to build a free Viet Nam and urged a return to normal life.

His appeal followed a compromise solution of the political crisis between the civilian administration and the military high command. But it was apparent that he had not reached a reconciliation with the Buddhists who have been trying to overthrow him.

He said "the government once again reaffirms its strict respect of freedom of worship. Any rumors contradictory to this policy are only deliberate and malevolent lies by extremist elements. . ."

About 1,000 persons demonstrated against Huong today in Da Nang but dispersed when told that rangers would be used against them. It was the third day of anti-government demonstrations in Da Nang.

An American spokesman announced U.S. officers will move back into their quarters in downtown Saigon Friday. Two-thirds of the 120 rooms shattered by a Viet Cong terrorist bomb Christmas Eve have been repaired. Two Americans died in the explosion.

Breakthrough in Immigration Law Expected

By JOHN CHADWICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sponsors of legislation recommended by President Johnson to revamp the nation's immigration law expressed guarded optimism today about making a breakthrough in the obstacle-ridden field.

Johnson's key proposal was to do away with an immigration quota system based on the national origins of the U.S. population in 1920. The system favors immigrants from northern and western Europe over those from other parts of the world.

In a special message Wednesday he urged Congress to abolish this system over a five-year period and allow admission of immigrants on the basis of needed work skills, family relationships and priority of registration.

Johnson's predecessors — John F. Kennedy, Dwight D. Eisenhower and Harry S. Truman — tried without success to persuade Congress to eliminate or to overhaul the national origins quota system.

Critics contend it discriminates against Italians, Greeks and other southeastern Europeans — to say nothing of Asians.

Whether Johnson will make any headway remains to be seen. But one Senate source said that he understands "the push is on this year."

In the last Congress, a virtually identical bill submitted by Kennedy was backed by Johnson but got nowhere.

A House Judiciary subcommittee headed by Rep. Michael A. Feighan, D-Ohio, held hearings near the end of last year's session but took no action. Feighan is an outspoken foe of the legislation.

However, Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, said he is optimistic about getting the measure before the House for a vote this year.

Comedy Attempt Blasted On Broadway

By WILLIAM GLOVER

NEW YORK (AP) — Because of a woeful lack of judgment by everyone concerned, "The Family Way" premiered Wednesday night at Broadway's Lyceum Theater.

The sniggering attempt at comedy was written by Ben Starr, until now a radio-television writer. It was staged by Michael Gordon, director of movies starring Doris Day and Rock Hudson. The guilty quartet of producers include Leonard Sillman, who has done better things before; Eddie White, Sandy Farber and Ann Rork.

Involved in acting out the dim-witted, blatant and tasteless charade about a young widow who is determined by hook or crook to find a new daddy for her 8-year-old son are Jack Kelly, formerly video's "Maverick." Collin Wilcox, Martha Greenhouse and Fritzi Burr. Michael Kearney plays juvenile precocity with ghoulish realism.

VA Says Hospital Service Not Impaired

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Veterans Administration has promised that essential services won't be impaired by its order to close 11 hospitals, 4 homes and 17 regional offices.

VA Administrator William J. Driver said a June 30 target date has been set for the shutdown.

Any patients remaining in the faculities will be transferred to other installations, he said, and the 2,974 beds involved in the hospital closings will be relocated at other VA hospitals.

Affected employes, Driver said, will be offered jobs in the VA system.

The reorganization is designed to save more than $23 million annually.

VIENNA — Austria will cut a road through Brenner Pass.

JA Delegates Will Meet In Denver

Forty teenage delegates representing the local Junior Achievement program will meet with similar delegates from Boulder, Denver, and Loveland at the University of Denver Student Union Building Saturday, for the annual Achiever Management Conference.

The conference is part of Junior Achievement's business program, a National economic education program, designed to give high school students an opportunity to gain an understanding of business know - how through practical "learn by doing" experience.

Morning sessions will open with speakers and discussion groups. Among the topics to be covered in these discussion groups are Personnel, defining some problems and suggesting possible solutions; Management, its functions and responsibilities; and Profits, definition and benefits derived.

The purpose of these discussion groups is to have achievers meet and talk about various phases of their JA company operations and cover some of the basic problems confronting their respective companies.

Afternoon sessions include workshops, problem solving, and reports with the day's activities concluding with a banquet and dance.

During the banquet each area's Miss JA will be introduced with one of these persons being named Miss Mountain States JA during the dance and following personal interviews with a panel of judges. The finalists of the local Miss JA contest conducted by the Achievers' Association were Stephanie Funk, Janel Karper, Linda Miller, Carol Seymour, and Valerie Ward. Miss JA of Colorado Springs will be announced at the banquet Saturday evening.

Outstanding Citizen of Florence Named

The annual Florence Chamber of Commerce award to an outstanding citizen of the community was awarded Wednesday at the annual banquet of the chamber at the Florence Elks Club.

Recipient of this year's award was John J. Fabrizio, recently retired businessman and longtime civic leader who was born in Coal Creek in 1893 and who has lived his entire life in Fremont County.

A graduate of McCandless High School in Florence in 1912, Fabrizio and his brother, Mike operated a bottling and distributing company from 1921 to 1933 and was distributor of Coors beer here from 1933 until his retirement March 1, 1964.

A veteran of World War I, Fabrizio has served as mayor of the city of Florence and for many years was a member of the Florence Public library board.

He is a past exalted ruler of Florence Elks Lodge No. 611 and for many years was a local chairman of the Fryingpan-Arkansas diversion project and its fund - raising activities.

A long - time member of the Florence Lions Club, Fabrizio has also been active on the St. Joseph Hospital board and the board of the Florence Chamber of Commerce.

In addition to serving as mayor of Florence for one term, Fabrizio also served several terms as councilman and was an expert on the city's water system and its functions.

Manitou Police Have Busy Month

Of this total, 49 arrests were for traffic violations and 10 for violation of city ordinances. Three persons were arrested for investigation and two for other law enforcement departments.

Twenty - six warning tickets were issued, there were two escorts and 49 special assign - ments.

In December there were four thefts under $50, one over $50 and three cases of malicious mischief.

Reports were made on 12 accidents and three dog complaints were answered. There were 155 radio calls and 99 complaints answered.

Montell L. Dunn, police magistrate, tried 44 cases in December. Appearance bonds forfeited totaled $135, $977.50 in fines were paid and $1,120 in fines assessed.

Reading Signs Not Taken As Speed Test by Judge

In a lengthy companion trial Wednesday in Municipal Court, a witness said he could read signs on the Free Press building, therefore the car he was riding in couldn't have been going more than 50 miles an hour.

The trials were those of Henry Bailey, 46, Denver, charged with injury to city property and taking the right of way, and Raymond Dukes, 18, 720 S. Cascade Ave., charged with damage to city property and careless driving.

Bailey was represented by Ben Fann and Dukes by Raymond Deutch.

The case involved an accident Dec. 31 in front of the Free Press building. Bailey was westbound on Colorado Avenue, preparing to turn left onto Sahwatch Street, when he was struck by Dukes' car, eastbound on Colorado Avenue.

Dukes said Bailey did not have his turn signal on when he came over the crest of the viaduct and first noticed him. He said he "looked" like he was going to turn left, so he put his foot on the brake. Then it appeared Bailey was stopped, so he lifted his foot off the brake, continued on and collided with Bailey as he turned left.

Dukes estimated his own speed at between 35 and 40 miles an hour, and Bailey's at five miles when he first saw him some 200 or more feet from the light.

"You saw Bailey going five miles an hour, you were going between 35 and 40, he was the same distance from the light as you, yet you reached it at the same time?" Fann asked. "Are you sure you weren't going maybe 50 or more?" Dukes said no.

Gale Dixon, a passenger in Dukes' car, also said Bailey did not have his turn signal on, that Dukes' speed was between 30 and 40 because he could read the signs on the Free Press building, that if they had been going past 50, he couldn't read signs.

"What signs did you read on the Free Press building," Fann asked, and Dixon said: "Free Press."

"Then you were reading the building, not watching Bailey's car?" Fann asked. Dixon said he was reading the signs at an angle.

He also said Dukes swerved to the right as Bailey appeared to be stopped, and after the impact Bailey told them that if they'd kept in their lane, the accident wouldn't have taken place.

Bailey testified that he saw Dukes' car some 200 feet away as he approached the light at about five miles an hour. He estimated Dukes' speed at between 45 and 50. He said his left turn signal was on, and he tried to speed up when Dukes, some 100 feet away, swerved to the right, striking his car. He said he was almost "finished" with his turn when Dukes swerved in his direction.

Deutch said in closing that "if — if — the speed at which Dukes was driving interferred with Bailey's ability to yield the right of way. . ." Judge Asher cut him off here, pointing out he was expanding his argument into Fann's case, and requested him to confine himself to his own case. Fann charged that Dukes' admission that he was going twice the prescribed speed limit resulted in a loss of his right of way.

Judge Asher ruled that Dukes was guilty on both charges. He imposed a $250 fine on the injury to city property charge and a $50 fine on the careless driving charge. Bailey was found not guilty on both counts.

Space Heater Stolen From House

Landmarks Preservation Committee Formed Here

A local Landmarks Preservation Committee was organized at a meeting Wednesday at Ruth's Oven Restaurant.

"More than 70 United States municipalities have adopted legislation protecting landmarks and historical districts," said Harold Seely of the Senior League of the Pikes Peak Region, who was in charge of the meeting. He cited public and private efforts for this purpose in Milwaukee, Philadelphia, Providence, Boston, Chicago, St. Louis, Atlanta, New Orleans and San Francisco.

A. Earl Bryson, chairman, Senior League Community Services Committee and member of SPABA, noted the passing of the Antlers Hotel, the Trianon, and Coburn Library and Perkins Hall at Colorado College. "This is not a local problem," he said. Enormous growth, more intensive use of land, urban renewal and construction of new roads have all contributed to the problem.

There seems to be now "a cult for living in the present," Bryson said.

"A landmark," he continued, "is any conspicuous object of land that marks a locality, or any event that marks a turning point. It is what gives character to a community," he added.

Criteria for selecting landmarks, said Bryson, should include appeal to the whole community, and maturity or age. Scenic landmarks such as mountains should be included, as well as those with historic value.

"We will have to look to the public authorities," he said. He suggested a Landmarks Trust for the administration of contributions. He also mentioned the need for education of the community.

The meeting was a result of a recent resolution passed by the Senior League of the Pikes Peak Region, which called for a study of means to perpetuate "local and area landmarks of historic, scenic or cultural value."

The name Landmarks Preservation Committee tentatively was adopted, and it was agreed that the persons present would form the committee.

Named to a sub-committee for the selection of landmarks were: Marshall Sprague, Byron L. Akers, and Carroll B. Malone. Sprague attended as a representative of the Historical Society of the Pikes Peak Region, and Akers and Malone as representatives of the Senior League of the Pikes Peak Region.

A sub-committee for ways and means of implementing preservation was also named. Members are to be Bryson, City Councilman Harold Hawks, and Miss Dorothy E. Smith, curator, Pioneer Museum.

Sprague suggested that a booklet about area landmarks should precede acquisition of them.

Hawks suggested plaques emphasizing the history of gold mining, and resultant growth of the area; and also plaques marking the places where noted music composers lived.

G. E. Weindenhaft, supervisor, Pike National Forest, mentioned the Mission 66 program of registering historic buildings, sites and scenic areas as national landmarks. Pikes Peak became a national registered landmark last summer. He said his greatest problem was preservation of the top. Possible projects are the Old Stage Road and the Gold Camp Road. "We need information on specific landmarks," said Weidenhaft.

Henry E. Couplane, also representing the Historical Society of the Pikes Peak Region, suggested recording location and date begun and ended for each landmark, for future referece.

The following persons, representing the following organizations, were also present: Lucy M. Lennox, Colonial Dames, an Kinnikinnik Chapter, D.A.R.; Robert Muir, American Institute of Architects; Lorraine Burgess; Mrs. Dale Giberson and Mrs. George McCargo, Zebulon Pike Chapter, D.A.R.; and Lester Griswold, Senior League of the Pikes Peak Region.

Hawks Featured On Magazine Article

The article says that Hawks believes the two pressing needs of municipal government are "Legislation to permit city-county legal collection of a sales tax for city county revenue, and readjustment of city assessments on real property."

Sheriff Gets Report Of Stolen Car

A 1959 Chevrolet belonging to R. C. Rayburn, 1207 Houston Ave., was stolen Wednesday night, the sheriff's department reported this morning.

Deputy Sheriff Lee Quein said the vehicle was parked in front of Rayburn's home and had the keys in it. It is a four-door sedan, color yellow with a 1965 Colorado license, but the owner did not know the number.

Springs Dentist Honored by Lutheran Church

Dr. Robert E. Ehlert, Colorado Springs dentist since 1939, was honored Wednesday night for 25 years of service to First Lutheran Church. The occasion was his retirement from the church council on the completion of two consecutive three-year terms, maximum permitted under the new church constitution.

Dr. Ehlert has been vice chairman of the council, leading lay position in the church. He had served several terms previously as a member of the church council.

In addition, Dr. Ehlert was for 10 years director of the senior choir and he has been chairman of almost every key committee in the church, especially education, evangelism and stewardship.

He has been called on frequently to supply to pulpit for Lutheran churches in Canon City, Calhan and Pueblo as well as Colorado Springs and he has often assisted in worship services as liturgist. He is a popular speaker for youth church groups.

Dr. Ehlert has served for 10 years on the executive board of the Rocky Mountain Synod, Lutheran Church in America, and has been a frequent delegate to its annual conventions.

A graduate of the University of Minnesota, Dr. Ehlert came here from Minneapolis directly after graduating from dental school. He served as a captain in the 70th Division Artillery for four years, seeing combat in the European Theater.

Dr. Ehlert resides at 1318 East Madison Avenue.

1,143 Persons Visit Manitou Library

There were 1,143 visitors to the Manitou Springs Public Library in December.

Of this total, 139 visited in the evening.

During this month, 1,258 books circulated, 15 new cards were issued and $17.37 in fines were paid, reports Librarian Helen B. Hill.

Dr. C. L. Horn Speaker For CC Groundbreaking

Dr. Charles L. Horn of Minneapolis, president of the Olin Foundation, will deliver the address Friday morning at groundbreaking ceremonies for Colorado College's Willis R. Armstrong Hall of Humanities, made possible by a $2,250,000 grant from Olin.

Ceremonies get under way at 9:30 a.m. in the Atrium of the Charles Leaming Tutt Library. Groundbreaking will follow at the site of the new building. The public is invited to attend.

The other speakers are Dr. James O. Wynn of New York, vice president and general counsel of the Olin Foundation; W. Le Hill '48 of Boulder, president of the Colorado College Alumni Association; and Dr. Lloyd E. Worner '42, president of the college.

The Rev. Kenneth W. F. Burton, associate professor of religion and minister of Shove Chapel, will give the invocation.

Construction on the four-floor building will get under way immediately. When completed in 1966, it will be the largest building on the Colorado College campus.

The new building is named for the late Willis R. Armstrong who served as a trustee of the college for 54 years. It will house departments of the humanities division and the college's administrative offices.

Armstrong Hall will be located on the northeast corner of Cascade Avenue and Cache la Poudre.

Announcement of the $2,500,000 Olin grant was made last Sept. 15 by Dr. Horn at fall convocation. It was the second major grant from the Foundation and the largest single gift in the history of the college. In 1960, Olin announced a grant of $1,520,000 to the college for the construction of the Olin Hall of Science, dedicated two years ago.

Dr. Horn, a scholar and conservationist, has been a leader in business and industry in Minnesota for more than 40 years. He is president of the Federal Cartridge Corp. He also has operated the Twin Cities Ordnance Plant and Twin Cities Arsenal.

Dr. Wynn, an expert on corporation, anti-trust and tax laws, is co-author of a reference book on federal taxes in relation to trusts and gifts.

Dr. Horn holds an honorary doctor of science degree from Colorado College. The college conferred an honorary doctor of laws degree on Dr. Wynn two years ago.

Council-Manager Form Of Government Discussed

Advantages of Colorado Springs' type of government — the council-manager form — were discussed Wednesday by Colorado College political scientist Rudolph Gomez.

He sopke at the regular luncheon meeting of the Colorado Springs Kiwanis Club in the Acacia Hotel.

A city manager, according to Gomez, fills the "vacuum of leadership" created when a city council elects the mayor under the council-manager setup, without a vote of the people.

Gomez siad it was acceptable for city managers to make policy in addition to their other administrative duties.

The professor pointed out that a manager can be prevented from forming his own political machine because he can be fired by the city council.

Gomez said he like the manager-council form of government because the manager, as a trained professional, will bring "continuing administrative leadership."

The popularity of this form of city government is attested, Gomez said, by the fact that "Relatively few (81 cities dropped the manager form of government after adopting it."

Gomez also discussed the commission and mayor-council forms of government.

One weakness in the commission form, he said, is that it usualy places a commissioner in charge of each department. There may be disagreements over allocation of funds or importance of the commissioners' favorite committees.

In the mayor-council form, Gomez said, unless the mayor is given strong powers, such as jurisdiction over some hiring and firing, he will become little more than a "ceremonial figurehead."

Gomez concluded his talk by saying that the best way to achieve good local government is through participation by an "active and informed citizenry."

He urged everybody to vote in the April municipal election.

Gomez is chairman of a special Colorado Springs Charter Association committee which is studying sources of revenue for Colorado Springs, other than a city sales tax.

Gomez, and his co-chairman, Gerald Jones, will give a progress report at Monday's annual meeting of the Charter Association.

$10,000 Suit Filed Against Broadmoor

$10,000 personal injury suit was filed in District Court Monday against the Broadmoor Hotel.

The plaintiff, Bernie Keegan, Wichita, Kan. alleges that on Dec. 24, 1962, the door to a self-operating elevator closed on him abruptly striking him on the head.

Large Turnout Expected for TB Testing

A large turnout is expected tonight when the Tuberculosis Association conducts a special testing night for area citizens.

An aircraft search light will sweep the night sky starting at 6 p.m.. and continuing until 8 p.m. or later, lighting the way to the testing location at 809 North Cascade Ave.

The tests — for tuberculosis and lung infection — take only a few minutes and are conducted by trained personnel. Specially encouraged to stop in for the tests are men and women who have not been tested in major projects at public buildings and industrial sites.

TB officials say response to announcement of the Thursday testing plan has been large. Executives Director Mary Frances Loughlin said an unusually large number of phone calls reveal great interest on the part of the public. She expressed admiration for the men and women who are taking the trouble to insure against sneak attacks on their health.

"It is our hope to conduct the testing program with still greater effectiveness in 1965", Miss Loughlin said. "We were happy with the success we had in testing many thousands last year, but we can never be content until the rest of the population is tested also. It will depend, of course, on whether we have the funds to do it."

There is no charge for tests. The entire program is supported by donations to the TB Association.

Rampart Journal To Make Debut Here in March

"The Rampart Journal of Individualist Thought," a new quarterly publication of Rampart College, will make its debut in March, Robert LeFevre, dean of the school, announced today.

"The journal will replace the monthly periodical 'Pine Tree,'" LeFevre said, "and also will replace the occasional publications in The Human Action series, published by the college up until this time."

The new quarterly will be edited by Nan Corby, who also edits the monthly newsletter for the college.

"Contributions for the Jornal will be sought from persons interested in the doctrines of liberty throughout the world," LeFevre said. "The Journal will make no effort to present a single point of view but will be directed toward serious scholars who are concerned with the trends favorable to and hostile to the concepts of freedom. We will seek new and challenging ideas.

"In addition, the Journal will publish classical studies which today frequently are out of print but contain analysis and content which have bearing on the individualist."

Subscription rates for the Journal will be $7.50 per year. Single copies will be $2. Special reduced rates will be available to persons enrolled in institutions of higher learning.

Board Decides Not to Join Colorado Assn.

A motion not to join the Colorado Association of School Boards was approved unanimously by the Manitou Springs District 14 Board of Education at its regular meeting Wednesday night.

In other business the board approved a motion to extend the age of students in special education classes to 13 years old. Formerly, classes included students between 6 and 12 years of age.

The board also agreed to arrange a meeting with Conrad Wilson, spokesman for the Chipita Park Co., to examine the possibility of purchasing a site for a school in the Ute Pass area.

The board also approved plans for counselors to meet once a month with parents new to the community to get acquainted and to encourage them to feel at home. The suggestion came as a result of information revealed by a committee investigating high school drop-outs which said that most students who quit high school before graduation do not participate in school activities and do not "feel as if they belonged."

JA Delegates Will Meet In Denver

Forty teenage delegates representing the local Junior Achievement program will meet with similar delegates from Boulder, Denver, and Loveland at the University of Denver Student Union Building Saturday, for the annual Achiever Management Conference.

The conference is part of Junior Achievement's business program, a National economic education program, designed to give high school students an opportunity to gain an understanding of business know - how through practical "learn by doing" experience.

Morning sessions will open with speakers and discussion groups. Among the topics to be covered in these discussion groups are Personnel, defining some problems and suggesting possible solutions; Management, its functions and responsibilities; and Profits, definition and benefits derived.

The purpose of these discussion groups is to have achievers meet and talk about various phases of their JA company operations and cover some of the basic problems confronting their respective companies.

Afternoon sessions include workshops, problem solving, and reports with the day's activities concluding with a banquet and dance.

During the banquet each area's Miss JA will be introduced with one of these persons being named Miss Mountain States JA during the dance and following personal interviews with a panel of judges. The finalists of the local Miss JA contest conducted by the Achievers' Association were Stephanie Funk, Janel Karper, Linda Miller, Carol Seymour, and Valerie Ward. Miss JA of Colorado Springs will be announced at the banquet Saturday evening.

The meeting was a result of a recent resolution passed by the Senior League of the Pikes Peak Region, which called for a study of means to perpetuate "local and area landmarks of historic, scenic or cultural value."

The name Landmarks Preservation Committee tentatively was adopted, and it was agreed that the persons present would form the committee.

Named to a sub-committee for the selection of landmarks were: Marshall Sprague, Byron L. Akers, and Carroll B. Malone. Sprague attended as a representative of the Historical Society of the Pikes Peak Region, and Akers and Malone as representatives of the Senior League of the Pikes Peak Region.

A sub-committee for ways and means of implementing preservation was also named. Members are to be Bryson, City Councilman Harold Hawks, and Miss Dorothy E. Smith, curator, Pioneer Museum.

Sprague suggested that a booklet about area landmarks should precede acquisition of them.

Hawks suggested plaques emphasizing the history of gold mining, and resultant growth of the area; and also plaques marking the places where noted music composers lived.

G. E. Weindenhaft, supervisor, Pike National Forest, mentioned the Mission 66 program of registering historic buildings, sites and scenic areas as national landmarks. Pikes Peak became a national registered landmark last summer. He said his greatest problem was preservation of the top. Possible projects are the Old Stage Road and the Gold Camp Road. "We need information on specific landmarks," said Weidenhaft.

Henry E. Couplane, also representing the Historical Society of the Pikes Peak Region, suggested recording location and date begun and ended for each landmark, for future referece.

The following persons, representing the following organizations, were also present: Lucy M. Lennox, Colonial Dames, an Kinnikinnik Chapter, D.A.R.; Robert Muir, American Institute of Architects; Lorraine Burgess; Mrs. Dale Giberson and Mrs. George McCargo, Zebulon Pike Chapter, D.A.R.; and Lester Griswold, Senior League of the Pikes Peak Region.

Hawks Featured On Magazine Article

The article says that Hawks believes the two pressing needs of municipal government are "Legislation to permit city-county legal collection of a sales tax for city county revenue, and readjustment of city assessments on real property."

Sheriff Gets Report Of Stolen Car

A 1959 Chevrolet belonging to R. C. Rayburn, 1207 Houston Ave., was stolen Wednesday night, the sheriff's department reported this morning.

Deputy Sheriff Lee Quein said the vehicle was parked in front of Rayburn's home and had the keys in it. It is a four-door sedan, color yellow with a 1965 Colorado license, but the owner did not know the number.

Springs Dentist Honored by Lutheran Church

Dr. Robert E. Ehlert, Colorado Springs dentist since 1939, was honored Wednesday night for 25 years of service to First Lutheran Church. The occasion was his retirement from the church council on the completion of two consecutive three-year terms, maximum permitted under the new church constitution.

Dr. Ehlert has been vice chairman of the council, leading lay position in the church. He had served several terms previously as a member of the church council.

In addition, Dr. Ehlert was for 10 years director of the senior choir and he has been chairman of almost every key committee in the church, especially education, evangelism and stewardship.

He has been called on frequently to supply to pulpit for Lutheran churches in Canon City, Calhan and Pueblo as well as Colorado Springs and he has often assisted in worship services as liturgist. He is a popular speaker for youth church groups.

Dr. Ehlert has served for 10 years on the executive board of the Rocky Mountain Synod, Lutheran Church in America, and has been a frequent delegate to its annual conventions.

A graduate of the University of Minnesota, Dr. Ehlert came here from Minneapolis directly after graduating from dental school. He served as a captain in the 70th Division Artillery for four years, seeing combat in the European Theater.

Dr. Ehlert resides at 1318 East Madison Avenue.

1,143 Persons Visit Manitou Library

There were 1,143 visitors to the Manitou Springs Public Library in December.

Of this total, 139 visited in the evening.

During this month, 1,258 books circulated, 15 new cards were issued and $17.37 in fines were paid, reports Librarian Helen B. Hill.

Dr. C. L. Horn Speaker For CC Groundbreaking

Dr. Charles L. Horn of Minneapolis, president of the Olin Foundation, will deliver the address Friday morning at groundbreaking ceremonies for Colorado College's Willis R. Armstrong Hall of Humanities, made possible by a $2,250,000 grant from Olin.

Ceremonies get under way at 9:30 a.m. in the Atrium of the Charles Leaming Tutt Library. Groundbreaking will follow at the site of the new building. The public is invited to attend.

The other speakers are Dr. James O. Wynn of New York, vice president and general counsel of the Olin Foundation; W. Lee Hill '48 of Boulder, president of the Colorado College Alumni Association; and Dr. Lloyd E. Worner '42, president of the college.

The Rev. Kenneth W. F. Burton, associate professor of religion and minister of Shove Chapel, will give the invocation.

Construction on the four-floor building will get under way immediately. When completed in 1966, it will be the largest building on the Colorado College campus.

The new building is named for the late Willis R. Armstrong who served as a trustee of the college for 54 years. It will house departments of the humanities division and the college's administrative offices.

Armstrong Hall will be located on the northeast corner of Cascade Avenue and Cache la Poudre.

Announcement of the $2,500,000 Olin grant was made last Sept. 15 by Dr. Horn at fall convocation. It was the second major grant from the Foundation and the largest single gift in the history of the college. In 1960, Olin announced a grant of $1,520,000 to the college for the construction of the Olin Hall of Science, dedicated two years ago.

DR. CHARLES L. HORN

Dr. Horn, a scholar and conservationist, has been a leader in business and industry in Minnesota for more than 40 years. He is president of the Federal Cartridge Corp. He also has operated the Twin Cities Ordnance Plant and Twin Cities Arsenal.

Dr. Wynn, an expert on corporation, anti-trust and tax laws, is co-author of a reference book on federal taxes in relation to trusts and gifts.

Dr. Horn holds an honorary doctor of science degree from Colorado College. The college conferred an honorary doctor of laws degree on Dr. Wynn two years ago.

Council-Manager Form Of Government Discussed

Advantages of Colorado Springs' type of government — the council-manager form — were discussed Wednesday by Colorado College political scientist Rudolph Gomez.

He sopke at the regular luncheon meeting of the Colorado Springs Kiwanis Club in the Acacia Hotel.

A city manager, according to Gomez, fills the "vacuum of leadership" created when a city council elects the mayor under the council-manager setup, without a vote of the people.

Gomez siad it was acceptable for city managers to make policy in addition to their other administrative duties.

The professor pointed out that a manager can be prevented from forming his own political machine because he can be fired by the city council.

Gomez said he like the manager-council form of government because the manager, as a trained professional, will bring "continuing administrative leadership."

The popularity of this form of city government is attested, Gomez said, by the fact that "Relatively few (81 cities dropped the manager form of government after adopting it."

Gomez also discussed the commission and mayor-council forms of government.

One weakness in the commission form, he said, is that it usualy places a commissioner in charge of each department. There may be disagreements over allocation of funds or importance of the commissioners' favorite committees.

In the mayor-council form, Gomez said, unless the mayor is given strong powers, such as jurisdiction over some hiring and firing, he will become little more than a "ceremonial figurehead."

Gomez concluded his talk by saying that the best way to achieve good local government is through participation by an "active and informed citizenry."

He urged everybody to vote in the April municipal election.

Gomez is chairman of a special Colorado Springs Charter Association committee which is studying sources of revenue for Colorado Springs, other than a city sales tax.

Gomez, and his co-chairman, Gerald Jones, will give a progress report at Monday's annual meeting of the Charter Association.

$10,000 Suit Filed Against Broadmoor

$10,000 personal injury suit was filed in District Court Monday against the Broadmoor Hotel.

The plaintiff, Bernie Keegan, Wichita, Kan. alleges that on Dec. 24, 1962, the door to a self-operating elevator closed on him abruptly striking him on the head.

Large Turnout Expected for TB Testing

A large turnout is expected tonight when the Tuberculosis Association conducts a special testing night for area citizens.

An aircraft search light will sweep the night sky starting at 6 p.m., and continuing until 8 p.m. or later, lighting the way to the testing location at 809 North Cascade Ave.

The tests — for tuberculosis and lung infection — take only a few minutes and are conducted by trained personnel. Specially encouraged to stop in for the tests are men and women who have not been tested in major projects at public buildings and industrial sites.

TB officials say response to announcement of the Thursday testing plan has been large. Executives Director Mary Frances Loughlin said an unusually large number of phone calls reveal great interest on the part of the public. She expressed admiration for the men and women who are taking the trouble to insure against sneak attacks on their health.

"It is our hope to conduct the testing program with still greater effectiveness in 1965", Miss Loughlin said. "We were happy with the success we had in testing many thousands last year, but we can never be content until the rest of the population is tested also. It will depend, of course, on whether we have the funds to do it."

There is no charge for tests. The entire program is supported by donations to the TB Association.

Rampart Journal To Make Debut Here in March

"The Rampart Journal of Individualist Thought," a new quarterly publication of Rampart College, will make its debut in March, Robert LeFevre, dean of the school, announced today.

"The journal will replace the monthly periodical 'Pine Tree,' " LeFevre said, "and also will replace the occasional publications in The Human Action series, published by the college up until this time."

The new quarterly will be edited by Nan Corby, who also edits the monthly newsletter for the college.

"Contributions for the Jornal will be sought from persons interested in the doctrines of liberty throughout the world," LeFevre said. "The Journal will make no effort to present a single point of view but will be directed toward serious scholars who are concerned with the trends favorable to and hostile to the concepts of freedom. We will seek new and challenging ideas.

"In addition, the Journal will publish classical studies which today frequently are out of print but contain analysis and content which have bearing on the individualist."

Subscription rates for the Journal will be $7.50 per year. Single copies will be $2. Special reduced rates will be available to persons enrolled in institutions of higher learning.

Board Decides Not to Join Colorado Assn.

A motion not to join the Colorado Association of School Boards was approved unanimously by the Manitou Springs District 14 Board of Education at its regular meeting Wednesday night.

In other business the board approved a motion to extend the age of students in special education classes to 13 years old. Formerly, classes included students between 6 and 12 years of age.

The board also agreed to arrange a meeting with Conrad Wilson, spokesman for the Chipita Park Co., to examine the possibility of purchasing a site for a school in the Ute Pass area.

The board also approved plans for counselors to meet once a month with parents new to the community to get acquainted and to encourage them to feel at home. The suggestion came as a result of information revealed by a committee investigating high school drop-outs which said that most students who quit high school before graduation do not participate in school activities and do not "feel as if they belonged."

Bill May Eliminate Bounty on Lions

DENVER (AP) — A bill that would eliminate the $75 state bounty on mountain lions was introduced today in the Colorado House.

said the purpose of the Rep. C. J. Gillaspey, D-Pueblo, law had been to encourage hunting of the mountain lions because they killed livestock. But he said that is no longer a problem.

"They are getting to be a rarity," he said. "I don't know why the Fish and Game Department should pay it. A person could still go out and hunt them."

He said his primary purpose is not to protect the mountain lion but to save the state money. Gillaspey said hunters sometimes go into Wyoming and Utah but claim the cats were shot in Colorado.

BEIRUT — Lebanese farmers will learn new methods.

U.S. Tells U.N. It Will Bring New Finance Crisis

By TOM HOGE

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United States is reported telling United Nations members that it will take a second look at the big sums it pours into U.N. projects if they let the Soviet Union keep its General Assembly vote without settling its peacekeeping debts.

Informants said U.S. officials were relaying this warning to delegates as the time nears for the threatened showdown over Soviet refusal to pay U.N. peacekeeping assessments.

In another effort to avoid a clash when the assembly resumes Monday, Secretary-General U Thant called in U.S. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson and Soviet Chief Delegate Nikolai T. Fedorenko Wednesday.

Neither Stevenson nor Fedorenko gave any indication whether any progress had been made toward breaking the deadlock.

Philippine Ambassador Salvador P. Lopez, who talked with Thant after he saw Stevenson told reporters he saw no sign of a breakthrough.

Thant has been sounding out the two powers on an Asian-African plan to resolve the dispute. It would set aside for this session Article 19 of the U.N. charter, which says a member two years in arrears on assessments loses its assembly vote.

This would deny voting rights to Russia, France and 16 other nations who are two years or more behind because of their refusal to pay for the Congo and Middle East operations.

The plan also calls for voluntary contributions to a rescue fund to help clear up the peacekeeping deficit of nearly $86 million.

The United States has agreed to the voluntary contributions but refuses to waive Article 19.

The Soviets have agreed to pay an unspecified sum at an unspecified time into a voluntary fund, provided it is not earmarked for peacekeeping as such. They have threatened to quit the U.N. if deprived of their vote.

There has been some talk of winding up the assembly's general policy debate next week and then adjourning until December. But the United States, Britain and other Western nations were reported opposed to this.

Most African and Asian nations were also reported pushing for discussion of colonialism, racial questions and other issues.

The United States is expected to stand firm on its insistence that Article 19 be applied, even at the risk of a defeat in the assembly.

Congress adopted a resolution last August urging the U.S. delegation to see that the penalty clause was enforced.

A defeat would dampen any enthusiasm Congress might have for contributing to U.N. causes.

Besides paying about 32 per cent of the total U.N. administrative and peacekeeping budgets, the United States has been donating 40 per cent of the costs of the U.N. technical assistance program, about 70 per cent of the Palestine refugee program and nearly 50 per cent of the costs of the Congo operation.

If Congress decided to pull back on voluntary contributions, it could scuttle the Cyprus peace force and severely restrict the organization's aid to underdeveloped nations.

U.N. officials said that the Soviet Union has paid $3,528,339 into the U.N. treasury on its regular 1964 assessment. This was in addition to a $1.3 million budget payment Russia made last month. To avoid a challenge to its vote, however, Moscow would have to pay about $21.7 million.

79-Year-Old Hubby Says Wife Beat Him

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP) — A St. Petersburg man, 79, has asked for a divorce from his wife, 73, alleging that she had beaten him on numerous occasions.

Alfonso Lafazia also said in his Pinellas County Circuit Court suit that his wife, Eveline, whom he married in 1951, drinks heavily but is not habitually intemperate. He alleged that he still bears the scars of his last beating Nov. 6.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

I was once a Wave in Uncle Sam's Navy and, as an aircraft instrument technician everything we worked on was color-coded with colored tape. I guess that's where I got my idea.

I am the mother of "two" sets of twins. The first set has everything yellow and green, "each" his own color.

The second set has everything blue and pink. I either buy 'their' color or manage some way to mark it, usually with colored felt tip markers or a few quick stitches on the sewing machine.

With a black felt tip, I put each child's initials inside the waistband of their jeans. They have their own towels, wash cloths, tumblers, plates, cups, sheets, cases, blankets, bedspreads, tooth brushes — everything that comes in these colors.

This probably sounds a little funny to some, but to me it has been the best timesaver and "fight-preventer" imaginable.

I could never see sharing drinking glasses, socks or anything. When they have drinks between dishwashings, it's four glasses to wash instead of 20 or more.

If there's a towel or wash cloth on the floor, we KNOW who dropped it—no arguing. . . —Grace S.

Dear Grace:

This would also work in homes where there is more than one child.

I'm a twin and we know what it means to get the blunt end of anything. Mother always put my zippers on the left side in my dresses, and the right side of my sister's. My sister never did like my torn dresses! —Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I like chenille bedspreads (especially with dryers to fluff them up) because they take a lot of abuse.

After using my spreads for years, they seemed to have lost their body and gone limp.

One day after washing them, I had the idea of using spray starch on the "back" of the spread and then placing it in the dryer with the chenille side turned out, and the starched side turned in.

I was really pleased with the result when I took the spread out of the dryer. —M. L. H.

And doesn't the starch give it body? Thanks, Sugar. —Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I remove bloodstains from fabrics by soaking them in meat tenderizer and water, then sponging the stains with cool water, laundering with soap or detergent suds, and then rinsing thoroughly. —Mrs. W. Spiegel

---

Now, ladies, don't laugh at this.

I have learned, after testing, that "un-seasoned" meat tenderizer, when mixed with a "minute" amount of water and applied on fabrics, does work! Let set 30 minutes or so, massaging the material two or three times.

I do not say that this process will apply to every fabric, or that it is safe in using on any fabric which cannot be immersed in water, but the meat tenderizer does work.

Wash as usual after using the above procedure, just as our Mrs. Spiegel said. —Heloise

It works!
Now . . . why? —Heloise

Dear Folks:

To those of you who have little kiddies who wear bluejeans to school and the knees of the jeans get white (and some kids just don't like white, faded knees), have you ever tried getting an all-purpose dye at the drug, dime or department store and mixing it in a spray bottle with some hot water, shaking it until completely dissolved and spraying on the white part of the jean knees?

It works!

I sprayed some with a rather strong dye (using much less water than it calls for), put them out in the sun to dry, and then ironed them with a hot iron. It surey makes a difference!

Another way to do this, if you have no plunger-type spray bottle, is to go to your dimestore, buy some crayons and use the blue crayon to rub "gently" back and forth across the fibers of the material. This is especially good when letting down bluejeans (if you bought them too long and hemmed them up, so they could be worn for a longer period of time) and they have a white line and you don't want it to show.

After rubbing gently with the dark blue crayon, take your medium warm iron and iron over the crayon-marked parts. This will melt the colored crayon, it will absorb into the fibers and the white line won't show. —Heloise

Letter Of Laughter

Dear Heloise:

One day my car-brush backfired (I'd turned the handle wrong) so instead of getting rinsing water after the sudsing, the whole chamber of suds covered me!

So . . . I stepped inside the utility room, rinsed myself off, then hung up my washed! shorts and top to dry and figured I'd had my shower . . . felt dandy.

I wouldn't recommend it as a habit. —A. Swanson

Dear Heloise:

I have been wanting to write to you for some time, so here goes.

First, I want to say that the idea of making smashed cheese sandwiches, wrapped in foil and ironing them, with an electric iron is fabulous!

Now, here's what I did instead of using the ironing board:

I took an old piece of scrap board about one-half inch thick and about a foot or more square, covered it with broiling foil and an old terry towel. I thumbtacked the towel on the underside so it wouldn't scratch my drainboard and I now have the neatest smashed cheese-making board in town!

And do I use it! It's the greatest. —June

Dear Heloise:

This is an idea that I used when my daughter had to carry her arm in a sling for quite some time:

I bought several one-yard lengths of solid color material to match the colors in some of her dresses, cut the one yard pieces into triangles then put a small hem in each unfinished side, and she had two slings to match each blouse or dress.

They made such a difference in her appearance and gave her spirits a lift, I'm quite sure. —Ruth Vance Eads

Derailment of Train Keeps Tracks Blocked

HARPURSVILLE, N.Y. (AP) — A train derailment Wednesday near this Broome County community will keep the Delaware & Hudson tracks blocked until at least Saturday, a railroad spokesman said.

Forty-three cars and a diesel unit of a D&H freight train left the tracks at a switching point on an overpass above New York 7, 15 miles from Binghamton.

Gilbert A. Gillette, D&H train master, said four of the cars spilled liquid nitrate, causing a strong odor in the area. He estimated the damage at $300,000.

The cause of the derailment was not determined.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

I was once a Wave in Uncle Sam's Navy and, as an aircraft instrument technician everything we worked on was color-coded with colored tape. I guess that's where I got my idea.

I am the mother of "two" sets of twins. The first set has everything yellow and green, "each" his own color.

The second set has everything blue and pink. I either buy 'their' color or manage some way to mark it, usually with colored felt tip markers or a few quick stitches on the sewing machine.

With a black felt tip, I put each child's initials inside the waistband of their jeans. They have their own towels, wash cloths, tumblers, plates, cups, sheets, cases, blankets, bedspreads, tooth brushes — everything that comes in these colors.

This probably sounds a little funny to some, but to me it has been the best timesaver and "fight-preventer" imaginable.

I could never see sharing drinking glasses, socks or anything. When they have drinks between dishwashings, it's four glasses to wash instead of 20 or more.

If there's a towel or wash cloth on the floor, we KNOW who dropped it—no arguing. . . —Grace S.

Dear Grace:

This would also work in homes where there is more than one child.

I'm a twin and we know what it means to get the blunt end of anything. Mother always put my zippers on the left side in my dresses, and the right side of my sister's. My sister never did like my torn dresses! —Heloise

Burch Said to Take Rap for Barry's Show

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Outgoing Republican National Chairman Dean Burch took the rap for the conservative cause he championed in a campaign he did not control.

It was Barry Goldwater's show, and Burch was Goldwater's man. When the show flopped, only Burch was around to face the critics.

Goldwater and his influence were their real target. But the former senator was out of public view, and the key men in his campaign policy decisions were back in private life.

During the futile effort to keep his job, Burch argued that he was a technician, not a theoretician. And he insisted he had done his technical chores well.

But that was never the argument. To his liberal and moderate critics Burch was simply a symbol of Goldwater, a leader they never relished.

Every step Burch took in hope of holding on only tied him closer to Goldwater without whom he would never have had the job in the first place.

Perhaps his status was best dramatized on the December day when Burch sat across the hall while Goldwater, former President Dwight D. Eisenhower and former Vice President Richard M. Nixon talked about his future.

Each time the chairman did so, his own image as a symbol of the defeated presidential nominee and the party's conservative wing — an image Burch acknowledged — became more firmly set.

Aside from Goldwater and former Rep. William E. Miller, Goldwater's running mate, Burch had no top-level allies to plead his cause. As a newcomer he lacked the store of political contact and past-due favors that might have helped his losing campaign.

Ray C. Bliss, the man Goldwater finally accepted as a replacement, has his own store of alliances, built during 16 years as Ohio party chairman.

Arguing Burch's competence, Goldwater pointed to the surplus in the National Committee's treasury. Its size has not been disclosed by the committee.

Republican critics answered that there was no point in having dollars left over if the money could have helped avert a landslide loss. Some charged that liberal and moderate candidates were short-changed during the campaign.

Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania accused conservative leaders at national headquarters of hoarding the money in anticipation of their defeat.

And soon Burch was busy denying that the committee's bank balance was as big as some reports indicated.

The chairman himself was not the policy maker in the Goldwater campaign. The men who were stepped out of the lineup soon after the election, and Burch stood alone as a visible symbol of the election- day debacle.

Emergency Facilities Of Hospital Dedicated

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A ribbon which officially opened larger emergency facilities at Lankenau Hospital, was cut Wednesday by the family which used the hospital's emergency room most during 1964.

Mrs. Robert J. Addis of suburban Narberth snipped the ribbon for the new $140,000 facility.

Mrs. Addis's family, including her nine children, made 21 trips to the emergency room at Lankenau last year. Seven of the visits were occasioned by Robert, 12, who fell five times, was hit on the head with a baseball, and injured his ankle during a Boy Scout outing.

Other Addis casualties included such mishaps as, an injured eye, fall off a wall, dog bite, cut by glass, fall from high chair, rusty nail in hand, etc.

Mrs. Addis recalled that as a student nurse at another hospital she used to say, "If only they — parents — would take care of their kids they wouldn't get hurt. Now those words return to haunt me."

Tobacco Industry Blasts Anti-Smokers

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A tobacco industry spokesman says that a national anti-smoking organization is using "questionable assumptions" and "sensational headline statements" in efforts to discourage people from smoking.

George V. Allen, president of the Tobacco Institute, Inc., said Tuesday that a meeting of the National Inter-Agency Council on Smoking Monday produced "no new scientific data" on the issue of smoking and health.

Instead, he said, "a number of questionable assumptions were made as the basis for some sensational headline statements by laymen participating in the conference."

At the conference, council chairman Emerson Foote said cigarette smoking is responsible for at least 125,000 deaths annually in the United States and may be responsible for "as many as 300,000 deaths per year in this country."

Steel Is Still Key to Price Increases

NEW YORK (UPI) — The current expression of "concern" over price rises in the monthly review by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York again brings up the disagreement among economic reviewers over the extent and effects of price increases in various basic fields.

The bank's review said that price developments "continue to be a cause for some concern." It reported that both consumer and industrial wholesale prices went up in November and that preliminary indications were that the industrial section of the wholesale price index also went up in December.

It noted that there were steel price increases announced in late December, centering attention on a basic material area which has been attracting attention from others who have been watching price levels in general.

But while many market analysts and economists look for some price increases in basic fields during the coming year, not all agree on their extent and ultimate effect.

A. W. Zelomek, head of the International Statistical Bureau, Inc., writes that despite projection of a higher general business trend "and despite the current emphasis on higher wages and increased steel prices, there is no evidence of a sharp advance in wholesale prices, or of marked inflation."

Zelomek has consistently expressed the view that there was little danger of any runaway inflation in the United States; He has disagreed with those who argued that a rise in industrial raw material quotations were a harbinger of the wholesale price trend.

Allan B. Shaw, of the Harris, Upham & Co. research staff, in a 1965 preview also noted that the steel situation was a key factor in price levels for the coming year.

The steel workers will be "making ambitious demands" in their forthcoming contract negotiations, he noted, and said that the "price increases that have taken place so far strengthen both labor's attack and the possibilities of government intervention on any future price increase attempts."

"Therefore, " he continued, "price inflation may not be too great a threat this year, but labor costs may advance, with resultant pressure on profit margins."

KIRBY ELECTED

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) —Investors Diversified Services, Inc., announced Wednesday the election of Fred M. Kirby as chairman of the board.

Kirby, formerly chairman of the executive committee, succeeds W. Grady Clark, who will continue as a director and member of the executive committee.

Moslem Faith May Be Gaining Faster

ENUGU, Nigeria (AP) — The Moslem faith may be gaining new adherents faster than Christianity in Africa, the World Council of Churches' meeting here was told.

Reports presented Wednesday said large pockets of paganism — whose practitioners worship juju medicine men and their fetishes — also remain in Africa.

Suspect Admits 1,300 Burglaries Since Boyhood

BLOOMFIELD, Ind. (AP) — A young Virginian, arrested for carrying a concealed weapon, has admitted about 1,300 burglaries since he was 8 years old, State Trooper Robert Kirk said Wednesday night.

Denard Lee Gusler II, 22, of Norfolk, was arrested in Linton Jan. 8, charged with carrying a concealed .22 caliber pistol, Kirk said. The officer said that Gusler signed statements admitting the series of burglaries that started with rifling soft drink machines when he was a child.

The trooper said Gusler admitted nine or 10 Kentucky burglaries which netted $18,000 to $20,000 dollars. Kentucky State Police came here Monday to question the youth and filed fugitive warrants.

Kirk said Gusler was arrested after the owner of a sporting goods store reported the Virginia youth purchased a large quantity of .22 caliber shells. Gusler has been held under $1,000 bond on the concealed weapon charge. A $2,000 bond was set on the Kentucky fugitive charges.

Kirk said Gusler had served 20 months for burglary in Arkansas and is wanted there for parole violation.

He said the youth violated his Arkansas parole in 1964, and headed west. In Gallup, .M., he married Elizabeth Ann Miller, 20, Des Moines, Iowa.

She was arrested here with him and was held pending investigation. No charges were filed against her, Kirk said.

Dinner Arranged for Dr. Martin Luther King

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Arrangements are being made to accommodate 1,000 persons at a Jan. 27 dinner honoring Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. who won the 1964 Nobel Peace Prize.

A committee of civic and business leaders which is sponsoring the banquet said Wednesday tickets will cost $6.50. The committee has 86 members.

Earlier, some Atlanta businessmen had been reported reluctant to sponsor the banquet.

Robert Sommerville, president of Atlanta Transit Co., said King upset a number of businessmen when he called for a boycott of Scripto, Inc. Union workers at the company struck over wages but accused Scripto of racial discrimination.

The company denied the charge and the strike has since been settled.

Boy in Tears As Judge Rules On Custody

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — A judge has ended a week of courtroom battling between Vic Damone and his ex-wife, Pier Angeli, by making this ruling on custody of their son, Perry:

Miss Angeli gets legal custody of the boy.

He will live with her in Rome.

But, under new visitation rights, Damone will bring the boy here each July and August.

The boy will spend alternate Easter and Christmas holidays with Damone.

Damone, 35, has held temporary custody of the 9-year-old boy since he brought Perry here from New York Sept. 30. Miss Angeli, 32, charged him with contempt because, she said, he violated the custody agreement following their 1960 divorce which granted her Perry's custody.

Superior Court ruled he was not in contempt, however. The custody agreement was reached Wednesday.

Miss Angeli termed it "reasonable" and Damone said "I'll see a lot more of my son than I did."

The judge met privately with Perry and explained the settlement to him.

Reds Forced to Think About Customers

MOSCOW (AP) — Millions of rubles worth of consumer goods piling up on shelves has apparently finally convinced the Soviet government of the need to provide customers with what they want instead of what government planners think they should have.

The Council of the National Economy has ordered factories making 25 per cent of the nation's ready-made clothing and shoes to produce according to store orders by July 1.

City Court Trial Becomes Forum In Traffic Case

A traffic case, heard Wednesday in Municipal Court, turned into a forum rather than a trial.

The trial involved a charge of disobeying a traffic signal against Capt. Michael Spayd, 35, 2203 Collier Ave.

Patrolman Victor Morris testified that on Dec. 11 he was westbound on Constitution Avenue, with the green light in his favor, when the Air Force officer, northbound on Circle Drive, went through the intersection on a red light.

Capt. Spayd said as he proceeded intc the intersection the light turned amber. "If I cannot clear it before it changes to red," he said "I think there's something faulty about the light."

Deputy City Attorney Roger Hunt reminded him that after you go across the crosswalk, you then have to cross the railroad tracks before you reach the intersection. Spayd said he thought the crosswalk was the beginning of the intersection.

A city traffic engineer explained that the amber and red lights here are on three seconds each. The entire intersection is less than 200 feet, he said, and a driver traveling at 44 feet a second, at 30 miles an hour (five miles under the limit here), should be able to clear the intersection.

Capt. Spayd said he was driving about 15 miles an hour, and at this speed he then could not clear the intersection before the light changed red. The engineer said driving 10 miles under a prescribed speed, unless weather conditions prevent this, is in violation also as it impedes traffic.

'I've turned this into a forum rather than a trial," Judge Allan Asher commented. Noting that at this particular intersection, the amber light was used as a warning to stop, he converted the charge against Capt. Spayd to a warning.

A careless driving charge against Thomas Burbach, 29, 1729 Kingsley Dr., was dismissed, when the complaining witness Mildred Cook, 522 S. Nevada Ave., could not positively identify the defendant.

Harold Cornell, 51, 29 Cragmor Village, was found guilty of a charge of improper lane usage and was fined $15. He had been charged with careless driving on a complaint by Mrs. Noreen Quinn, 10 Dudley Rd., but Judge Asher reduced the charge. Cornell was represented by Leo Rector.

Arnot Ellsworth, 2992 W. Fountain St., pleaded not guilty to two charges of careless driving, but guilty to a muffler violation.

Judge Asher continued disposition on the latter charge until Jan. 27 when Ellsworth is tried on the careless driving charges, and on an additional careless driving charge and a drag racing charge.

Alva Haynes, 20, Ft. Carson, was fined $75 on a charge of reckless driving to which he entered a guilty plea. He was not in court and Judge Asher ordered a mittimus issued.

Mack Hyder, 18, Carson, was fined $50 on his guilty plea to careless driving. Judge Asher said $15 would be suspended if the soldier attended a traffic lecture Wednesday night in the City Auditorium.

Firemen Answer 108 Alarms

The Colorado Springs fire department answered 108 alarms last month. Four were false and four were due to faulty alarm systems.

Firemen also made 11 resuscitator calls, two rescue - emergencies and three investigations.

Additionally, firemen spent 1,030 manhours in study, drill and training and licensed 82 bicycles.

Cars traveled 2,289 miles last month and trucks 1,717 miles. The department made 4,215 radio transmissions.

Assistant Army Secretary to Visit

Daniel M. Luevano, assistant secretary of the Army for Installations and Logistics, is scheduled to visit Ft. Carson Friday.

His itinerary also calls for stops at the Pueblo Army Depot and Denver while he is in Colorado.

Luevano will be briefed on materiel readiness of the 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized) and supporting units.

"I've turned this into a forum rather than a trial," Judge Allan Asher commented. Noting that at this particular intersection, the amber light was used as a warning to stop, he converted the charge against Capt. Spayd to a warning.

A careless driving charge against Thomas Burbach, 29, 1729 Kingsley Dr., was dismissed, when the complaining witness Mildred Cook, 522 S. Nevada Ave., could not positively identify the defendant.

Harold Cornell, 51, 29 Cragmor Village, was found guilty of a charge of improper lane usage and was fined $15. He had been charged with careless driving on a complaint by Mrs. Noreen Quinn, 10 Dudley Rd., but Judge Asher reduced the charge. Cornell was represented by Leo Rector.

Arnot Ellsworth, 2992 W. Fountain St., pleaded not guilty to two charges of careless driving, but guilty to a muffler violation.

Judge Asher continued disposition on the latter charge until Jan. 27 when Ellsworth is tried on the careless driving charges, and on an additional careless driving charge and a drag racing charge.

Alva Haynes, 20, Ft. Carson, was fined $75 on a charge of reckless driving to which he entered a guilty plea. He was not in court and Judge Asher ordered a mittimus issued.

Mack Hyder, 18, Carson, was fined $50 on his guilty plea to careless driving. Judge Asher said $15 would be suspended if the soldier attended a traffic lecture Wednesday night in the City Auditorium.

Firemen Answer 108 Alarms

The Colorado Springs fire department answered 108 alarms last month. Four were false and four were due to faulty alarm systems.

Firemen also made 11 resuscitator calls, two rescue - emergencies and three investigations.

Additionally, firemen spent 1,030 manhours in study, drill and training and licensed 82 bicycles.

Cars traveled 2,289 miles last month and trucks 1,717 miles. The department made 4,215 radio transmissions.

Assistant Army Secretary to Visit

Daniel M. Luevano, assistant secretary of the Army for Installations and Logistics, is scheduled to visit Ft. Carson Friday.

His itinerary also calls for stops at the Pueblo Army Depot and Denver while he is in Colorado.

Luevano will be briefed on materiel readiness of the 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized) and supporting units.

New Treatment Given Mental Retarded Kids

By JOHN A. GADIOSI

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—Little Tommy Linton is the latest in a line of children listed as benefitting from the controversial method of treatment devised at the Institutes for the Achievement of Human Potential in Philadelphia.

The method is largely the work of Dr. Robert A. Doman, his brother, Glenn, a physical therapist, and Dr. Carl Delacato, an education.

The first patterning prescribed for him in November, 1962, was at the lowest possible level, "below the level of a newborn child," Dr. Doman said.

The elder Linton explains that this meant simply putting the boy on the floor four times daily in the hope he would move or creep.

"He screamed for three weeks, out of fear," the father said. "There was no moving.

Tommy Smiles

"At six or seven weeks, he began to push himself around in a circle. At our Thanksgiving, I had held him in my lap to feed him. He could not hold his head up. Then I mentioned 'ice cream' and Tommy smiled."

Two months after Tommy was brought to the Institutes, he was speaking about five words, such as "no," "mother," "pop" and "cookie."

What formed the basis for the treatment evolved by the Domans and Dr. Delacato?

They knew that, when a normal child crept and crawled repeatedly, sensory nerve messages were being transmitted to the area of the brain governing those movements. The child thus established reflex patterns which enabled him to make coordinated movements without conscious planning.

Now, they had to re-establish this normal process in the brain of an injured child.

The number of brain cells in a normal person is believed to be about 10 billion. The general belief is that dead brain cells cannot be revived. But the team at the Institutes points out that all 10 billion cells cannot be dead in a living individual.

As a result, treatment of brain - injured children is designed to stimulate remaining cells to take over the functions of the dead ones.

A teaching branch was established at the Institutes in 1962 for the training of physicians and physical, speech and occupational therapists so the patterning technique might be made available to brain-injured children in other parts of the nation.

"If we made appointments now for all the applicants on the present list it would take 8½ years for us to evaluate them," Dr. Doman said.

Dr. Doman added that "trained people is the most critical problem" in helping more brain - injured children. Applications come from England, Spain, Guatemala, Israel and other parts of the world, in addition to the United States, he said.

Centers using the patterning exercises have been established at such places as the Western Pennsylvania United Cerebral Palsy Center in Spring Church, near Apollo, Pa.; the Loretta Research Center, Chicago; Les Passees Rehabilitation Center, Memphis, Tenn., and Brazil.

Where children are unable to crawl, the home treatment calls for exercising of them by three adults who move the child's body through prescribed positions four times daily for five minutes each time, seven days a week.

Duplicates Stimulation

The patterning seeks to duplicate and intensify the stimulation normal children received as the brain develops through the pons, midbrain and cortex stages during the first 18 months of life.

Officials at the Institutes said that on the average, a brain-injured child, untreated or treated by conventional methods, develops at about one-third the rate of a normal child.

Dr. Edward LeWinn research director of the Institutes, said the same child, given the environment prescribed at the Institutes, begins to develop, on the average, at 210 per cent of normal. This means, he said, the child eventually could overtake, or pass, normal children his age.

When the Domans and Dr. Delacato put their treatment into practice, they enrolled 76 children with every major type of brain injury and all levels of retardation.

Two years later, the records of the children were analyzed. Sixty-six had advanced, 17 were walking normally and 10 remained at the same level.

Master Plan Against School Is Uncovered

By WILLIE KANE

NEW YORK (AP) — Police have uncovered that they describe as an elaborate master plan for closing George Washington High School next weekend in an unusual way: with glue.

Five pupils admitted they planned to use glue to shut every door in the school in the Washington Heights section with a powerful airplane glue they said would withstand 2,000 pounds of tension.

The plan was drawn up with each boy assigned to a specific job next Sunday night and police said the boys also admitted:

1. Stealing and selling "late-cut passes," which allow students to cut classes.

2. Stealing the December mid-term examinations in American history and selling some copies, "mostly to dumb kids."

3. Writing letters to prominent officials, including Mayor Robert F. Wagner, complaining that discipline at the school was too harsh.

All five were charged Tuesday night with petty larceny and conspiracy to obstruct the Board of Education — by using glue to shut down the building.

Sunday, 8 p.m. — Boys meet at school, enter with the keys stolen Jan. 7 from Principal Frank S. Jacks, glue up the outside doors — except for one they would need to use in getting out.

8:30 p.m. — Lock all doors inside the building and glue them shut.

10:45 p.m. — Glue the gymnasium doors, then leave and glue the final outside door.

Monday, 7 a.m. — Make a final check to see that all doors were glued tight, then distribute posters at a nearby subway station saying: "The building closed. No school today."

8:15 a.m. — Watch the fun.

Indonesia Will Not Start War, Sukarno Says

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — President Sukarno said today Indonesia "is not going to make war but if Indonesia is attacked, it will fight and strike back."

Sukarno made the statement to Columbia Broadcasting System correspondent Bernard Kalb. The interview was reported by the official news agency Antara.

will resign as reported in the

To a question on whether he will resign as reported in the foreign press, Sukarno replied "Just see how hard I am working, every day from morning till late into the night and I never heard that I wanted to resign."

Asked what steps Indonesia intends to take after its withdrawal from the United Nations, Sukarno replied: "Yes, Indonesia withdrew from the United Nations, that is a fact and there would be no followup."

Sukarno told reporters that Indonesia's withdrawal from the United Nations definitely would not affect Indonesia's shaky economy.

Following a meeting with top financial and economic officials, Sukarno said that Indonesia's economic development would even be stepped up.

Ralph Edwards, Art Linkletter On Same Show

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — They said it could never happen but this week it did. Ralph Edwards came on Art Linkletter's show and announced, "This is Your Life."

The onetime rivals in audience-participation shows finally made their appearance together, much to Linkletter's consternation. It was all part of the 20th birthday celebration for his "House Party" show. The Edwards-Linkletter summit meeting will appear on the daytime CBS series Jan. 22.

It was just 20 years ago today that Art and his partner, John Guedel, staged the first edition of the longest party in history. They already had a nighttime radio show, "People are Funny," and Art commuted weekly to San Francisco, where he emceed the daytime "What's Doing, Ladies?"

The two had an idea for another program about the younger generation, called "Under 21." They went to New York to sell it to Young and Rubicam advertising agency. No sale, was the reply, but General Electric was looking for a five-a-week show. Art and John quickly concocted "House Party." It has been on radio ever since and on television for 13 years. It's the only program broadcast in both mediums.

"The only feature we saved from 'Under 21' was interviewing young kids," said Art. "And we're still doing it."

Over the years Linkletter has changed — from friendly, optimistic emcee to friendly, optimistic millionaire. The show has changed, too.

"We have less of the frantic party atmosphere that we used to have," said Art. "The biggest change is interviews in depth which I do with noted figures.

"This reflects the changing audience. There is more interest in self-improvement than ever before. The show has tried to meet that interest."

Art listed these superlatives of the two decades:

1. Most outstanding interview: Cecil B. DeMille, a few years before his death. "He really opened up — and this was his first appearance on the air in eight years, since he had been put off radio for refusing a union political assessment."

2. Most poignant interview: With a Negro handyman who had put five children through college, then graduated from high school and college himself.

3. Biggest laugh: When a 5-year-old was asked how his parents met. "I don't know," said the tyke, "but I do know they were roommates in college."

Liquor Store Insists It Needs Tower

The State Alcoholic Beverage Board said Wednesday it had to come down. Gambulos said he didn't want to defy the board but he will go to court to keep his "watchtower."

"We feel the tower was done for one purpose — advertising," said Roy Tant, executive secretary of the Oklahoma Retail Liquor Dealers Association at Wednesday's hearing.

"If we allow this pillbox, we leave ourselves open for all kinds of gimmicks," added board member Archie Stout.

Gambulos' store was robbed of $4,400 and during the Christmas holiday rush was bombed for the second time. Gambulos often has been at odds with other retailers because of his pricing policy.

Gambulos said he can't get insurance anymore unless he has the round-the-clock tower guard.

"And besides that," he added, "it's too dangerous. A night watchman could get knocked in the head walking around on the ground."

Ralph Edwards, Art Linkletter On Same Show

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — They said it could never happen but this week it did. Ralph Edwards came on Art Linkletter's show and announced, "This is Your Life."

The onetime rivals in audience-participation shows finally made their appearance together, much to Linkletter's consternation. It was all part of the 20th birthday celebration for his "House Party" show. The Edwards-Linkletter summit meeting will appear on the daytime CBS series Jan. 22.

It was just 20 years ago today that Art and his partner, John Guedel, staged the first edition of the longest party in history. They already had a nighttime radio show, "People are Funny," and Art commuted weekly to San Francisco, where he emceed the daytime "What's Doing, Ladies?"

The two had an idea for another program about the younger generation, called "Under 21." They went to New York to sell it to Young and Rubicam advertising agency. No sale, was the reply, but General Electric was looking for a five-a-week show. Art and John quickly concocted "House Party." It has been on radio ever since and on television for 13 years. It's the only program broadcast in both mediums.

"The only feature we saved from 'Under 21' was interviewing young kids," said Art. "And we're still doing it."

Over the years Linkletter has changed — from friendly, optimistic emcee to friendly, optimistic millionaire. The show has changed, too.

"We have less of the frantic party atmosphere that we used to have," said Art. "The biggest change is interviews in depth which I do with noted figures.

"This reflects the changing audience. There is more interest in self-improvement than ever before. The show has tried to meet that interest."

Art listed these superlatives of the two decades:

1. Most outstanding interview: Cecil B. DeMille, a few years before his death. "He really opened up — and this was his first appearance on the air in eight years, since he had been put off radio for refusing a union political assessment."

Rep. Celler Is New Dean of U.S. House

By JOHN BECKLER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Emanuel Celler, who used an anti-prohibition campaign to win a seat in Congress in 1922, is the new dean of the House of Representatives.

At 76, he is not the oldest member, but his 42 years of service top all 434 of his colleagues now that Rep. Carl Vinson of Georgia has retired after 50 years in the House.

Celler, a New York Democrat and Judiciary Committee chairman, has spent nearly all his congressional career in the midst of controversy as a battler for the underdog. That career was crowned last year with passage of the civil rights bill that bore his name.

But despite the feelings aroused by the fights he is engaged in, Celler's genial manner and sense of humor have won him friends among even his staunchest opponents.

In 42 years he has found himself on many sides of the same issue, but it doesn't bother him.

"Consistency is a stagnant pool that breeds reptiles in the mind," is his standard answer to anyone who questions his changed view.

And when liberals complain that he is making too many concessions to opponents of a bill, he observes: "If you want the rose, you must put up with the thorns."

Celler has mellowed with the years but still retains a remarkably fresh and youthful outlook.

"Age is a matter of spirit, not years," he said. "Some men are old at 20 while others are young at 80."

Born in Brooklyn, Celler developed his passion for civil rights and immigration legislation through contact with his multiracial constituency.

His father became wealthy as a bottler and distributor of whisky, and, when the business failed, Celler worked his way through Columbia University law school by selling wine.

Celler celebrated his 50th wedding anniversary last year. His wife is an invalid. She stays in Brooklyn with a daughter, who was born a spastic paraplegic. Another daughter is married and has two children.

Celler is headed for another strenuous session.

President Johnson has asked for a major overhaul of the immigration laws and it could be harder to get than the civil rights bill.

When you ask Celler how he things things will go, he replies:

"There is an old Turkish proverb that says you should never roll up your pants until you come to the river."

Crankcase Ventilation System Is Demanded

DENVER (UPI)— The State Board of Health Tuesday recommended that the Colorado Legislature pass a new law requiring crankcase ventilation systems on all new cars sold in the state.

Robert Haver, chairman of tht state advisory air pollution control committee, said the "blow-by" device eliminates about 90 per cent of air polluting materials discharged by autos.

The Pueblo man suggested that the plan be made mandatory effective for 1966 model cars.

Cost of the proposed device was not known.

The State Board of Health has been considering anti-pollution devices since a recent report by federal officials that Pueblo and Denver failed to meet clean air standards.

INVALID WOMAN ROBBED

LONDON (UPI) — Thieves robbed an elderly invalid woman of $124,200 worth of pearls and diamonds, police reported Wednesday.

The victim was Mrs. Isabella Nickols, 90, who lives in a Picadilly apartment once occupied by former Prime Minister Harold Wilson.

Police said the bandits rang the doorbell of Mrs. Nickols' apartment, overcame her nurse Eleanor Cushman, 35, and ransacked the place.

Tax Liens Are Filed Against Phone Inventor

STUART, Fla. (AP) — Tax liens totaling more than $35 million have been filed here by the Internal Revenue Service against James Rand, inventor of the dial telephone, and two corporations Rand is said to be connected with, according to the Miami Herald.

The story said the liens were filed in Martin County Circuit Court Tuesday. Rand, former head of Remington-Rand Corp., is now a resident of Freeport, Grand Bahama Island.

The largest lien for $22,184,222 was placed against the Rand-sponsored Public Health Foundation for Cancer and Blood Pressure Research, Inc., of Stuart. It is registered as a non-profit corporation under Florida law. The lien is for taxes of 1955 through 1962, the government said.

Another lien of $10,911,523 was filed against Rand and his former wife, Evelyn H. Heerman, of Palm Beach. It was for taxes from 1955 through 1961.

The third was against Falmouth Limited, also connected with Rand and with offices in Stuart, $1,959,615.

The liens were made out Jan. 8 in Jacksonville and signed by Jack Durant, chief of the Special Procedures Section of the Jacksonville district of the Internal Revenue Service.

Rand the officials of the two corporations were unavailable for comment.

Turkey Deals Another Blow at Allied Fleet

By ENDRE MARTON

WASHINGTON (AP) — Turkey has pulled out of the proposed multilateral nuclear fleet, knocking another pin out from under the already wobbly project.

The notification was given Washington Wednesday, but officials say they are not surprised. The State Department has been aware of Turkey's lack of enthusiasm for about two months.

Turkey borders Russia, and officials speculated that Moscow's stiff opposition to MLF might have had something to do with the decision.

Uncle Sam's pet tiger already has picked up more than its share of thorns. France attacked MLF violently last month. Britain's new Labor government has been working on alternative plans. Other allies are cool. In fact, West Germany is the only major western power to see MLF in the same light that Washington does.

Turkey's desertion is the first, however, and officials consider it a heavy psychological blow. Others, it is feared, might follow suit.

MLF is a proposal for a separate force of surface ships, equipped with nuclear-tipped Polaris missiles and manned by a mixed crew of Allied sailors. In this way America's allies would share in a nuclear force and yet proliferation of nuclear weapons would be avoided.

U.S. policymakers figure that major countries — West Germany is prominent in their thinking — would build an independent nuclear force of their own if they failed to share in atomic control.

Turkey was one of eight Allied nations studying the political military, technical, and financial possibilities of the plan to launch the fleet of 25 vessels equipped with 200 Polaris missiles. An 11-man Turkish contingent is on the Ricketts, an American destroyer operating experimentally with a seven-nation crew. U.S. officials expect the Turks t obe pulled off.

President Johnson and Chancellor Ludwig Erhard of West Germany agreed last June that the charter creating the fleet should be ready by the end of 1964. A minor delay of a few weeks was granted last December when Britain's new leaders told Washington they needed time to prepare their proposals for a broader nuclear defense system, which would include British bomber planes and submarines.

Before Christmas, Johnson decided to forget about deadlines and leave it to the Europeans to work out a defense system on which they could agree. This meant a return to the original American concept that if the Europeans want a say in nuclear strategy, they themselves must find the means how to do it. It also meant, many specialists believe, a shelving of the idea.

In assessing Turkey's withdrawal, Washington notes Turkey's explanation that it could not afford to contribute to the considerable costs of the fleet, but American officials also suspect a drive for reconciliation with the Soviet Union is as significant.

Gurkha Troops Land to Protect Borneo Areas

By JOHN CATNWELL

KUCHING, Malaysia (AP) — Combat-ready Gurkha troops from Hong Kong landed here in Malaysian Borneo today and began moving toward the Malaysia-Indonesia border where Indonesian troops have been reported massing.

Some of the famed Nepalese jungle fighters were flown to the border area by helicopter. Others moved overland to forward posts for patrol duty along the border.

Shuttle flights of Royal Air Force four-engine Britannias will complete the airlift of the 500-man battalion to Borneo within the next five days. They will bring the number of British Commonwealth troops in Borneo to 10,000.

Many of the Gurkhas have served previously in the Borneo jungles. Originally they were scheduled to return next July but were ordered in ahead of schedule because of the reported Indonesian buildup on the other side of the border.

Indonesian President Sukarno, who has vowed to crush the Federation of Malaysia, said in Jakarta Wednesday that Indonesia "is not going to make war, but if Indonesia is attacked, it will fight and strike back."

Malaysian and British officials put no trust in his words.

British Prime Minister Harold Wilson said last week that 50,000 British and Commonwealth forces were now in Malaysia. Britain also has assembled its largest navy concentration — more than 70 ships — in Far Eastern waters to guard against an Indonesian invasion.

Other allies are cool. In fact, West Germany is the only major western power to see MLF in the same light that Washington does.

Turkey's desertion is the first, however, and officials consider it a heavy psychological blow. Others, it is feared, might follow suit.

MLF is a proposal for a separate force of surface ships, equipped with nuclear-tipped Polaris missiles and manned by a mixed crew of Allied sailors. In this way America's allies would share in a nuclear force and yet proliferation of nuclear weapons would be avoided.

U.S. policymakers figure that major countries — West Germany is prominent in their thinking — would build an independent nuclear force of their own if they failed to share in atomic control.

Turkey was one of eight Allied nations studying the political military, technical, and financial possibilities of the plan to launch the fleet of 25 vessels equipped with 200 Polaris missiles. An 11-man Turkish contingent is on the Ricketts, an American destroyer operating experimentally with a seven-nation crew. U.S. officials expect the Turks t obe pulled off.

President Johnson and Chancellor Ludwig Erhard of West Germany agreed last June that the charter creating the fleet should be ready by the end of 1964. A minor delay of a few weeks was granted last December when Britain's new leaders told Washington they needed time to prepare their proposals for a broader nuclear defense system, which would include British bomber planes and submarines.

Before Christmas, Johnson decided to forget about deadlines and leave it to the Europeans to work out a defense system on which they could agree. This meant a return to the original American concept that if the Europeans want a say in nuclear strategy, they themselves must find the means how to do it. It also meant, many specialists believe, a shelving of the idea.

In assessing Turkey's withdrawal, Washington notes Turkey's explanation that it could not afford to contribute to the considerable costs of the fleet, but American officials also suspect a drive for reconciliation with the Soviet Union is as significant.

Gurkha Troops Land to Protect Borneo Areas

By JOHN CATNWELL

KUCHING, Malaysia (AP) — Combat-ready Gurkha troops from Hong Kong landed here in Malaysian Borneo today and began moving toward the Malaysia-Indonesia border where Indonesian troops have been reported massing.

Some of the famed Nepalese jungle fighters were flown to the border area by helicopter. Others moved overland to forward posts for patrol duty along the border.

Shuttle flights of Royal Air Force four-engine Britannias will complete the airlift of the 500-man battalion to Borneo within the next five days. They will bring the number of British Commonwealth troops in Borneo to 10,000.

Many of the Gurkhas have served previously in the Borneo jungles. Originally they were scheduled to return next July but were ordered in ahead of schedule because of the reported Indonesian buildup on the other side of the border.

Indonesian President Sukarno, who has vowed to crush the Federation of Malaysia, said in Jakarta Wednesday that Indonesia "is not going to make war, but if Indonesia is attacked, it will fight and strike back."

Malaysian and British officials put no trust in his words.

British Prime Minister Harold Wilson said last week that 50,000 British and Commonwealth forces were now in Malaysia. Britain also has assembled its largest navy concentration — more than 70 ships — in Far Eastern waters to guard against an Indonesian invasion.

Lively Panel Discussion Has Audience Participation

"Women Differ" has been one of AAUW's most informative meetings of the entire year, according to Mrs. Robert Quimby, American Association of University Women's president. The lively panel discussion held Jan. 9 at the Fine Arts Center was spiced by active audience participation. The panel moderator was Mrs. Orville Suhre and panel members were Mrs. Paul Bechtol and Dr. Jean Smith Henschel.

A record setting turnout of members and guests showed interest in the topic which covered some of the following things: the technological development of America; statistics on women workers; teaching as the largest profession for women in the USA; the population explosion; the effect of education on women's professions and salaries; specialized educational counseling programs for women; school building expansion; and educational television, plus community and state responsibilities in educational programs for local communities.

A resume of the conference at the Women's Center at Boulder pointed toward more specific areas of study for women throughout the state.

The research materials quoted included "American Women," the 1963 report of the President's Commission on the Status of Women established by the late President Kennedy's Executive Order 10980, as well as numerous U. S. Labor Department Women's Bureau YWCA, and NEA bulletins.

The problems and satisfactions encountered in back to school masters and doctoral programs were enumerated.

The differences between men and women were humorously expressed, and a series of statistical and humorous audio visual aids added interest to the program. These charts were designed by Dr. Henschel.

A business meeting and refreshment period preceded the panel discussion.

Mrs. Siewing Hostess to Mothers Club

Mothers' Club, Bethel 31, International Order of Job's Daughters, held a regular business meeting Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Richard Siewing, with Mrs. Adolph Glommen as co-hostess. Seventeen members were present.

Mrs. Fenton Byerly was authorized to purchase an additional bolt of material to be used to complete new chair covers for Bethel meetings. Mrs. Gene Hagans, president, appointed a nominating committee to present candidates for each office to be voted upon at the next meeting.

Mrs. Charles Gertsch was named chairman of this committee with Mrs. William Ralston, Mrs. Fenton Byerly, and Mrs. Gene Hagans assisting.

Ruth Pearson Goes to Pilot Meeting, Dallas

Mrs. Ruth Pearson of 206 Cypress Ln. left Wednesday for Dallas to attend the mid-year meeting of the executive committee of Pilot International on which she serves as a director. Mrs. Almetta Cooke Brooks of High Point, N. C., president of Pilot International will preside at the meetings during which plans for the annual convention, which will be held at the Sheraton-Dallas Hotel, will be formulated, and projects and work for the coming year will be discussed.

The executive committee will also review achievements of the present year. One of the chief projects has been working with and for retarded and handicapped children. In recognition of Pilot's work in this field, Mrs. Brooks was appointed by President Johnson on the Women's Committee of the President's Committee for the Employment of the Handicapped.

Through the years, Pilot Clubs throughout the country have taken an active part in promoting the principles of Freedoms Foundation, its library and awards which honor individuals, organizations and schools for their work in preserving our heritage of freedom. Mrs. Brooks, Pilot International president served this year with a group of eminent jurists and other national organization leaders at Valley Forge, Pa., to select recipients of the 1964 National Awards.

Pilots also participated in the meeting of the National Safety Council which was held in Chicago in October and in the Safety Councils held in the various sections of the United States.

Pilot International is one of five international service clubs for professional and executive women, all of which give time and thought to service to their fellow man.

He said that 90 per cent of the nation's children under five years of age have never visited a dentist, and only 50 per cent of those under 15 know what a dentist's office looks like.

The bidding:

South's take-out double was a calculated risk attended with considerable danger, for he was ill-equipped to handle an enthusiastic response by partner in spades inasmuch as he was void in that suit. Fortunately West relieved South of any anxiety by bidding spades himself over the double.

North's penalty double of one spade is possibly a shade aggressive but, holding eight high card points and three defensive tricks, he could not resist the temptation to act. South should have pulled in his horns by simply bidding two clubs, for he has been warned of a duplication of values in the spade suit.

West chose to open his partner's suit against the five club contract by leading the ace of hearts. When East followed with the four—which was the lowest card outstanding, West promptly switched to the king of diamonds. East followed with the jack and declarer played the ace.

South cashed the ace of clubs and when West discarded a diamond declarer's outlook darkened considerably. If the clubs had been divided two-one as expected, he had intended to cross over to the North hand on the third round with the nine of clubs in order to discard his remaining diamonds on the ace-king of spades. Inasmuch as he had no other entry to dummy, it now appeared that declarer must go down to defeat.

South was tempted momentarily to lead the jack of clubs from his hand in an attempt to lure East into putting up the queen which would convert North's nine into a delayed entry. Presently he devised a slightly more subtle plan. He led the king of hearts and followed with the jack.

Observe that, if East takes this trick with the queen, he is end played. A club lead can be ducked around to dummy's nine and the return of either a heart or a spade will also provide declarer with access to the North hand.

East was highly skeptical of accepting any "Greek gifts" and he countered South's maneuver by permitting the jack of hearts to hold. Declarer now tried his final shot by leading the jack of clubs. East declined to accept this trick also, and South was forced to concede defeat. He ran down the trumps; however, West hung on doggedly to the queen - nine of diamonds—which took the last two tricks.

FORMER MISSIONARIES — Dr. and Mrs. Hubert F. Sturges (left) of 5033 Garo Circle, were visited recently by the doctor's brother, Dr. Stanley G. Sturges and his wife (right). Stanley, now one year along in a three-year residency in a Topeka, Kan., hospital, was chosen in 1961 as one of "America's Ten Outstanding Young Men," by the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce. He and his wife had spent four years at the Himalayan Medical Mission of Banepa, Nepal, a Seventh-day Adventist hospital which they founded and which was the only hospital in a district with 500,000 Nepalese. The Hubert Sturgeses formerly were missionaries in Ethiopia.

Observe that, if East takes this trick with the queen, he is end played. A club lead can be ducked around to dummy's nine and the return of either a heart or a spade will also provide declarer with access to the North hand.

East was highly skeptical of accepting any "Greek gifts" and he countered South's maneuver by permitting the jack of hearts to hold. Declarer now tried his final shot by leading the jack of clubs. East declined to accept this trick also, and South was forced to concede defeat. He ran down the trumps; however, West hung on doggedly to the queen - nine of diamonds—which took the last two tricks.

GAZETTE TELEGRAPH

Your Freedom Newspaper

Ever striving for the Pikes Peak Region to be an even better place to live

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is self-control, no more, no less. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

The Land Problem

The news has been out for some time to the effect that the Army is seeking a huge tract of land south of Fort Carson. There are approximately 76,500 acres in this tract, some of which is already in state or federal hands, the rest under private ownership. The land is actually in three counties extending into Pueblo and Fremont Counties as well as El Paso County. About 3,000 acres of the land sought is already in federal control.

Now it happens that some of this land has excellent commercial potential. According to F. S. Saum, of Golden, a mining operator, there is something close to 826 million tons of pure gypsum in the region. Clay miners in Colorado Springs, Pueblo and Denver are also contending that if the land is taken and all rights to it destroyed in the process, they will lose valuable clay deposits which they employ in the making of bricks.

We can understand the Army. It wants land nearby for purpose of maneuvers. In recent history, a particular Army war game was conducted, in part on private land, which resulted in serious damage to grazing cover in certain places. Also, when the Army requested permission to make use of certain private lands, the owners refused. The Army does not want to run the risk of inflicting further damage or of being turned down by private parties.

But there is a great deal at stake here and the whole matter should be examined in the light of principle. If private parties in the area wish to sell out to the Army, though we might deplore such a decision, we would uphold their rights to do so. But if private persons and their rights to private property are to be victimized by an employment of "eminent domain" procedures, then we have another whole set of facts with which to deal. And apparently, insofar as certain mining operations are concerned, this is precisely the problem that will arise or has already arisen.

The mining operators, in an adroit move, are showing that if this land is seized and they lose their mining rights, it will result in a $200 million tax loss to the state. But far more than this is at stake.

The Army, as a branch of the government, already has acquired vast tracts of land suitable for maneuvers, some of which, we are given to understand, haven't yet been used at all. For instance, over in Utah near the Great Salt Lake, there are many square miles of federally held land, acquired long ago for military purposes, which have yet to be put to the use the federal government said was necessary and in "the public interest."

Insofar as private retention of land is concerned, our government is on the march, grabbing up whole sections and townships and taking this land out of the ownership of private and productive people.

When this occurs, the very foundation of our society is shaken. If a man cannot own land privately and be certain that it is his, then the long-range plans that he hopes to put into operation when the time is right, will die aborning.

Already the federal government owns and controls one fourth of the land of the 48 United States. If we take Alaska into the equation, the amount of the holdings is increased immeasurably. There is really no positive reason, other than convenience, that would make such a major seizure of acres desirable. And the convenience of the Army in the business of maneuvers can readily be accommodated on other huge tracts already at the government's disposal.

What if the Army had to transport troops to another area through territory owned and controlled by civilians? That ought to be a part of war games and the grim realism they are supposed to simulate.

Federal and state governments already own more than 30 per cent of the land in Colorado. Nor is the land thus obtained always the kind of land that cannot be put to good commercial use, as in the instant case.

Hundreds of private owners, intent on making their own way, have suddenly discovered they face a real and immediate threat, not from a foreign government, but from their own.

The whole purpose of the government is supposed to be to protect our land. When it becomes the major enemy in grabbing up many square miles; where do property owners go for protection?

The Learning Process

In education, all significant effort is made by the student. The teacher may labor diligently but without significance unless a student is expending his own energy.

The Earnest Mr. Ernst

George Ernst, who is nothing if not persistent, is back in our Open Parliament again today with a major admission. Government law cannot compel people to obey God's laws. So far, so good.

Then he goes on to suggest that the reason he wishes to see Sunday closing (blue) laws enacted is for the purpose of protecting workers who don't wish to work on Sunday, but who may be required to work on Sunday because of the competitive position they may be put in, by virtue of the working of other similar stores and business activities.

What Mr. Ernst does not seem to grasp is that the store owners and business operators who MUST work on Sunday in order to take care of their obligations, both to their customers and their creditors, would have NO PROTECTION AT ALL if his favorite law were to be passed. In other words, Mr. Ernst wishes to protect some of the people at the expense of the rest of the people.

Such a procedure is wholly unjust and in earlier days in this nation would have been viewed as unconstitutional and void on its face. The idea that the government can be used to benefit some at the expense of others, was rejected for centuries in Roman and British law, from whence our own system derives. The law, for it to have meaning and general respect, must permit a situation of freedom to pertain, and must limit itself to general rules which will protect ALL, not merely a few.

And Mr. Ernst makes his case even less attractive when he suggests that probably 90 per cent of the businesses would wish to close (and most do) but that there would be a small 10 per cent that would wish to stay open. Thus, he wishes to use the government to crack down on a minority, when the very purpose of law in a supposedly free country is to preserve the rights of minorities.

In actual fact, the majorities require little or no protection, since they are strong enough, in their concerted weight, to look after themselves. The purpose of law, if it can be said to have a purpose, would be to see that those having the force of majorities behind them do not remove the rights of minorities. Mr. Ernst's proposal is the reverse. He wishes to see the majority empowered by law to remove the right of free men who actually require Sunday operations in order to serve their customers and to remain in business.

In his paragraph on the cruelty of the early Christians, Mr. Ernst is grossly misinformed. The Christian church, having obtained governmental backing on its behalf, became the very source of the cruelty which he attributes to individual Christians. Further, the cruelty of which history makes a rather complete report, did not arise out of the Christian community in the first century after Christ. Rather, it began to manifest itself after many generations of Christians had raised their children in the Christian rather than the pagan tradition. This is not to attack Christianity, it is to report the fact.

To divide is not the work of the devil, as he suggests. Free men have always exercised their rights (when they could do so without church or governmental intervention) to make innovations, to pave the way for a better and happier life. Every major step of progress that has been made through the years has been made by minorities of very few persons who refused to unite with error and persisted in blazing new trails.

It may be that there is some strength in "unity" but there is also much tyranny and oppression in any concept that unity, of itself, is good.

Mr. Ernst insists that he believes in free speech and in a free exchange of ideas. Why does he not also insist that free men be permitted to do as they think best in respect to their own hours of business? He contradicts himself mightily at this point, apparently believing that freedom of communication is all that is necessary, even though freedom of action in respect to one's own life and property is curtailed and regulated by force.

Further, Mr. Ernst has refused to consider the many other points we have raised concerning various other lines of endeavor, including the operation of churches. He is blind to all attempts to reason. He merely wishes to win his point, though he destroys many in the process.

'SAVE OUR SUNDAYS'

To the Editor:

First of all, I wish to congratulate the Gazette Telegraph for devoting as much space as they do to letting interested persons express their thoughts if they wish. I will respect the Gazette Telegraph even more if they will print all articles that I may write on a subject because by so doing, they will let me explain any misunderstandings that may occur. So far, they have printed everything I have written, as I have written it, and I appreciate it.

In asking all Christians to join together in getting a law passed in Colorado that would outlaw the sale of all merchandise except drugs, meals prepared and served in the same establishment, gasoline and oil on Sundays, I in no way meant to leave the impression that we should pass such a law to compel any citizen of the United States to observe God's laws. God Himself does not compel us to obey His laws. . .He merely tells us the results of disobeying them and it is up to us to choose what we want to do. Therefore, leave to Caesar what is Caesar's and to God what is God's.

In asking for such a law to be passed, you will note that I referred to it as a PROTECTIVE law. The reason I feel that such a law should be passed is not to compel people to respect God's laws (that would be impossible, anyway), but such a law would give protection to the store owners and employees who work in them who wished to pay more respect to the Lord's Day by refraining from doing ordinary business on that day. We all know that even if 90 per cent of the store owners wanted to close on Sundays, there would be some who would not do so, and even that 10 per cent would be very unfair to the ones who wanted to do what they felt was right. Hence, the need for a law to make it unlawful for anyone to sell merchandise on Sunday, except the items mentioned.

As for the cruelty of the early Christians, it should be remembered that the early Christians, for the most part, were products of pagan homes and environment and lived in a time when cruelty, torture, death and rugged living were an accepted way of life, and men just don't change old ways overnight. In referring to the cruelty of some early Christians, remember that in a large part, they were such men, but it was the Christian man, not the Christian church, which taught such action. The church taught Christ's teaching of the two greatest commandments: 1. Love God with your whole heart and soul; 2. Love your neighbor as yourself. But, as explained before, cruelty and hardship was a way of life and it took time, and a lot of it, to bring us to the high degree of understanding we have acquired in the United States today.

"Divide and conquer" is the way to prevent a united effort to accomplish a given goal from succeeding. It is the work of the devil since the beginning of time and is being used effectively in the world today. However, "In unity, there is strength" and that is why I ask that all Christians consider this action to stop unnecessary transactions of business on Sunday as a goal in itelf. We may have other differences of opinions according to our religion, yet I think and hope there is still unity enough among Christians to be able to accomplish the goal suggested for the good of our society. God gave each one of us a free will to choose what we believe to be His Word to us (the church we choose) and may God forbid that any man even attempt to force his fellow man to believe any way except the way he chooses. Instead, let there be correspondence, speeches, and other peaceful means of education to try to point out the way for those who wish to learn — but, don't ever let there again be physical or economic force of any kind used in the United States against anyone who disagrees with us, provided their beliefs do not violate the basic principles for which our country stands.

On the other hand, if there are enough of the citizens who think an action would be for the benefit in general of their society, don't let them hesitate to take appropriate and effective action to accomplish their goal and do it in such a way as to inconvenience as few people as possible. The question is, ARE THERE ENOUGH CHRISTIANS IN COLORADO WHO WANT TO RESPECT THE LORD'S DAY MORE THAN WE ARE NOW DOING? If so, then how are we going to accomplish the necessary action to make a worthwhile contribution to the cause. This is the basic question. Let us stick to that and let all else which might distract us from our goal stay where it is for the time being. If it is important enough, take up that subject at another time when the proper emphasis can be placed on it to try to accomplish a satisfactory solution.

Let's save our Sundays for God and country!

GEORGE M. ERNST JR.

SACRIFICE

To the Editor:

One finds strange ideas floating around in the vacuum of modern "intellectual" thought, but the last place I would look for them is the Gazette Telegraph. Yet on January 2 in Ambrose Hills' column, "Canada in 1965," I ran across one of the strangest ideas that ever came out of the freedom movement — acceptance of a collectivist premise.

Mr. Hills stated: "The United States rejected the right-wing led by Barry Goldwater. He asked the people to sacrifice too much. . . ."

I find that Mr. Hills' use of "sacrifice" puzzles me greatly. What was this sacrifice?

Implied in this statement is that LBJ did not ask the people to make as many sacrifices. After all, Johnson only asked individuals to sacrifice integrity, initiative, and freedom for the sake of his "conception to the grave" security as promised us in his Great Society. "Yet," I ask, "once these virtues are sacrificed, what is left of man's life?"

To maintain the collectivist "utopia" and to justify the use of a gun in attaining this paradise, the looter — the legalized thief — forces his code of morality on his victims, including conservatives and certain libertarians, by their acceptance of collectivist premises.

The looter says, "Sacrifice is the abandoning of the lesser value for the greater. Therefore, it is good to sacrifice. And it is not good to sacrifice others to self — for this is selfish; therefore, it is better to sacrifice self to others." In two simple "proofs," the collectivist destroys the meaning of two words, one of which perpetuates life — selfishness; the other of which destroys it — sacrifice.

By accepting that sacrifice is the abandoning of the lesser in favor of the greater leads only to the rest of the collectivist trap. Anyone who accepts the premise that "sacrifice is good," deserves the "therefores" that follow.

So, then, what is the rationale of sacrifice? There is none. But to know sacrifice's danger, one must know and understand its nature.

When one saves a drowning prostitute and lets his wife drown, he obviously makes a sacrifice. But when he gives up planned incompetence for integrity, he does not. But according to the collectivist's definition, the first is not a sacrifice, while the second is! Any rational man can see why an argument using collectivist terms only leads to contradiction, and thus, self-immolation.

The nature of a sacrifice, then, is the giving up of a greater value for a lesser value. Total self-sacrifice then would be the giving up of a value for a non-value, and this is what the looter really wants.

Unfortunately, Mr. Hill has just made a meal of himself.

Incidentally, I am glad that Butler Shaffer is now writing for the Gazette Telegraph. Butler is a fine example of what man can and should be.

QUICK QUIZ

A—The Ptarmigan. In summer it is black, brown and white, in winter snow-white.

Q—What is "virgin forest?"

A—Primeval forest unchanged by man.

A—The moose.

A Beef and a Yak For the Fair

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

Thomas Deegan, the chairman of the executive committee of the New York World's Fair, is out to create a body of "yakkers" to talk up the wonders of the show that will be opening again next April at Flushing Meadow. He plans to enlist in his project all the natural talkers of the metropolis — the taxi drivers, the barbers, the hairdressers, and the bartenders.

My friend Fred G. Clark, the chairman of the American Economic Foundation which backs the Hall of Free Enterprise at the World's Fair, would dearly love to get his share of yakking. But before he asks for yak, he has a beef to register — and the beef is quite legitimate.

The Hall of Free Enterprise has been one of the great attractions of the World's Fair. It puts on a show called "Mr. Both Comes To Town." Mr. Both being both producer and consumer, and nobody can watch Mr. Both in action without coming away with a clear conception of how the free enterprise system works.

The electronic display at the Hall of Free Enterprise, which shows what happens to a town when its main factory closes, offers irrefutable proof that a profit and loss system generates more income for more people than any other economic system that could be devised. With its definition-dispensing machines it has been a great educational influence, attracting a million visitors who have had their horizons broadened by entering its portals. For example, before watching the show only twenty-one per cent of a sample group named freedom as the key to the prosperity of the advanced nations, and only fourteen per cent mentioned tools. After seeing the show, forty-eight per cent named freedom as the cause, and seventy-two per cent named tools.

MAKES THE POINT

The Hall of Free Enterprise plugs capitalism without preaching; it depends on visual flow charts to show "where the money goes." It makes the point that profit is an "essential cost," for industries that are without profit find it impossible to raise investment capital. Even the Soviets have come to see that profits are necessary as an index to what kinds of renovation and development are demanded in an industry, so the Hall of Free Enterprise method of dramatizing the function of profit can hardly be written off as propaganda.

The mystery about the Hall of Free Enterprise is that big business itself is so niggardly in supporting it. Mr. Clark's show is not in the parlous condition of the top of the fair restaurant, which has gone bankrupt. But it has sometimes been hard put to it to pay the rent. The people have thronged through the doors of the hall, but the big corporations, with some honorable exceptions, have found excuses to dodge any responsibility for maintaining something that, more than any course now being taught in the universities or high schools, demonstrates their essential reason for existence.

The trouble, as Mr. Clark diagnoses it, is that requests for corporate contributions are usually handed over to contributions committees which are set to dole out money as charity. "Their members," says Mr. Clark, "are products of our schools and are timid about supporting something . . . that might be considered controversial — something that might boomerang and destroy their jobs."

EXCUSES

The excuses come in four categories, each taking off from a usually unvaried topic sentence. Number one is: "We are already supporting the World's Fair." Two is: "Our budget for charity is fully committed." Three is: "We are already supporting similar economic education programs." And four is: "We have our own pavilion at the World's Fair."

Every single one of these excuses demonstrates a lack of logic that hardly bodes well for the future of the American business system. In the first place, it is not "charity" for a big industry to support something that provides a brilliant demonstration of its superiority over Socialist methods of production. Secondly, there is no program in the United States that is remotely similar to "Mr. Both Comes To Town." And thirdly, the companies that "have their own pavilion" at the fair are selling commercial products, not the survival of the system that produces and distributes those products.

This column, which often stands amazed at the inability or unwillingness of American enterprisers to defend their own economic culture, is glad to pass along Mr. Clark's beef. Now let the yakkers take over.

Just Ask

By AMBROSE HILLS

The kindness of people often surprises me.

Recently a statement in Louis Broomfield's book about Malibar Farm puzzled me, so I wrote an implement company for clarification. Apparently there was no simple answer, because I received a six-page letter, and on its heels a collection of brochures. Then, on top of all that, there came—on loan—from the same research man a book with the caution, "Guard it with your life; it's out of print and hard to come by now." This, I thought, was far beyond the call of duty and it certainly was not prompted by self-interest, for I had made it clear I was not in the market for any machinery.

Canadian firms seem equally eager to help solve problems related to their specialty. Until recently, however, there was a shortage of research facilities. That is being rectified today, particularly in Ontario, where Sheridan Park is becoming one of the most modern research centres in the world.

Seed companies are most obliging when it comes to answering questions, even crazy ones from greenhorns like I, who can't tell a nematode from a rutabaga.

Recently I wrote to an electric light company to ask if it is really true that they make bulbs, purposely, so they don't last too long. The president—no less—answered. "There has to be a choice," he wrote, "between the amount of current used and the length of life. We do deliberately reduce the life, in order that you will not draw too much current." That was certainly a different slant than the pamphlet I'd been reading.

Got a problem? There are experts posed with the answers. Just ask!

The American Way

The Universe Is Beautiful

By HARRY BROWNE

People support political programs they hope will bring them unearned benefits. They hope to obtain "something" while giving "nothing" in return.

But that's only one symptom of the disease. Individuals expect others to respect them — even though the respect hasn't been earned. They act as if they have a right to the friendship of others, even when that friendship hasn't been earned.

Husbands believe that wives have a duty to love them. They overlook the fact that no one can be forced to love anyone—that love must be earned by living up to the standards and values of the lover.

Even religion — to many people — has become a "something for nothing" game, an escape from individual responsibility. These are the people who have turned God into Santa Claus. They look at him as a source of unearned gifts. They expect God to do for them what they won't do for themselves. And they expect him to disrupt natural law and turn the rain on and off for their own benefit.

INDIVIDUAL WORTH

What's the cause of all this "something for nothing" business? The answer is very simple: the afflicted individual has no understanding of his own worth. He believes himself to be incapable of earning his own living — or earning the respect of friends — or earning the love of his wife — or honestly obtaining the good things of life. So he demands them.

He wants them "for nothing" because he believes he has "nothing" to give for them.

He's wrong.

We live in a beautiful universe. Nature's laws are unchanging, inflexible. This means that when the right climatic conditions exist, it will rain — no matter how much we demand or plead otherwise. So if we can discover nature's laws, we can predict the presence of rain by recognizing the conditions that cause it.

BENEFITS OF REALISM

And since nature's laws are orderly, consistent and practical, it means that we can use those laws to earn what we want. Every time a scientist discovers a new fact about the orderly universe, we have more knowledge with which to control our own destinies.

The human being is capable of living a happy, fruitful life — if he's willing to accept nature as it is.

The men who invented television, the telephone, automobiles and electric lights were not looking for "something for nothing." They faced the reality of nature and used it. Our lives are better because of their realism.

What about you? Are you looking for "something for nothing?" Are you expecting your happiness to come from political action? Do you earn the respect and friendship of your associates? Do you earn the affection of your beloved? Do you face reality and use it to better your life — or are you praying that nature will be repealed?

Yes, the universe is beautiful. Let's start using it.

Nation's Press

Better Cup of Tea

From The Daily Oklahoman

In the family of nations living in the tall tower beside the East River in New York, Russia currently is playing the role of delinquent. An over-indulgent Uncle Sam, hoping to straighten things out, might well consider the ingenious Glueck Prediction Table.

Prof. Glueck of the Harvard law school and his wife have determined a set of "universals," traits common to delinquents but not found in non-delinquents. Using their table, in 1952, a New York City youth board predicted the fate of 301 boys from a neighborhood with a high delinquency record. A recent follow - up study gave the table an 85 per cent accuracy rate in predicting delinquency and an even higher 95 per cent record in picking out the non-delinquents.

Uncle Sam, wondering what to do about the UN's "problem child," might well give some thought to these Glueck universals: the amount of family supervision, discipline, and cohesiveness (doing things together). In and out of the UN we have disregarded all of these factors in our dealings with the Soviets.

We didn't insist that the Russians pay their World War II lend-lease debts (lack of discipline). We signed a unilateral test ban treaty without insisting on on-site inspection (lack of supervision). We haven't thus far demanded that Russia pay up her UN obligations or forfeit her vote (lack of discipline). And we didn't get her participation in the UN peace - keeping mission in the Congo (lack of cohesiveness).

Granted, Uncle Sam alone isn't to blame for all these failures, particularly those in the Congo. But the table which Prof Glueck describes as "very much like an insurance actuarial table," has proved nonetheless accurate. The lesson is crystal clear. Having compromised on supervision and discipline over the years, we have no reason to be surprised now that Russia proposes changing the rules to suit herself. Having tugged tentatively at the reins, and found them lack and indecisively held, she threatens now to kick over the traces.

To brew a better cup of tea, they say, first determine what made the last cup bitter. And whether it's nations or boys, the Gluecks seem to have fingered at least some of the factors that contribute to the bitter brew of delinquency. Uncle Sam would do well to heed the warning. If we would beat the law of averages in the case of Russia, it is high time we assumed the role of a stern disciplinarian in the family of nations.

We can and must start by refusing to compromise in the weeks ahead on the demand that Russia meet all its UN obligations.

Thursday, Jan. 14, 1965 Gazette Telegraph—9-C

The Land Problem

The news has been out for some time to the effect that the Army is seeking a huge tract of land south of Fort Carson. There are approximately 76,500 acres in this tract, some of which is already in state or federal hands, the rest under private ownership. The land is actually in three counties extending into Pueblo and Fremont Counties as well as El Paso County. About 3,000 acres of the land sought is already in federal control.

Now it happens that some of this land has excellent commercial potential. According to F. S. Saum, of Golden, a mining operator, there is something close to 826 million tons of pure gypsum in the region. Clay miners in Colorado Springs, Pueblo and Denver are also contending that if the land is taken and all rights to it destroyed in the process, they will lose valuable clay deposits which they employ in the making of bricks.

We can understand the Army. It wants land nearby for purpose of maneuvers. In recent history, a particular Army war game was conducted, in part on private land, which resulted in serious damage to grazing cover in certain places. Also, when the Army requested permission to make use of certain private lands, the owners refused. The Army does not want to run the risk of inflicting further damage or of being turned down by private parties.

But there is a great deal at stake here and the whole matter should be examined in the light of principle. If private parties in the area wish to sell out to the Army, though we might deplore such a decision, we would uphold their rights to do so. But if private persons and their rights to private property are to be victimized by an employment of "eminent domain" procedures, then we have another whole set of facts with which to deal. And apparently, insofar as certain mining operations are concerned, this is precisely the problem that will arise or has already arisen.

The mining operators, in an adroit move, are showing that if this land is seized and they lose their mining rights, it will result in a $200 million tax loss to the state. But far more than this is at stake.

The Army, as a branch of the government, already has acquired vast tracts of land suitable for maneuvers, some of which, we are given to understand, haven't yet been used at all. For instance, over in Utah near the Great Salt Lake, there are many square miles of federally held land, acquired long ago for military purposes, which have yet to be put to the use the federal government said was necessary and in "the public interest."

Insofar as private retention of land is concerned, our government is on the march, grabbing up whole sections and townships and taking this land out of the ownership of private and productive people.

When this occurs, the very foundation of our society is shaken. If a man cannot own land privately and be certain that it is his, then the long-range plans that he hopes to put into operation when the time is right, will die aborning.

Already the federal government owns and controls one fourth of the land of the 48 United States. If we take Alaska into the equation, the amount of the holdings is increased immeasurably. There is really no positive reason, other than convenience, that would make such a major seizure of acres desirable. And the convenience of the Army in the business of maneuvers can readily be accommodated on other huge tracts already at the government's disposal.

What if the Army had to transport troops to another area through territory owned and controlled by civilians? That ought to be a part of war games and the grim realism they are supposed to simulate.

Federal and state governments already own more than 30 per cent of the land in Colorado. Nor is the land thus obtained always the kind of land that cannot be put to good commercial use, as in the instant case.

Hundreds of private owners, intent on making their own way, have suddenly discovered they face a real and immediate threat, not from a foreign government, but from their own.

The whole purpose of the government is supposed to be to protect our land. When it becomes the major enemy in grabbing up many square miles; where do property owners go for protection?

'SAVE OUR SUNDAYS'

To the Editor:

First of all, I wish to congratulate the Gazette Telegraph for devoting as much space as they do to letting interested persons express their thoughts if they wish. I will respect the Gazette Telegraph even more if they will print all articles that I may write on a subject because by so doing, they will let me explain any misunderstandings that may occur. So far, they have printed everything I have written, as I have written it, and I appreciate it.

In asking all Christians to join together in getting a law passed in Colorado that would outlaw the sale of all merchandise except drugs, meals prepared and served in the same establishment, gasoline and oil on Sundays, I in no way meant to leave the impression that we should pass such a law to compel any citizen of the United States to observe God's laws. God Himself does not compel us to obey His laws. . .He merely tells us the results of disobeying them and it is up to us to choose what we want to do. Therefore, leave to Caesar what is Caesar's and to God what is God's.

In asking for such a law to be passed, you will note that I referred to it as a PROTECTIVE law. The reason I feel that such a law should be passed is not to compel people to respect God's laws (that would be impossible, anyway), but such a law would give protection to the store owners and employees who work in them who wished to pay more respect to the Lord's Day by refraining from doing ordinary business on that day. We all know that even if 90 per cent of the store owners wanted to close on Sundays, there would be some who would not do so, and even that 10 per cent would be very unfair to the ones who wanted to do what they felt was right. Hence, the need for a law to make it unlawful for anyone to sell merchandise on Sunday, except the items mentioned.

As for the cruelty of the early Christians, it should be remembered that the early Christians, for the most part, were products of pagan homes and environment and lived in a time when cruelty, torture, death and rugged living were an accepted way of life, and men just don't change old ways overnight. In referring to the cruelty of some early Christians, remember that in a large part, they were such men, but it was the Christian man, not the Christian church, which taught such action. The church taught Christ's teaching of the two greatest commandments: 1. Love God with your whole heart and soul; 2. Love your neighbor as yourself. But, as explained before, cruelty and hardship was a way of life and it took time, and a lot of it, to bring us to the high degree of understanding we have acquired in the United States today.

"Divide and conquer" is the way to prevent a united effort to accomplish a given goal from succeeding. It is the work of the devil since the beginning of time and is being used effectively in the world today. However, "In unity, there is strength" and that is why I ask that all Christians consider this action to stop unnecessary transactions of business on Sunday as a goal in itelf. We may have other differences of opinions according to our religion, yet I think and hope there is still unity enough among Christians to be able to accomplish the goal suggested for the good of our society. God gave each one of us a free will to choose what we believe to be His Word to us (the church we choose) and may God forbid that any man even attempt to force his fellow man to believe any way except the way he chooses. Instead, let there be correspondence, speeches, and other peaceful means of education to try to point out the way for those who wish to learn — but, don't ever let there again be physical or economic force of any kind used in the United States against anyone who disagrees with us, provided their beliefs do not violate the basic principles for which our country stands.

On the other hand, if there are enough of the citizens who think an action would be for the benefit in general of their society, don't let them hesitate to take appropriate and effective action to accomplish their goal and do it in such a way as to inconvenience as few people as possible. The question is, ARE THERE ENOUGH CHRISTIANS IN COLORADO WHO WANT TO RESPECT THE LORD'S DAY MORE THAN WE ARE NOW DOING? If so, then how are we going to accomplish the necessary action to make a worthwhile contribution to the cause. This is the basic question. Let us stick to that and let all else which might distract us from our goal stay where it is for the time being. If it is important enough, take up that subject at another time when the proper emphasis can be placed on it to try to accomplish a satisfactory solution.

Let's save our Sundays for God and country!

SACRIFICE

To the Editor:

One finds strange ideas floating around in the vacuum of modern "intellectual" thought, but the last place I would look for them is the Gazette Telegraph. Yet on January 2 in Ambrose Hills' column, "Canada in 1965," I ran across one of the strangest ideas that ever came out of the freedom movement — acceptance of a collectivist premise.

Mr. Hills stated: "The United States rejected the right-wing led by Barry Goldwater. He asked the people to sacrifice too much. . . ."

I find that Mr. Hills' use of "sacrifice" puzzles me greatly. What was this sacrifice?

Implied in this statement is that LBJ did not ask the people to make as many sacrifices. After all, Johnson only asked individuals to sacrifice integrity, initiative, and freedom for the sake of his "conception to the grave" security as promised us in his Great Society. "Yet," I ask, "once these virtues are sacrificed, what is left of man's life?"

To maintain the collectivist "utopia" and to justify the use of a gun in attaining this paradise, the looter — the legalized thief — forces his code of morality on his victims, including conservatives and certain libertarians, by their acceptance of collectivist premises.

The looter says, "Sacrifice is the abandoning of the lesser value for the greater. Therefore, it is good to sacrifice. And it is not good to sacrifice others to self — for this is selfish; therefore, it is better to sacrifice self to others." In two simple "proofs," the collectivist destroys the meaning of two words, one of which perpetuates life — selfishness; the other of which destroys it — sacrifice.

By accepting that sacrifice is the abandoning of the lesser in favor of the greater leads only to the rest of the collectivist trap. Anyone who accepts the premise that "sacrifice is good," deserves the "therefores" that follow.

So, then, what is the rationale of sacrifice? There is none. But to know sacrifice's danger, one must know and understand its nature.

When one saves a drowning prostitute and lets his wife drown, he obviously makes a sacrifice. But when he gives up planned incompetence for integrity, he does not. But according to the collectivist's definition, the first is not a sacrifice, while the second is! Any rational man can see why an argument using collectivist terms only leads to contradiction, and thus, self-immolation.

The nature of a sacrifice, then, is the giving up of a greater value for a lesser value. Total self-sacrifice then would be the giving up of a value for a non-value, and this is what the looter really wants.

Unfortunately, Mr. Hill has just made a meal of himself.

Incidentally, I am glad that Butler Shaffer is now writing for the Gazette Telegraph. Butler is a fine example of what man can and should be.

The Learning Process

In education, all significant effort is made by the student. The teacher may labor diligently but without significance unless a student is expending his own energy.

The Earnest Mr. Ernst

George Ernst, who is nothing if not persistent, is back in our Open Parliament again today with a major admission. Government law cannot compel people to obey God's laws. So far, so good.

Then he goes on to suggest that the reason he wishes to see Sunday closing (blue) laws enacted is for the purpose of protecting workers who don't wish to work on Sunday, but who may be required to work on Sunday because of the competitive position they may be put in, by virtue of the working of other similar stores and business activities.

What Mr. Ernst does not seem to grasp is that the store owners and business operators who MUST work on Sunday in order to take care of their obligations, both to their customers and their creditors, would have NO PROTECTION AT ALL if his favorite law were to be passed. In other words, Mr. Ernst wishes to protect some of the people at the expense of the rest of the people.

Such a procedure is wholly unjust and in earlier days in this nation would have been viewed as unconstitutional and void on its face. The idea that the government can be used to benefit some at the expense of others, was rejected for centuries in Roman and British law, from whence our own system derives. The law, for it to have meaning and general respect, must permit a situation of freedom to pertain, and must limit itself to general rules which will protect ALL, not merely a few.

And Mr. Ernst makes his case even less attractive when he suggests that probably 90 per cent of the businesses would wish to close (and most do) but that there would be a small 10 per cent that would wish to stay open. Thus, he wishes to use the government to crack down on a minority, when the very purpose of law in a supposedly free country is to preserve the rights of minorities.

In actual fact, the majorities require little or no protection, since they are strong enough, in their concerted weight, to look after themselves. The purpose of law, if it can be said to have a purpose, would be to see that those having the force of majorities behind them do not remove the rights of minorities. Mr. Ernst's proposal is the reverse. He wishes to see the majority empowered by law to remove the right of free men who actually require Sunday operations in order to serve their customers and to remain in business.

In his paragraph on the cruelty of the early Christians, Mr. Ernst is grossly misinformed. The Christian church, having obtained governmental backing on its behalf, became the very source of the cruelty which he attributes to individual Christians. Further, the cruelty of which history makes a rather complete report, did not arise out of the Christian community in the first century after Christ. Rather, it began to manifest itself after many generations of Christians had raised their children in the Christian rather than the pagan tradition. This is not to attack Christianity, it is to report the fact.

To divide is not the work of the devil, as he suggests. Free men have always exercised their rights (when they could do so without church or governmental intervention) to make innovations, to pave the way for a better and happier life. Every major step of progress that has been made through the years has been made by minorities of very few persons who refused to unite with error and persisted in blazing new trails.

It may be that there is some strength in "unity" but there is also much tyranny and oppression in any concept that unity, of itself, is good.

Mr. Ernst insists that he believes in free speech and in a free exchange of ideas. Why does he not also insist that free men be permitted to do as they think best in respect to their own hours of business? He contradicts himself mightily at this point, apparently believing that freedom of communication is all that is necessary, even though freedom of action in respect to one's own life and property is curtailed and regulated by force.

Further, Mr. Ernst has refused to consider the many other points we have raised concerning various other lines of endeavor, including the operation of churches. He is blind to all attempts to reason. He merely wishes to win his point, though he destroys many in the process.

MAKES THE POINT

The Hall of Free Enterprise plugs capitalism without preaching; it depends on visual flow charts to show "where the money goes." It makes the point that profit is an "essential cost," for industries that are without profit find it impossible to raise investment capital. Even the Soviets have come to see that profits are necessary as an index to what kinds of renovation and development are demanded in an industry, so the Hall of Free Enterprise method of dramatizing the function of profit can hardly be written off as propaganda.

The excuses come in four categories, each taking off from a usually unvaried topic sentence. Number one is: "We are already supporting the World's Fair." Two is: "Our budget for charity is fully committed." Three is: "We are already supporting similar economic education programs." And four is: "We have our own pavilion at the World's Fair."

Every single one of these excuses demonstrates a lack of logic that hardly bodes well for the future of the American business system. In the first place, it is not "charity" for a big industry to support something that provides a brilliant demonstration of its superiority over Socialist methods of production. Secondly, there is no program in the United States that is remotely similar to "Mr. Both Comes To Town." And thirdly, the companies that "have their own pavilion" at the fair are selling commercial products, not the survival of the system that produces and distributes those products.

This column, which often stands amazed at the inability or unwillingness of American enterprisers to defend their own economic culture, is glad to pass along Mr. Clark's beef. Now let the yakkers take over.

Just Ask

By AMBROSE HILLS

The kindness of people often surprises me.

Recently a statement in Louis Broomfield's book about Malibar Farm puzzled me, so I wrote an implement company for clarification. Apparently there was no simple answer, because I received a six-page letter, and on its heels a collection of brochures. Then, on top of all that, there came—on loan—from the same research man a book with the caution, "Guard it with your life; it's out of print and hard to come by now." This, I thought, was far beyond the call of duty and it certainly was not prompted by self-interest, for I had made it clear I was not in the market for any machinery.

Canadian firms seem equally eager to help solve problems related to their specialty. Until recently, however, there was a shortage of research facilities. That is being rectified today, particularly in Ontario, where Sheridan Park is becoming one of the most modern research centres in the world.

Seed companies are most obliging when it comes to answering questions, even crazy ones from greenhorns like I, who can't tell a nematode from a rutabaga.

Recently I wrote to an electric light company to ask if it is really true that they make bulbs, purposely, so they don't last too long. The president—no less—answered. "There has to be a choice," he wrote, "between the amount of current used and the length of life. We do deliberately reduce the life, in order that you will not draw too much current." That was certainly a different slant than the pamphlet I'd been reading.

Got a problem? There are experts posed with the answers. Just ask!

QUICK QUIZ

A—The Ptarmigan. In summer it is black, brown and white, in winter snow-white.

Q—What is "virgin forest?"

A—Primeval forest unchanged by man.

A—The moose.

The American Way

The Universe Is Beautiful

By HARRY BROWNE

People support political programs they hope will bring them unearned benefits. They hope to obtain "something" while giving "nothing" in return.

But that's only one symptom of the disease. Individuals expect others to respect them — even though the respect hasn't been earned. They act as if they have a right to the friendship of others, even when that friendship hasn't been earned.

Husbands believe that wives have a duty to love them. They overlook the fact that no one can be forced to love anyone—that love must be earned by living up to the standards and values of the lover.

Even religion — to many people — has become a "something for nothing" game, an escape from individual responsibility. These are the people who have turned God into Santa Claus. They look at him as a source of unearned gifts. They expect God to do for them what they won't do for themselves. And they expect him to disrupt natural law and turn the rain on and off for their own benefit.

INDIVIDUAL WORTH

What's the cause of all this "something for nothing" business? The answer is very simple: the afflicted individual has no understanding of his own worth. He believes himself to be incapable of earning his own living — or earning the respect of friends — or earning the love of his wife — or honestly obtaining the good things of life. So he demands them.

He wants them "for nothing" because he believes he has "nothing" to give for them.

He's wrong.

We live in a beautiful universe. Nature's laws are unchanging, inflexible. This means that when the right climatic conditions exist, it will rain — no matter how much we demand or plead otherwise. So if we can discover nature's laws, we can predict the presence of rain by recognizing the conditions that cause it.

BENEFITS OF REALISM

And since nature's laws are orderly, consistent and practical, it means that we can use those laws to earn what we want. Every time a scientist discovers a new fact about the orderly universe, we have more knowledge with which to control our own destinies.

The human being is capable of living a happy, fruitful life — if he's willing to accept nature as it is.

The men who invented television, the telephone, automobiles and electric lights were not looking for "something for nothing." They faced the reality of nature and used it. Our lives are better because of their realism.

What about you? Are you looking for "something for nothing?" Are you expecting your happiness to come from political action? Do you earn the respect and friendship of your associates? Do you earn the affection of your beloved? Do you face reality and use it to better your life — or are you praying that nature will be repealed?

Yes, the universe is beautiful. Let's start using it.

Nation's Press

Better Cup of Tea

From The Daily Oklahoman

In the family of nations living in the tall tower beside the East River in New York, Russia currently is playing the role of delinquent. An over-indulgent Uncle Sam, hoping to straighten things out, might well consider the ingenious Glueck Prediction Table.

Prof. Glueck of the Harvard law school and his wife have determined a set of "universals," traits common to delinquents but not found in non-delinquents. Using their table, in 1952, a New York City youth board predicted the fate of 301 boys from a neighborhood with a high delinquency record. A recent follow - up study gave the table an 85 per cent accuracy rate in predicting delinquency and an even higher 95 per cent record in picking out the non-delinquents.

Uncle Sam, wondering what to do about the UN's "problem child," might well give some thought to these Glueck universals: the amount of family supervision, discipline, and cohesiveness (doing things together). In and out of the UN we have disregarded all of these factors in our dealings with the Soviets.

We didn't insist that the Russians pay their World War II lend-lease debts (lack of discipline). We signed a unilateral test ban treaty without insisting on on-site inspection (lack of supervision). We haven't thus far demanded that Russia pay up her UN obligations or forfeit her vote (lack of discipline). And we didn't get her participation in the UN peace - keeping mission in the Congo (lack of cohesiveness).

Granted, Uncle Sam alone isn't to blame for all these failures, particularly those in the Congo. But the table which Prof Glueck describes as "very much like an insurance actuarial table," has proved nonetheless accurate. The lesson is crystal clear. Having compromised on supervision and discipline over the years, we have no reason to be surprised now that Russia proposes changing the rules to suit herself. Having tugged tentatively at the reins, and found them lack and indecisively held, she threatens now to kick over the traces.

To brew a better cup of tea, they say, first determine what made the last cup bitter. And whether it's nations or boys, the Gluecks seem to have fingered at least some of the factors that contribute to the bitter brew of delinquency. Uncle Sam would do well to heed the warning. If we would beat the law of averages in the case of Russia, it is high time we assumed the role of a stern disciplinarian in the family of nations.

We can and must start by refusing to compromise in the weeks ahead on the demand that Russia meet all its UN obligations.

NCAA Makes First Step Toward Truce With AAU

By JERRY LISKA

CHICAGO (AP) — A surprising twist to the end of the 59th National Collegiate Athletic Association convention may have opened the door to compromise of the long and bitter NCAA-AAU dispute for control of amateur athletics.

The NCAA, closing its convention Wednesday approved—in essence—a boycott of AAU-sanctioned track meets after March 1, but tacked on a resolution to invite the AAU to co-sanction meets "at the domestic level."

This was the most compromising approach by the NCAA in its four-year battle with the AAU in which the real bone of contention has been control of sanction at the international level.

Immediately, the AAU's Executive Director, Col. Don Hull, countered with a courteous, but suspicious reply, while the president of the U. S. Olympic Committee, K. L. (Tug) Wilson, applauded the resolution as a "most promising bid" for peace.

Under the new NCAA policy, schools whose athletes compete in not sanctioned track meets by the U. S. Track and Field Federation after March 1, will be subject to the same penalties imposed for recruiting violations—ranging from censure to banning from NCAA championship and TV revenue.

The prohibition, in what seemed a slight NCAA backdown, will not become effective until March 1 when most of the prime AAU-sponsored indoor meets are completed. The delay was said to be due to paper work needed to implement the new by-law.

On the heels of a voice "majority" approval by the by-law, the "peace overture" bid to the AAU was proposed by Ross Smith, Massachusetts Institute of Technology athletic director—representing a rebel Eastern bloc.

The resolution, passed by a 99-33 standing vote, proposed that the NCAA "by direct communication invite the AAU to participate in negotiations directed towards the formation of a plan to achieve cooperative sanction and certification at the domestic level."

This action stole the spotlight from such earlier convention procedures as:

Voting for a mail referendum on penalties for any college coaches accepting money in any form for aiding pros in canvassing college football prospects.

And authorizing the NCAA Television Committee to increase its football TV package from two to either three or four years when new contract negotiations come up later this year.

Unbeaten Indians Shutout Gladiators

By MORRIS FRASER
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Don Heyliger's second hat trick of the year and Richard Cooper's "first goal of his career" gave Cheyenne Mountain a 6-0 victory over Widefield Wednesday night, despite a fine defensive performance by the Gladiators.

Widefield, long a non-aggressive offensive team, found that the best offense is a good defense and managed to break up Cheyenne drives and start a few of its own. Center Wayne Griffith led the way as, with Indian wings covered well, he took the puck from Cheyenne centers time and again.

But the undefeated Indians were not to be denied their sixth victory in the City Hockey League and it was Heyliger, the league's leading scorer, who paved the way.

The junior wing scored once in each period and added an assist in the third to lift his total to nine goals and ten assists.

Malcolm Moore, Cheyenne wing, was injured in the third period when a Widefield shot caught him in the mouth and sheared a tooth at the gum. But he returned to the ice several minutes later.

Heyliger's third goal came with nearly four minutes left to play on a shot from the middle.

Thunderbird Grapplers Meet Dogs

Wasson's unbeaten wrestling team attempts to retain at least a share of the South Central League lead tonight when the Thunderbirds travel to Pueblo to battle Centennial in what should prove their stiffest test to date.

The T-Birds and Pueblo East share the top rung in the SCL with 2-0 records while Pueblo South is 1-0. South and East meet tonight in the Steel City in an important match while Central and Trinidad battle in Trinidad. Palmer draws a bye in league action this week.

Both the Terrors and Thunderbirds are scheduled for non-league activity Saturday. Palmer hosts Abraham Lincoln of Denver at the Palmer Gymnasium while the T-Birds will be at home to South Denver. The Palmer meet is scheduled for 2 p.m. while Wasson will wrestle at 3:30.

Will Rogers League action Friday will send Cheyenne against undefeated Canon City at the latter's site and Widefield to the Air Academy. League-leading Harrison, 3-0, takes a break from conference duty but will travel to Rocky Ford. Saturday Harrison hosts Pueblo County, Academy High goes to Mapleton, and Canon City travels to Pueblo South. In the Pikes Peak League a day meet will send Fountain to Crowley County. Saturday Fowler goes to Florence and Fountain travels to Leadville.

Two Icers Make Hall of Fame

By The ASSOCIATED RESS

TORONTO (AP) — Tom Lockhart of New York, a hockey official, and Foster Hewitt of Toronto, an announcer, were elected to the Hockey Hall of Fame Wednesday.

Lockhart, 72, has been president of the Amateur Hockey Association of the United States for 27 years. He also has been instrumental in establishing international competition and in the exchange of players between Canada and the United States and European countries.

Hewitt, 60, has been broadcasting hockey in Toronto for 42 years.

CC Sextet Returns Home To Face Michigan State

By LOY HOLMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Editor

"We feel like it's almost the start of an entirely new season for us this weekend."

That's how Coach Bob Johnson described the approach taken this week towards the Friday-Saturday series against Michigan State University coming up at the Broadmoor World Arena. Both games are scheduled for 8:15 p.m.

"It seems strange, but we've played almost half our games for this season and yet have hardly started in the league. We could get right into the think of the race with a couple wins this weekend, though," Johnson said.

The CC team currently stands at the bottom of the Western Collegiate Hockey Association standings with a 2-0 record, falling twice to the University of Minnesota early in December. But since that time they have played nine non-league games—including victories in four of their last five contests.

"Our trip back East gave the team the experience we needed to make a run for the playoffs the rest of the season," Johnson said this week after his return from a trip that carried the Tigers all the way to Boston and Providence, R.I.

"But now we start playing for keeps, and the way I look at it we've got as good a chance to finish among the top teams as any in the league. We have five straight home games in league before having to go back on the road, and in that time it will either make our break us," Johnson said.

Michigan State, this weekend's opponent at the World Arena, has also barely started its WCHA schedule and comes into Colorado Springs this Friday with a 1-1 mark after splitting a pair in an impressive beginning at Minneapolis against Minnesota. State tripped the Gophers in the series opener, 4-3, and then lost the return match 5-2 the next night.

"Michigan State has a fine goalie in Jerry Fisher, who just became eligible before the Minnesota games, but we have a goalie we're proud of too in Mike Carter," Johnson said, indicating there could be some sparkling play in the nets this weekend from both sides.

"I'd say Fisher was the difference in the game for State in their win over Minnesota. He made around 50 stops while Minnesota's goalie was only having five or six a period. But we plan to really pepper him, and I think we've got the offense to get the job done."

Carter will likely guard the CC goal in Friday's game, and Johnson is still undecided whether or not reserve goalie Bill Howard will work in Saturday's contest. Howard injured his neck last weekend in his first varsity start after becoming eligible from a transfer of schools from North Dakota, but the injury was not as serious as first reported and he will be ready for action.

Carter, of course, engraved his name in the CC record books last week when he broke a string of no less than 203 games in a span of eight seasons in which the Tigers have failed to shutout an opponent. Carter, a junior from Panoka, Alberta, blanked Boston Uniersity 2-0 a week ago Monday. BU has been rated one of the top powers in the East this year.

"Overall, the team played real well on the trip," Johnson said," and the competition was a good test before we finish up with our league games. In fact, some of those teams in the East could play right along in our league—they've improved a lot over the past couple years and have added several Canadian players."

Although Brown University was the only team to defeat CC on the Eastern tour, in the finals of the Brown Invitational Tournament, Johnson rated Boston U. as the best the Tigers met. And he said he would be surprised if BU doesn't make the NCAA tournament as one of the Eastern representatives.

Michigan State was also entered in the Brown Tourney, but finished fourth in the four-team field, dropping the first of two games to Brown and then losing the following night to Providence in double overtime, 6-5. Comparitively, Michigan State lost to Providence and CC beat the same team 5-3, while Brown nipped CC 6-5 in overtime and beat Michigan State 6-2.

Johnson said he was especially pleased with the play of his sophomore line of center Jim Amidon and wings John Genz and Bob Lindberg. "They did more scoring for us on the road trip than any line.

"But (Bob) Magie has been just as spectacular. He's our leading scorer for the season and seems to have really picked up the knack of getting the puck into the net."

Johnson has made one slight change in his regular lineup for the Michigan State set this weekend, but otherwise will stick with about the same players used in the past several games. The change involved moving senior Jeff Sauer to wing from center, and junior Dave Peterson to the pivot between Sauer and Steve Ebert. The other line has senior Warren Fordyce centering Magie and Glen Blumer.

TIGER TAILS — Any hockey fans in the region are urged to attend the first meeting of a newly formed "Blue Line" Club which will meet this Friday noon for the first time at the Swiss Chalet.

Michigan State Coach Amo Bessone will be guest and featured speaker. CC's coach Johnson will also be on hand, of course, as well as some of the high school coaches of the area.

Royals-Celtics Makes Hard-to-Beat NBA Team

By MIKE ERCHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Even playing against Oscar Robertson and Jerry Lucas, Red Auerbach manages to guide Bill Russell and the Boston Celtics to the Eastern Division title year after year in the National Basketball Association.

But Red and Russell gave professional basketball fans a change Wednesday night of what might be if they could play with the Cincinnati stars, instead of against them. Not even a team of Western Division All-Stars managed to beat them.

The Big O, Big Bill and Luke took control of the 15th annual NBA All-Star game and led the East to a stirring 124-123 victory over the West after almost blowing a 20-point lead.

"Russell, Oscar and I played on that foreign tour this summer," Lucas said, "and we were used to a lot of the things we did on the court."

Lucas, who hit 12 of 19 shots for 25 points, grabbed 10 rebounds and won the Most Valuable Player award for the game. He attributed much of his shooting accuracy to being set up by Russell.

Luke scored 13 points in the first half and Robertson, notched 12. Russell clogged up the West's offense by forcing poor shots and bad passes, and the trio boosted the East to a 75-61 lead at intermission. When the margin grew to 20 several times in the third period, it looked like a runaway.

But with Russell in foul trouble and Lucas taking a breather, the West began to hit the mark and climbed within 110-107 as a record-breaking crowd of 16,713 roared its approval.

Only Oscar, who scored seven of the East's first eight points in the final 12 minutes, kept the lead until the big boys returned.

Lucas hit a basket for a 122-111 spread. Robertson dropped two more free throws with 1:15 left for the decisive points and a 124-117 margin before the West made its final, but futile, flurry.

After the game, Auerbach blamed fouls for the bit in the final quarter.

"We got the calls against us just as if we were playing on the road," he said. "That was the reason that the West almost caught us, because I could not use Russell as much because of his foul trouble. You saw what he did for us in the first half. The way he played, you didn't know there was a man on the floor named Wilt Chamberlain."

Chamberlain, traded by San Francisco to Philadelphia after the game, finished with 20 points, but had only eight in the first half and when a number of his later baskets came Russell was sitting on the bench.

Shooting, Poor Control Beat West in All-Star Tilt

ST. LOUIS (AP) — "We were beaten because of two things—we gave away the ball too much and we ran into some hot shooting hands," Coach Alex Hannum said Wednesday night after his West team had lost to the East 124-123 in the 15th annual National Basketball Association Al-Star game.

"We beat them soundly off the boards, but they still tried more shots, which is a pretty good indication of how often we threw the ball away," Hannum continued.

Hannum said if he had to do anything differently, he would have used the front line combination of Gus Johnson, Bob Pettit and Wilt Chamberlain longer than he did.

Those three were in the game in the fourth quarter when the West began chopping up what was once a 20-point East lead.

A reserved Red Auerbach, East coach, took the victory in stride for it was his sixth such triumph. Before leaving however, he had some unkind werds for the officiating in typical Auerbach fashion.

"We got the calls against us just as if we were playing on the road," Auerbach objected as usual. "That sixth foul on Bill Russell was ridiculous."

"That was the reason the West almost caught us, because I had to sit Russell out because of his fouls. You saw what he did for us in the first half—the way he played you didn't even know there was a guy named Chamberlain on the floor."

Jerry Lucas, the game's most valuable player, attributed much of his shooting room to screens set up by Russell.

"I was moving around a lot and I think they sagged, around the fringe area, giving me shooting room," the Cincinnati Royals' ace said.

The 'Stilt' Takes Walk To Phillie

By MIKE RECHT

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Wilt Chamberlain, the highest paid player in the National Basketball Association, was traded to the Philadelphia 76ers by the San Francisco Warriors late Wednesday night after he had played for the West in the league's All-Star game.

The Warriors received forward Lee Shaffer, guard Paul Neumann, reserve Connie Dierking and an undisclosed amount of cash for Chamberlain, who pulled down a reported $65,000 a year for his astronomical scoring and rebounding.

The trade ended weeks of rumors and speculation that Wilt was on the block with numerous clubs bickering for his services, including the New York Knicks and the Los Angeles Lakers.

The 7-foot-1 Chamberlain, who never has averaged less than 33 points a game in the NBA and presently is scoring almost 40 points a contest in his sixth year in the league, will join the 76ers for their game tonight against Baltimore in Philadelphia.

Neumann, Dierking and Shaffer, who sat out the season after a salary dispute with the 76ers, will be ready to play Friday for the Warriors against New York in San Francisco.

Frank Mieuli, owner of the Warriors, jointly announced the trade with Irv Kosloff, president of the 76ers, shortly after the NBA All-Star game Wednesday night, won by the East 124-123.

Mieuli said that Shaffer had been contacted and told that he would play for the Warriors.

Both officials glowed over the trade and shrugged off any thoughts that Shaffer or Chamberlain are problem players.

"I'm told Shaffer is possibly a super star," Mieuli said. "He's been training in Durham, N.C., where he works for a trucking firm, and he's ready to play.

Neumann can be a great player and Dierking and the money are the equalizers."

Mieuli said the cash amounted to less than $100,000.

Nate Thurmond, converted from center to forward when Wilt was with the team, will return to center, he said.

Kosloff, who said he didn't think Chamberlain would present any problems for Coach Dolph Schayes or the 76er players, felt that all his club had given up was Neumann, averaging 14 points a game.

"Dierking is a reserve and Shaffer wasn't even playing for us," he said. "I think the deal will help our attendance by helping us produce a winner."

NCAA Makes First Step Toward Truce With AAU

By JERRY LISKA

CHICAGO (AP) — A surprising twist to the end of the 59th National Collegiate Athletic Association convention may have opened the door to compromise of the long and bitter NCAA-AAU dispute for control of amateur athletics.

The NCAA, closing its convention Wednesday approved—in essence—a boycott of AAU-sanctioned track meets after March 1, but tacked on a resolution to invite the AAU to co-sanction meets "at the domestic level."

This was the most compromising approach by the NCAA in its four-year battle with the AAU in which the real bone of contention has been control of sanction at the international level.

Immediately, the AAU's Executive Director, Col. Don Hull, countered with a courteous, but suspicious reply, while the president of the U. S. Olympic Committee, K. L. (Tug) Wilson, applauded the resolution as a "most promising bid" for peace.

Under the new NCAA policy, schools whose athletes compete in not sanctioned track meets by the U. S. Track and Field Federation after March 1, will be subject to the same penalties imposed for recruiting violations—ranging from censure to banning from NCAA championship and TV revenue.

The prohibition, in what seemed a slight NCAA backdown, will not become effective until March 1 when most of the prime AAU-sponsored indoor meets are completed. The delay was said to be due to paper work needed to implement the new by-law.

On the heels of a voice "majority" approval by the by-law, the "peace overture" bid to the AAU was proposed by Ross Smith, Massachusetts Institute of Technology athletic director —representing a rebel Eastern bloc.

The resolution, passed by a 99-33 standing vote, proposed that the NCAA "by direct communication invite the AAU to participate in negotiations directed towards the formation of a plan to achieve cooperative sanction and certification at the domestic level."

This action stole the spotlight from such earlier convention procedures as:

Voting for a mail referendum on penalties for any college coaches accepting money in any form for aiding pros in canvassing college football prospects.

And authorizing the NCAA Television Committee to increase its football TV package from two to either three or four years when new contract negotiations come up later this year.

Unbeaten Indians Shutout Gladiators

By MORRIS FRASER
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Don Heyliger's second hat trick of the year and Richard Cooper's "first goal of his career" gave Cheyenne Mountain a 6-0 victory over Widefield Wednesday night, despite a fine defensive performance by the Gladiators.

Widefield, long a non-aggressive offensive team, found that the best offense is a good defense and managed to break up Cheyenne drives and start a few of its own. Center Wayne Griffith led the way as, with Indian wings covered well, he took the puck from Cheyenne centers time and again.

But the undefeated Indians were not to be denied their sixth victory in the City Hockey League and it was Heyliger, the league's leading scorer, who paved the way.

The junior wing scored once in each period and added an assist in the third to lift his total to nine goals and ten assists.

Malcolm Moore, Cheyenne wing, was injured in the third period when a Widefield shot caught him in the mouth and sheared a tooth at the gum. But he returned to the ice several minutes later.

Heyliger's third goal came with nearly four minutes left to play on a shot from the middle.

Thunderbird Grapplers Meet Dogs

Wasson's unbeaten wrestling team attempts to retain at least a share of the South Central League lead tonight when the Thunderbirds travel to Pueblo to battle Centennial in what should prove their stiffest test to date.

The T-Birds and Pueblo East share the top rung in the SCL with 2-0 records while Pueblo South is 1-0. South and East meet tonight in the Steel City in an important match while Central and Trinidad battle in Trinidad. Palmer draws a bye in league action this week.

Both the Terrors and Thunderbirds are scheduled for non-league activity Saturday. Palmer hosts Abraham Lincoln of Denver at the Palmer Gymnasium while the T-Birds will be at home to South Denver. The Palmer meet is scheduled for 2 p.m. while Wasson will wrestle at 3:30.

Will Rogers League action Friday will send Cheyenne against undefeated Canon City at the latter's site and Widefield to the Air Academy. League-leading Harrison, 3-0, takes a break from conference duty but will travel to Rocky Ford. Saturday Harrison hosts Pueblo County, Academy High goes to Mapleton, and Canon City travels to Pueblo South. In the Pikes Peak League a day meet will send Fountain to Crowley County. Saturday Fowler goes to Florence and Fountain travels to Leadville.

Two Icers Make Hall of Fame

By The ASSOCIATED RESS

TORONTO (AP) — Tom Lockhart of New York, a hockey official, and Foster Hewitt of Toronto, an announcer, were elected to the Hockey Hall of Fame Wednesday.

Lockhart, 72, has been president of the Amateur Hockey Association of the United States for 27 years. He also has been instrumental in establishing international competition and in the exchange of players between Canada and the United States and European countries.

Hewitt, 60, has been broadcasting hockey in Toronto for 42 years.

CC Sextet Returns Home To Face Michigan State

By LOY HOLMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Editor

"We feel like it's almost the start of an entirely new season for us this weekend."

That's how Coach Bob Johnson described the approach taken this week towards the Friday-Saturday series against Michigan State University coming up at the Broadmoor World Arena. Both games are scheduled for 8:15 p.m.

"It seems strange, but we've played almost half our games for this season and yet have hardly started in the league. We could get right into the think of the race with a couple wins this weekend, though," Johnson said.

The CC team currently stands at the bottom of the Western Collegiate Hockey Association standings with a 2-0 record, falling twice to the University of Minnesota early in December. But since that time they have played nine non-league games—including victories in four of their last five contests.

"Our trip back East gave the team the experience we needed to make a run for the playoffs the rest of the season," Johnson said this week after his return from a trip that carried the Tigers all the way to Boston and Providence, R.I.

"But now we start playing for keeps, and the way I look at it we've got as good a chance to finish among the top teams as any in the league. We have five straight home games in league before having to go back on the road, and in that time it will either make our break us," Johnson said.

Michigan State, this weekend's opponent at the World Arena, has also barely started its WCHA schedule and comes into Colorado Springs this Friday with a 1-1 mark after splitting a pair in an impressive beginning at Minneapolis against Minnesota. State tripped the Gophers in the series opener, 4-3, and then lost the return match 5-2 the next night.

"Michigan State has a fine goalie in Jerry Fisher, who just became eligible before the Minnesota games, but we have a goalie we're proud of too in Mike Carter," Johnson said, indicating there could be some sparkling play in the nets this weekend from both sides.

"I'd say Fisher was the difference in the game for State in their win over Minnesota. He made around 50 stops while Minnesota's goalie was only having five or six a period. But we plan to really pepper him, and I think we've got the offense to get the job done."

Carter will likely guard the CC goal in Friday's game, and Johnson is still undecided whether or not reserve goalie Bill Howard will work in Saturday's contest. Howard injured his neck last weekend in his first varsity start after becoming eligible from a transfer of schools from North Dakota, but the injury was not as serious as first reported and he will be ready for action.

Carter, of course, engraved his name in the CC record books last week when he broke a string of no less than 203 games in a span of eight seasons in which the Tigers have failed to shutout an opponent. Carter, a junior from Panoka, Alberta, blanked Boston Uniersity 2-0 a week ago Monday. BU has been rated one of the top powers in the East this year.

"Overall, the team played real well on the trip," Johnson said," and the competition was a good test before we finish up with our league games. In fact, some of those teams in the East could play right along in our league—they've improved a lot over the past couple years and have added several Canadian players."

Although Brown University was the only team to defeat CC on the Eastern tour, in the finals of the Brown Invitational Tournament, Johnson rated Boston U. as the best the Tigers met. And he said he would be surprised if BU doesn't make the NCAA tournament as one of the Eastern representatives.

Michigan State was also entered in the Brown Tourney, but finished fourth in the four-team field, dropping the first of two games to Brown and then losing the following night to Providence in double overtime, 6-5. Comparitively, Michigan State lost to Providence and CC beat the same team 5-3, while Brown nipped CC 6-5 in overtime and beat Michigan State 6-2.

Johnson said he was especially pleased with the play of his sophomore line of center Jim Amidon and wings John Genz and Bob Lindberg. "They did more scoring for us on the road trip than any line.

"But (Bob) Magie has been just as spectacular. He's our leading scorer for the season and seems to have really picked up the knack of getting the puck into the net."

Johnson has made one slight change in his regular lineup for the Michigan State set this weekend, but otherwise will stick with about the same players used in the past several games. The change involved moving senior Jeff Sauer to wing from center, and junior Dave Peterson to the pivot between Sauer and Steve Ebert. The other line has senior Warren Fordyce centering Magie and Glen Blumer.

TIGER TAILS — Any hockey fans in the region are urged to attend the first meeting of a newly formed "Blue Line" Club which will meet this Friday noon for the first time at the Swiss Chalet.

Michigan State Coach Amo Bessone will be guest and featured speaker. CC's coach Johnson will also be on hand, of course, as well as some of the high school coaches of the area.

Royals-Celtics Makes Hard-to-Beat NBA Team

By MIKE ERCHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Even playing against Oscar Robertson and Jerry Lucas, Red Auerbach manages to guide Bill Russell and the Boston Celtics to the Eastern Division title year after year in the National Basketball Association.

But Red and Russell gave professional basketball fans a change Wednesday night of what might be if they could play with the Cincinnati stars, instead of against them. Not even a team of Western Division All-Stars managed to beat them.

The Big O, Big Bill and Luke took control of the 15th annual NBA All-Star game and led the East to a stirring 124-123 victory over the West after almost blowing a 20-point lead.

"Russell, Oscar and I played on that foreign tour this summer," Lucas said, "and we were used to a lot of the things we did on the court."

Lucas, who hit 12 of 19 shots for 25 points, grabbed 10 rebounds and won the Most Valuable Player award for the game. He attributed much of his shooting accuracy to being set up by Russell.

Luke scored 13 points in the first half and Robertson, notched 12. Russell clogged up the West's offense by forcing poor shots and bad passes, and the trio boosted the East to a 75-61 lead at intermission. When the margin grew to 20 several times in the third period, it looked like a runaway.

But with Russell in foul trouble and Lucas taking a breather, the West began to hit the mark and climbed within 110-107 as a record-breaking crowd of 16,713 roared its approval.

Only Oscar, who scored seven of the East's first eight points in the final 12 minutes, kept the lead until the big boys returned.

Lucas hit a basket for a 122-111 spread. Robertson dropped two more free throws with 1:15 left for the decisive points and a 124-117 margin before the West made its final, but futile, flurry.

After the game, Auerbach blamed fouls for the bit in the final quarter.

"We got the calls against us just as if we were playing on the road," he said. "That was the reason that the West almost caught us, because I could not use Russell as much because of his foul trouble. You saw what he did for us in the first half. The way he played, you didn't know there was a man on the floor named Wilt Chamberlain."

Chamberlain, traded by San Francisco to Philadelphia after the game, finished with 20 points, but had only eight in the first half and when a number of his later baskets came Russell was sitting on the bench.

Shooting, Poor Control Beat West in All-Star Tilt

ST. LOUIS (AP) — "We were beaten because of two things—we gave away the ball too much and we ran into some hot shooting hands," Coach Alex Hannum said Wednesday night after his West team had lost to the East 124-123 in the 15th annual National Basketball Association All-Star game.

"We beat them soundly off the boards, but they still tried more shots, which is a pretty good indication of how often we threw the ball away," Hannum continued.

Hannum said if he had to do anything differently, he would have used the front line combination of Gus Johnson, Bob Pettit and Wilt Chamberlain longer than he did.

Those three were in the game in the fourth quarter when the West began chopping up what was once a 20-point East lead.

A reserved Red Auerbach, East coach, took the victory in stride for it was his sixth such triumph. Before leaving however, he had some unkind words for the officiating in typical Auerbach fashion.

"We got the calls against us just as if we were playing on the road," Auerbach objected as usual. "That sixth foul on Bill Russell was ridiculous."

"That was the reason the West almost caught us, because I had to sit Russell out because of his fouls. You saw what he did for us in the first half—the way he played you didn't even know there was a guy named Chamberlain on the floor."

Jerry Lucas, the game's most valuable player, attributed much of his shooting room to screens set up by Russell.

"I was moving around a lot and I think they sagged, around the fringe area, giving me shooting room," the Cincinnati Royals' ace said.

The 'Stilt' Takes Walk To Phillie

By MIKE RECHT

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Wilt Chamberlain, the highest paid player in the National Basketball Association, was traded to the Philadelphia 76ers by the San Francisco Warriors late Wednesday night after he had played for the West in the league's All-Star game.

The Warriors received forward Lee Shaffer, guard Paul Neumann, reserve Connie Dierking and an undisclosed amount of cash for Chamberlain, who pulled down a reported $65,000 a year for his astronomical scoring and rebounding.

The trade ended weeks of rumors and speculation that Wilt was on the block with numerous clubs bickering for his services, including the New York Knicks and the Los Angeles Lakers.

The 7-foot-1 Chamberlain, who never has averaged less than 33 points a game in the NBA and presently is scoring almost 40 points a contest in his sixth year in the league, will join the 76ers for their game tonight against Baltimore in Philadelphia.

Neumann, Dierking and Shaffer, who sat out the season after a salary dispute with the 76ers, will be ready to play Friday for the Warriors against New York in San Francisco.

Frank Mieuli, owner of the Warriors, jointly announced the trade with Irv Kosloff, president of the 76ers, shortly after the NBA All-Star game Wednesday night, won by the East 124-123.

Mieuli said that Shaffer had been contacted and told that he would play for the Warriors.

Both officials glowed over the trade and shrugged off any thoughts that Shaffer or Chamberlain are problem players.

"I'm told Shaffer is possibly a super star," Mieuli said. "He's been training in Durham, N.C., where he works for a trucking firm, and he's ready to play.

Neumann can be a great player and Dierking and the money are the equalizers."

Mieuli said the cash amounted to less than $100,000.

Nate Thurmond, converted from center to forward when Wilt was with the team, will return to center, he said.

Kosloff, who said he didn't think Chamberlain would present any problems for Coach Dolph Schayes or the 76er players, felt that all his club had given up was Neumann, averaging 14 points a game.

"Dierking is a reserve and Shaffer wasn't even playing for us," he said. "I think the deal will help our attendance by helping us produce a winner."

Bucs Must Post Weekend Wins to Stay Contenders

By CHARLIE DREUX
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

"It wasn't one of our best defensive efforts, even though we managed to hold them (Mullen) below their 80-points per game output. We actually lost the game because of hurried field goal attempts in the final period." St. Mary's head basketball coach Dan Wright commented regarding the Pirates first Denver Parochial League loss to Mullen.

Wright further stated that his cagers couldn't cope with Mullen's 6-5 post Terry Pierzina, who played havoc with the smaller-Pirates as the 225-pound Mustang pumped in 24 points and controls the backboards as he snatched 20 rebounds to pace the 66-62 DPL win. And Pierzina fouled out with more than seven minutes left in the final period.

The Pirates thought the loop's leading scorer, Jim Wedow who is scoring 23.9-points per game, would pose a challenge in last Sunday's game and even though he poured in 16 points, it was Pierzina that proved fatal to the Buccaneers.

Going into the Mullen game, Wright's chargers had limited their three DPL opponents to a mere 37-points per game because of the Pirates pressing defense. Despite the fact they managed to hold down the torrid-scoring undefeated Mustangs, which previously had beaten their opponents by overwhelming margins — the closest any team came to Mullen was a 21-point deficit — the Bucs faltered in their offensive endeavors.

This weekend the St. Mary's roundballers are set for two games, beginning with defending DPL co-champion Holy Family on Friday. The St. Mary's-Holy Family game is slated Friday night at the Holy Family Gymnasium in Denver with tip-off time set for 7 p.m. Then on Sunday, the Pirates play host to highly regarded Machebeuf in an afternoon contest beginning at 2:30 p.m.

Meanwhile, the Pirates will have to depend on defending co-champion Regis, a team they defeated last Friday, to stop the unbeaten Mullen aggregation. The Mullen-Regis contest highlights the DPL slate this weekend and should the Raiders top Mullen and St. Mary's emerges victorious over its two opponents this weekend, the DPL pennant chase would be a deadlock.

If this should occur St. Mary's would share the league lead with Mullen and Regis and it would make for a three-team race. A victory for Mullen would give the Mustangs a considerable edge over St. Mary's and put pressure on the Pirates to salvage one victory over Mullen in the double round league competition.

The Pirates are scheduled for a re-match with the Mustangs during the second round, Feb. 12, but the St. Mary's basketballers have the disadvantage of meeting the Mullen group in northern territory.

In reviewing the Mullen-St. Mary's game last Sunday, the local Parokes managed to stay within striking distance of their opponents throughout three periods, and actually took a brief lead in the first half. But the Mustangs shot ahead in the closing minutes of the game when the Pirates got the jitters and thus, they took hurried shots and lost the ball several times because of poorly executed ball control.

Tom McCarthy scored 12 points to lead the Bucs in scoring while Sam Zavatti tallied 11 points.

Lown, Allison Break All-Star Bowling Marks

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Roy Lowan and Glenn Allison collaborated in a historic scoring binge at the $100,000 All-Star Bowling Tournament Wednesday and shattered several opening day records.

Allison, a Brea, Calif. pro, took the lead in the 432-man field with a first day record 1435 six game series. He rolled games of 220, 247, 206, 257 and 248.

Lown is the only contestant in All-Star history with two 300s. He rolled a perfect game in the 1962 edition in Miami Beach, and eventually finished second in that tournament behind champion Dick Weber of St. Louis.

Lown opened with 241 and 255 before unleashing his 300. He shot 254 in the next game, for an incrediblt four game average of 262. He stumbled to a 137 in the fifth game and closed with 204 for a second-place total of 1391.

While the relatively unheralded Lown and Allison were having a scoring field day, some o bowling's most famous names had difficulty solving the 36 lanes installed in the Convention Hall especially for this event.

Four-time titlist Don Carter of St. Louis mustered a 296th place six-game series of 1119. Former champions Bill Welu of Houston and Bill Tucker of Los Angeles shot 1212 and 1173, respectively.

Weber, the spindly St. Louisian who won the 1962 and 1963 All-Star crowns, fired a third-place 1367 series. Harry Smith, winner in 1960, was fourth with 1342.

The men roll 12 more qualifying games today and Friday before the field is slashed to 216 for the quarter-finals.

The leaders after six games:

1. Roy Lown, Brockton, Mass.	1391
2. Dick Weber, Florissant, Mo.	1367
3. Grover Baker, Stockton, Calif.	1343
4. Harry Smith, Boston, Mass.	1342
5. Andy Rogoznica, Chicago, Ill.	1339
Jerry Mcclary, Denver, Colo.	1339
7. Fred Leming, Yardley, Pa.	1334
8. Nin Angelo, Newfane, N.Y.	1321
9. Sam Flanagan, Parkersburg, W.Va.	1314

Two YAL Teams Undefeated

The Cheyenne Aces of the Lightweight Division and the heavyweight Kiwanis Redwings are the only undefeated teams in the Young America Hockey League. The Aces have a 4-0 mark, while the Redwings are 5-0.

The Redwings have the hottest-scoring team in the YAL with 35 goals. They have allowed two goals. The Aces have scored 13 goals and allowed two.

The Cheyenne Maroons lead the middleweights with a 3-1-1 mark.

Steve Brooks of the Redwings has scored nine goals and five assists for 14 points. Teammate Andy Bennett has six goals and four assists. Larry Bruce of the Maroons leads middleweight scorers with five goals and three assists.

John Lantz Leads PPL In Scoring

John Lantz of Salida holds the lead in individual scoring statistics after the first week of Pikes Peak League basketball action. The 6-7 center scored 28 points on 12 field goals and a perfect 4-for-4 from the free throw line last week.

Florence's Dave Zamarripa hit 27 points with a league-leading 13 field goals and one free throw. Bruce Heidenreich of Manitou Springs holds the free throw lead with nine of 11 and a total of 17 points.

'Could Be The Greatest' Says Clay

By JIM BECKER

NEW YORK (AP) — Muhammad X, or whatever his name is, says he could easily end up the most greatest heavyweight champion in boxing history.

Already, he told a press conference, he is the most misunderstood, and maybe the most disliked.

That can work two ways, he said. It costs him a lot of television money, but it sure brings people out at the gate to see him.

"They all want to be there to see the Big Mouth get beat," he said. "And they want to see this pretty face get scratched. But it don't do them no good."

Mr. X, in case you haven't figured it out, is the fellow who used to be known as Cassius Clay, the heavyweight champion from Louisville, Ky., and Chicago.

He has changed his name to Muhammad Ali and has joined the Black Muslims, but he says he still is from Louisville although he lives in Chicago.

"I'll never change my town," he said. "I got my start in that little old Kentucky place, and the people from there, they hear me introduced as the heavyweight champion from Louisville, and they feel real proud, they feel that they had a part in it. But New York and Chicago people, they don't care."

Muhammad was in town to sign a radio contract Wednesday for his return bout with ex-champ Sonny Liston. It will be in Boston, possibly in May, if the doctors give the champion a clean bill.

Muhammad had a hernia operation three days before the fight last November, and it was indefinitely postponed. He will be examined next Tuesday.

"If they tell me it's okay, I will go to Florida right away and start training. I will be ready in six weeks."

The promoters said the fight which may be worth more than $5 million, probably will be in May.

The radio contract, with Mutual, is for $250,000.

The signing reminded Clay that people are deprived of the chance to hear him on the radio on non-fight days, "and you don't never see me on the television. Other champs, they were on there all the time, advertising razor blades and stuff, but they don't use me.

"And all of this because I want to stay out of trouble and live clean and live with God."

Muhammad, ah, Clay said the Muslims have a program that works. It calls for separation of the races.

"The whites have got this all wrong," said the fighter. "You been going around tell the Negroes that they are equal and some of them are fool enough to believe you, and so they come up and say, why can't I go to your church?

"And the next thing they wants to integrate. They start making trouble and acting equal. They are going to start acting so equal this summer that you are going to stop and say, I was only kidding."

"And that's when you'll come to us, because the only thing that will work in this country is for us to separate."

MOVING UP—Steve Johnson, former Palmer gymnastic coach, is the new gymnastic coach at Colorado State University. The former North Denver High School star succeeds Ken McAferty, who has retired. Johnson was an All-America trampoline star at Michigan State. He toured South Africa last spring as a member of the U.S. trampoline team and placed second in the world's professional trampoline meet in the summer.

Washington Holds Lead In Cage Poll

George Washington of Denver has retained its lead in the Denver Post poll ranking Colorado's high school basketball teams. The Patriots, who opened their league campaign with a one-sided triumph over South Denver last weekend, drew 242 points to top the voting for the second straight week.

Aurora Hinkley and Thomas Jefferson of Denver tied for second while unbeaten Arvada was ranked fourth. The top South Central League team is Pueblo Central. The Wildcats are ranked seventh.

Five of the top 10 teams are unbeaten. In addition to Arvada (6-0), Wheat Ridge is 5-0, and three Denver teams, Washington, Jefferson, and Lincoln, are 4-0.

The Denver League has three teams in the top 10, the Centennial League three (Hinkley, Boulder, and Littleton), the Jefferson County League two (Arvada, and Wheat Ridge), the Northern League one (Greeley Central), and the South Central League one (Pueblo Central).

Chief Figures Quiet as NFL Dispute Continues

Meanwhile, Bernie Parrish, Browns' defensive back and vice president of the NFL Players Association, said Wednesday a committee of the association will be here next week and likely will discuss specific charges against Rozelle. Parrish has said Rozelle doesn't represent the players "as we feel we should be represented."

Art Modell, Browns' owner, called Parrish's statement "outrageous and disgraceful" and suggested in a statement Wednesday that the six-year pro back retire if he wasn't happy with the NFL or ask to be traded.

Neither Rozelle nor Brown has commented on the situation.

Rozelle can only be replaced by a vote of the 14 NFL owners, who hired him in 1962 to a five-year contract at $60,000 a year. He has been NFL commissioner since 1960.

Brown, dropped by Modell two years ago, still is listed as a vice president of the club and makes an estimated $80,000 a year on a contract which has four years to go.

Parrish, 29, said the team representatives last week were unanimous in their discussions to unseat Rozelle. The Players Association met at Hollywood Beach, Fla., but he said the idea to make Brown NFL commissioner "was my own idea." A six-man players' committee, including association president Ordell Braase of the Baltimore Colts, will be here next week.

Modell, in Rozelle's defense, said "I'm going to have to assume that Parrish is speaking only as an individual and not for the NFL Players Association. Too many members of the association are familiar with Rozelle's efforts in their behalf.

"Maybe Bernie has a short memory, but it was only last spring the commissioner prevailed upon the league owners to underwrite the present pension plan even if all sources of revenue disappear."

Most of the title playoff TV money, up from $200,000 in 1960 to $1.8 million in 1964, goes for player pensions.

"Unlike major league baseball, no NFL player contributed one cent to this retirement plan," Modell said.

One of Parrish's specific charges against Rozelle was the lack of a player representative on the league pension committee. The Players Association, in its meeting, adopted a resolution demanding a representative on the pension committee.

Bucs Must Post Weekend Wins to Stay Contenders

By CHARLIE DREUX
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

"It wasn't one of our best defensive efforts, even though we managed to hold them (Mullen) below their 80-points per game output. We actually lost the game because of hurried field goal attempts in the final period." St. Mary's head basketball coach Dan Wright commented regarding the Pirates first Denver Parochial League loss to Mullen.

Wright further stated that his cagers couldn't cope with Mullen's 6-5 post Terry Pierzina, who played havoc with the smaller-Pirates as the 225-pound Mustang pumped in 24 points and controls the backboards as he snatched 20 rebounds to pace the 66-62 DPL win. And Pierzina fouled out with more than seven minutes left in the final period.

The Pirates thought the loop's leading scorer, Jim Wedow who is scoring 23.9-points per game, would pose a challenge in last Sunday's game and even though he poured in 16 points, it was Pierzina that proved fatal to the Buccaneers.

Going into the Mullen game, Wright's chargers had limited their three DPL opponents to a mere 37-points per game because of the Pirates pressing defense. Despite the fact they managed to hold down the torrid-scoring undefeated Mustangs, which previously had beaten their opponents by overwhelming margins — the closest any team came to Mullen was a 21-point deficit — the Bucs faltered in their offensive endeavors.

This weekend the St. Mary's roundballers are set for two games, beginning with defending DPL co-champion Holy Family on Friday. The St. Mary's-Holy Family game is slated Friday night at the Holy Family Gymnasium in Denver with tip-off time set for 7 p.m. Then on Sunday, the Pirates play host to highly regarded Machebeuf in an afternoon contest beginning at 2:30 p.m.

Meanwhile, the Pirates will have to depend on defending co-champion Regis, a team they defeated last Friday, to stop the unbeaten Mullen aggregation. The Mullen-Regis contest highlights the DPL slate this weekend and should the Raiders top Mullen and St. Mary's emerges victorious over its two opponents this weekend, the DPL pennant chase would be a deadlock.

If this should occur St. Mary's would share the league lead with Mullen and Regis and it would make for a three-team race. A victory for Mullen would give the Mustangs a considerable edge over St. Mary's and put pressure on the Pirates to salvage one victory over Mullen in the double round league competition.

The Pirates are scheduled for a re-match with the Mustangs during the second round, Feb. 12, but the St. Mary's basketballers have the disadvantage of meeting the Mullen group in northern territory.

In reviewing the Mullen-St. Mary's game last Sunday, the local Parokes managed to stay within striking distance of their opponents throughout three periods, and actually took a brief lead in the first half. But the Mustangs shot ahead in the closing minutes of the game when the Pirates got the jitters and thus, they took hurried shots and lost the ball several times because of poorly executed ball control.

Tom McCarthy scored 12 points to lead the Bucs in scoring while Sam Zavatti tallied 11 points.

Lown, Allison Break All-Star Bowling Marks

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Roy Lown and Glenn Allison collaborated in a historic scoring binge at the $100,000 All-Star Bowling Tournament Wednesday and shattered several opening day records.

Allison, a Brea, Calif. pro, took the lead in the 432-man field with a first day record 1435 six game series. He rolled games of 220, 247, 206, 257 and 248.

Lown is the only contestant in All-Star history with two 300s. He rolled a perfect game in the 1962 edition in Miami Beach, and eventually finished second in that tournament behind champion Dick Weber of St. Louis.

Lown opened with 241 and 255 before unleashing his 300. He shot 254 in the next game, for an incrediblt four game average of 262. He stumbled to a 137 in the fifth game and closed with 204 for a second-place total of 1391.

While the relatively unheralded Lown and Allison were having a scoring field day, some o bowling's most famous names had difficulty solving the 36 lanes installed in the Convention Hall especially for this event.

Four-time titlist Don Carter of St. Louis mustered a 296th place six-game series of 1119. Former champions Bill Welu of Houston and Bill Tucker of Los Angeles shot 1212 and 1173, respectively.

Weber, the spindly St. Louisian who won the 1962 and 1963 All-Star crowns, fired a third-place 1367 series. Harry Smith, winner in 1960, was fourth with 1342.

The men roll 12 more qualifying games today and Friday before the field is slashed to 216 for the quarter-finals.

The leaders after six games:

1.	Roy Lown, Brockton, Mass.	1391
2.	Dick Weber, Florissant, Mo.	1367
3.	Grover Baker, Stockton, Calif.	1343
4.	Harry Smith, Boston, Mass.	1342
5.	Andy Rogoznica, Chicago, Ill.	1339
	Jerry Mcclary, Denver, Colo.	1339
7.	Fred Lening, Yardley, Pa.	1334
8.	Nin Angelo, Newfane, N.Y.	1321
9.	Sam Flanagan, Parkersburg, W.Va.	1314

Two YAL Teams Undefeated

The Cheyenne Aces of the Lightweight Division and the heavyweight Kiwanis Redwings are the only undefeated teams in the Young America Hockey League. The Aces have a 4-0 mark, while the Redwings are 5-0.

The Redwings have the hottest-scoring team in the YAL with 35 goals. They have allowed two goals. The Aces have scored 13 goals and allowed two.

The Cheyenne Maroons lead the middleweights with a 3-1-1 mark.

Steve Brooks of the Redwings has scored nine goals and five assists for 14 points. Teammate Andy Bennett has six goals and four assists. Larry Bruce of the Maroons leads middleweight scorers with five goals and three assists.

John Lantz Leads PPL In Scoring

John Lantz of Salida holds the lead in individual scoring statistics after the first week of Pikes Peak League basketball action. The 6-7 center scored 28 points on 12 field goals and a perfect 4-for-4 from the free throw line last week.

Florence's Dave Zamarripa hit 27 points with a league-leading 13 field goals and one free throw. Bruce Heidenreich of Manitou Springs holds the free throw lead with nine of 11 and a total of 17 points.

'Could Be The Greatest' Says Clay

By JIM BECKER

NEW YORK (AP) — Muhammad X, or whatever his name is, says he could easily end up the most greatest heavyweight champion in boxing history.

Already, he told a press conference, he is the most misunderstood, and maybe the most disliked.

That can work two ways, he said. It costs him a lot of television money, but it sure brings people out at the gate to see him.

"They all want to be there to see the Big Mouth get beat," he said. "And they want to see this pretty face get scratched. But it don't do them no good."

Mr. X, in case you haven't figured it out, is the fellow who used to be known as Cassius Clay, the heavyweight champion from Louisville, Ky., and Chicago.

He has changed his name to Muhammad Ali and has joined the Black Muslims, but he says he still is from Louisville although he lives in Chicago.

"I'll never change my town," he said. "I got my start in that little old Kentucky place, and the people from there, they hear me introduced as the heavyweight champion from Louisville, and they feel real proud, they feel that they had a part in it. But New York and Chicago people, they don't care."

Muhammad was in town to sign a radio contract Wednesday for his return bout with ex-champ Sonny Liston. It will be in Boston, possibly in May, if the doctors give the champion a clean bill.

Muhammad had a hernia operation three days before the fight last November, and it was indefinitely postponed. He will be examined next Tuesday.

"If they tell me it's okay, I will go to Florida right away and start training. I will be ready in six weeks."

The promoters said the fight which may be worth more than $5 million, probably will be in May.

The radio contract, with Mutual, is for $250,000.

The signing reminded Clay that people are deprived of the chance to hear him on the radio on non-fight days, "and you don't never see me on the television. Other champs, they were on there all the time, advertising razor blades and stuff, but they don't use me.

"And all of this because I want to stay out of trouble and live clean and live with God."

Muhammad, ah, Clay said the Muslims have a program that works. It calls for separation of the races.

"The whites have got this all wrong," said the fighter. "You been going around tell the Negroes that they are equal and some of them are fool enough to believe you, and so they come up and say, why can't I go to your church?

"And the next thing they wants to integrate. They start making trouble and acting equal. They are going to start acting so equal this summer that you are going to stop and say, I was only kidding."

"And that's when you'll come to us, because the only thing that will work in this country is for us to separate."

MOVING UP—Steve Johnson, former Palmer gymnastic coach, is the new gymnastic coach at Colorado State University. The former North Denver High School star succeeds Ken McAferty, who has retired. Johnson was an All-America trampoline star at Michigan State. He toured South Africa last spring as a member of the U.S. trampoline team and placed second in the world's professional trampoline meet in the summer.

Washington Holds Lead In Cage Poll

George Washington of Denver has retained its lead in the Denver Post poll ranking Colorado's high school basketball teams. The Patriots, who opened their league campaign with a one-sided triumph over South Denver last weekend, drew 242 points to top the voting for the second straight week.

Aurora Hinkley and Thomas Jefferson of Denver tied for second while unbeaten Arvada was ranked fourth. The top South Central League team is Pueblo Central. The Wildcats are ranked seventh.

Five of the top 10 teams are unbeaten. In addition to Arvada (6-0), Wheat Ridge is 5-0, and three Denver teams, Washington, Jefferson, and Lincoln, are 4-0.

The Denver League has three teams in the top 10, the Centennial League three (Hinkley, Boulder, and Littleton), the Jefferson County League two (Arvada, and Wheat Ridge), the Northern League one (Greeley Central), and the South Central League one (Pueblo Central).

Mexico City Has Housing for Olympics

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Even if no more hotels are built in the next few years, Mexico City will have no problem housing visitors expected for the 1968 Olympics, says the Federal District Hotel Association.

Chief Figures Quiet as NFL Dispute Continues

Meanwhile, Bernie Parrish, Browns' defensive back and vice president of the NFL Players Association, said Wednesday a committee of the association will be here next week and likely will discuss specific charges against Rozelle. Parrish has said Rozelle doesn't represent the players "as we feel we should be represented."

Art Modell, Browns' owner, called Parrish's statement "outrageous and disgraceful" and suggested in a statement Wednesday that the six-year pro back retire if he wasn't happy with the NFL or ask to be traded.

Neither Rozelle nor Brown has commented on the situation.

Rozelle can only be replaced by a vote of the 14 NFL owners, who hired him in 1962 to a five-year contract at $60,000 a year. He has been NFL commissioner since 1960.

Brown, dropped by Modell two years ago, still is listed as a vice president of the club and makes an estimated $80,000 a year on a contract which has four years to go.

Parrish, 29, said the team representatives last week were unanimous in their discussions to unseat Rozelle. The Players Association met at Hollywood Beach, Fla., but he said the idea to make Brown NFL commissioner "was my own idea." A six-man players' committee, including association president Ordell Braase of the Baltimore Colts, will be here next week.

Modell, in Rozelle's defense, said "I'm going to have to assume that Parrish is speaking only as an individual and not for the NFL Players Association. Too many members of the association are familiar with Rozelle's efforts in their behalf.

"Maybe Bernie has a short memory, but it was only last spring the commissioner prevailed upon the league owners to underwrite the present pension plan even if all sources of revenue disappear."

Most of the title playoff TV money, up from $200,000 in 1960 to $1.8 million in 1964, goes for player pensions.

"Unlike major league baseball, no NFL player contributed one cent to this retirement plan," Modell said.

One of Parrish's specific charges against Rozelle was the lack of a player representative on the league pension committee. The Players Association, in its meeting, adopted a resolution demanding a representative on the pension committee.

Greyhound Buys 100 New Single Level Buses

Greyhound announced today it has purchased 100 new single-level buses for $4.5 million.

F. W. Ackerman, chairman and president of the parent Greyhound Corporation, said the buses are being put into service by the firm's transportation subsidiary company, Greyhound Lines, to handle the added number of passengers anticipated in the forthcoming travel season.

He said this is in line with the firm's policy of continual upgrading of its fleet.

The buses were built by Motor Coach Industries, Inc., Greyhound's bus-building subsidiary located at Pembina, N.D.

Southgate Bank Holds Meeting Of Shareholders

The Southgate State Bank held its shareholders meeting at 3:30 p.m. Tuesday in the offices of the bank building.

Thirty persons attended the meeting in person, supplemented by 90 proxies.

The business agenda included the declaration of 20 per cent stock dividend and the election of officers and directors.

Directors elected were: G. G. Caldwell, executive vice president of the bank; Hugh B. Hill, president of the Hill Oil Co.; Robert W. Johnson, attorney; William B. Jordan, merchant; Roy J. Pring, attorney and ranchman; Donald J. Roberson, president of Roberson Lawn Sprinkling Co.; Selby Young, stockman and H. C. Gerber, ban chairman of the board.

Officers are: Arnie E. Shaugset Jr., cashier; L. D. Sawayne, assistant vice president; William E. Sessions, assistant cashier; John C. Birkes, assistant cashier and Elmer M. Wolfe, assistant cashier.

Gerber has announced that the bank's earnings were good in 1964 and expects the volume of business and earnings to be as good or better in 1965.

Supermarket Service Group Names President

Sam Newton, vice president of Western Merchants Wholesale, Denver, was elected president of the American Research Merchandising Institute, Tuesday.

The executive, whose company is one of the Institute's supermarket non - food service distributors, has been involved in ARMI leadership for five years, first as a member of its board of directors, and since 1963 as vice president.

ARMI is a national product research association of 37 distributors who service and supply non - food items on a guaranteed sale basis. Last year the group created about $1 billion in check-out sales.

Western Merchants Wholesale Inventories over 7,000 different items a year in their 50,000 square foot plant. They rotate these items in 680 customer stores in Colorado, Wyoming, South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, New Mexico, and Utah.

Supermarket shoppers buy these items only on impulse and ARMI develops complex merchandising techniques and methods of item selection to arouse the impulse to buy.

Bank Officials Optimistic for Coming Year

An optomistic outlook for the Pikes Peak area was projected by directors, officers, and stockholders who convened at the annual meeting of The Central Colorado Bank held at the bank, 2339 E. Platte Avenue, at 3:00 p.m., Tuesday.

Winford Griffin, president of the bank, in his report to stockholders stated, "we have every reason to believe the development east of Colorado Springs and particularly in the immediate vicinity of the bank indicates a continuous and rapid growth for the next few years."

He pointed to the growth of the Central's resources over the past 11 years, over 1,000,000 a year.

Stockholders voted a 10 per cent stock dividend to stockholders of record Dec. 31, 1964. This dividend was made possible by the growth of the bank during the past year.

Directors elected at the meeting were the following: Rush Appleman rancher; William L. Briscoe, scientist; Winford Griffin, president; Kenneth F. Heizer, Sr. vice president; Caywood B. Lindsey, Sr., vice president; Lewis M. Poe, chairman; Howard E. Reader, Southern Colorado Power Company; John B. Shearer, Shearer Hardware Company and Billie H. Smartt, Smartt Construction Company.

Following the business sessions stockholders were given a preview of the functions of the new IBM 1240 electronic data processing system currently being installed in the bank's building.

The annual report shows the bank to have total resources of $11,932,182.78 as of the close of business this year. Resources in 1953 were only $1,845,401.02.

Bank Officers, Directors Named At Meeting

Seven Colorado Springs men were elected to the Board of Directors of the Western National Bank of Colorado Springs at the bank's annual stockholders' meeting, Tuesday.

They are Paul A. Barber, 13 Alta Vista Rd., George H. Brosius, Jr., 2305 Monteagle St., Carlton C. Finney, 2030 McArthur Ave., Willis P. Fischer, 2909 Marilyn Rd.; Leonard J. Rhue, 1027 N. Meade Ae., Leo H. Ververs, 2827 E. Pikes Peak Ave., and Ray E. Robinson, 24 W. Rio Grande St.

Robinson is the new member on the board and has been cashier of the bank since its organization in September. He is 35 years of age, a native of Colorado Springs and has been in the banking business here for the past 16 years. He is vice-president and director of the Southern Colorado Conference National Association of Bank Auditors, comptrollers and operational men and past president and director of the Colorado Springs chapter American Institute of Banking. Active in civic affairs, Robinson is board chairman of Junior Achievement Program for high school students, treasurer and director of the Colorado Springs Campership Fund for under-privileged children, vice-president of the East Colorado Springs Business Association, director of the Knob Hill Businessmen's Association, charter member of the Knob Hill Optimist Club and worshipful master of the El Paso Lodge No. 13 AF&AM.

Immediately following the shareholders' meeting of the Western National Bank, a directors' meeting was held.

Harold R. Grueskin, 18 2nd St., Broadmoor was elected to the board of directors. Grueskin, 41, is president of Dividend Bonded Gas which he founded here seven years ago. He is chairman of Colorado Springs Chamber of Commerce Streets and Highways Committee and vice-president of the Pikes Peak Chapter, Association of United States Army, (AUSA). He and his wife, Charlotte, have four children — Linda, Sally, Mark and Bill. The family has lived in Colorado Springs since 1958.

Leo H. Ververs, was reelected chairman of the board of directors.

Willis P. Fischer was re-elected president of the bank and Carlton C. Finney was re-elected vice-president.

Ray E. Robinson was named vice-president and cashier and Lawrence D. Naslund, 710 South Union Avenue was named assistant cashier.

Robinson has served as cashier of the bank since its organization last year.

Naslund, 24, has been with the bank since it was organized, and is a native of Chinook, Mont. He moved to Colorado Springs in August after serving in the United States Army at Ft. Carson from 1961-63. He was formerly employed for three years as executive trainee for the Citizens' Bank of Havre, Mont. He is affiliated with the Chinook, Mont. Lodge No. 50 AF&AM.

Greyhound Buys 100 New Single Level Buses

Greyhound announced today it has purchased 100 new single-level buses for $4.5 million.

F. W. Ackerman, chairman and president of the parent Greyhound Corporation, said the buses are being put into service by the firm's transportation subsidiary company, Greyhound Lines, to handle the added number of passengers anticipated in the forthcoming travel season.

He said this is in line with the firm's policy of continual upgrading of its fleet.

The buses were built by Motor Coach Industries, Inc., Greyhound's bus-building subsidiary located at Pembina, N.D.

Gerber has announced that the bank's earnings were good in 1964 and expects the volume of business and earnings to be as good or better in 1965.

Supermarket Service Group Names President

Sam Newton, vice president of Western Merchants Wholesale, Denver, was elected president of the American Research Merchandising Institute, Tuesday.

The executive, whose company is one of the Institute's supermarket non - food service distributors, has been involved in ARMI leadership for five years, first as a member of its board of directors, and since 1963 as vice president.

ARMI is a national product research association of 37 distributors who service and supply non - food items on a guaranteed sale basis. Last year the group created about $1 billion in check-out sales.

Western Merchants Wholesale Inventories over 7,000 different items a year in their 50,000 square foot plant. They rotate these items in 680 customer stores in Colorado, Wyoming, South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, New Mexico, and Utah.

Supermarket shoppers buy these items only on impulse and ARMI develops complex merchandising techniques and methods of item selection to arouse the impulse to buy.

Bank Officials Optimistic for Coming Year

An optomistic outlook for the Pikes Peak area was projected by directors, officers, and stockholders who convened at the annual meeting of The Central Colorado Bank held at the bank, 2339 E. Platte Avenue, at 3:00 p.m., Tuesday.

Winford Griffin, president of the bank, in his report to stockholders stated, "we have every reason to believe the development east of Colorado Springs and particularly in the immediate vicinity of the bank indicates a continuous and rapid growth for the next few years."

He pointed to the growth of the Central's resources over the past 11 years, over 1,000,000 a year.

Stockholders voted a 10 per cent stock dividend to stockholders of record Dec. 31, 1964. This dividend was made possible by the growth of the bank during the past year.

Directors elected at the meeting were the following: Rush Appleman rancher; William L. Briscoe, scientist; Winford Griffin, president; Kenneth F. Heizer, Sr. vice president; Caywood B. Lindsey, Sr., vice president; Lewis M. Poe, chairman; Howard E. Reader, Southern Colorado Power Company; John B. Shearer, Shearer Hardware Company and Billie H. Smartt, Smartt Construction Company.

Following the business sessions stockholders were given a preview of the functions of the new IBM 1240 electronic data processing system currently being installed in the bank's building.

The annual report shows the bank to have total resources of $11,932,182.78 as of the close of business this year. Resources in 1953 were only $1,845,401.02.

Bank Officers, Directors Named At Meeting

Seven Colorado Springs men were elected to the Board of Directors of the Western National Bank of Colorado Springs at the bank's annual stockholders' meeting, Tuesday.

They are Paul A. Barber, 13 Alta Vista Rd., George H. Brosius, Jr., 2305 Monteagle St., Carlton C. Finney, 2030 McArthur Ave., Willis P. Fischer, 2909 Marilyn Rd.; Leonard J. Rhue, 1027 N. Meade Ae., Leo H. Ververs, 2827 E. Pikes Peak Ave., and Ray E. Robinson, 24 W. Rio Grande St.

Robinson is the new member on the board and has been cashier of the bank since its organization in September. He is 35 years of age, a native of Colorado Springs and has been in the banking business here for the past 16 years. He is vice-president and director of the Southern Colorado Conference National Association of Bank Auditors, comptrollers and operational men and past president and director of the Colorado Springs chapter American Institute of Banking. Active in civic affairs, Robinson is board chairman of Junior Achievement Program for high school students, treasurer and director of the Colorado Springs Campership Fund for under-privileged children, vice-president of the East Colorado Springs Business Association, director of the Knob Hill Businessmen's Association, charter member of the Knob Hill Optimist Club and worshipful master of the El Paso Lodge No. 13 AF&AM.

Immediately following the shareholders' meeting of the Western National Bank, a directors' meeting was held.

Harold R. Grueskin, 18 2nd St., Broadmoor was elected to the board of directors. Grueskin, 41, is president of Dividend Bonded Gas which he founded here seven years ago. He is chairman of Colorado Springs Chamber of Commerce Streets and Highways Committee and vice-president of the Pikes Peak Chapter, Association of United States Army, (AUSA). He and his wife, Charlotte, have four children — Linda, Sally, Mark and Bill. The family has lived in Colorado Springs since 1958.

Leo H. Ververs, was reelected chairman of the board of directors.

Willis P. Fischer was re-elected president of the bank and Carlton C. Finney was re-elected vice-president.

Ray E. Robinson was named vice-president and cashier and Lawrence D. Naslund, 710 South Union Avenue was named assistant cashier.

Robinson has served as cashier of the bank since its organization last year.

Naslund, 24, has been with the bank since it was organized, and is a native of Chinook, Mont. He moved to Colorado Springs in August after serving in the United States Army at Ft. Carson from 1961-63. He was formerly employed for three years as executive trainee for the Citizens' Bank of Havre, Mont. He is affiliated with the Chinook, Mont. Lodge No. 50 AF&AM.

Gray Line Co. Elects a New President

Sidney Engelhardt, president of Gray Line New York Tours Corporation, has been elected president of Gray Line Sight-Seeing Companies Associated — the world's largest organization of its kind.

For the past year Engelhardt has been first vice president of the association, and a member of its executive committee in 1963 - 64. He succeeds Charles H. Tanner, who retires after six years of service as Gray Line president.

Gray Line franchises operate not only in every major city of the continental United States, but also in Canada, Hawaii, Alaska, Mexico, Bermuda, Nassau, Jamaica, Gaudaloupe, Puerto Rico, Trinidad, Australia, Hong Kong, the Philippines and Tahiti.

'Night Pastor' Ministers to 'Night People'

By MARGARET SCHERF

CHICAGO (AP) — Amid the gaudy neon lights which awaken Rush Street at dusk is a small desk lamp, illuminating in a second-story window a narrow white sign: "Night Pastor."

Behind it, six nights a week, sits the Rev. Robert H. Owen, minister to the "night people" — the bartenders, B-girls, musicians, cabbies and cooks of Chicago's near North Side entertainment strip.

Father Owen, 40, a Protestant Episcopal priest with a wife and six children, describes his work as an "offbeat ministry." His comments during an interview Wednesday bore out the description:

—"This guy had just been rolled of $800 and somebody referred him to me. I didn't get the $800 back but I think I made him feel a little better about losing it.

—"A young couple who had been living together for six months saw the sign in the window and came up out of curiosity. Three days later I married them."

—"A lot of drunks wander in. They need to get some swill in them before they can talk about their problems."

A piano player of sorts, he started his unusual pastorate as the result of his friendship with many of the Rush Street night-club musicians.

In September, after "talking and talking and talking," Father Owen got permission from Bishop Gerald F. Burrill of the Diocese of Chicago to start a "night pastorate."

Those who come to see him have family problems, marital problems, problems with liquor or narcotics, but basically they are bothered about religion.

"Usually they've been in the church earlier in their lives but have dropped out. Now they're looking for something — what they're really looking for is God," he said.

Assistant Principal Faces Haircut Suit

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — An assistant principal charged with assault in the clipping of a boy's hair waived preliminary hearing Wednesday and was bound over to Criminal Court.

Jerry Harper, 15, a ninth grader at Kirby-Smith, claims his hair was cut to the scalp last week by Mark.

Art Collection Is Given to School

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dr. Armand Hammer, chairman of the board and president of the Occidental Petroleum Co., has donated his private art collection, including works by Rembrandt, Frans Hals, Rubens and Lippi, to the University of Southern California in Los Angeles.

The 50 paintings are believed to be worth $1 million.

LEGAL NOTICE

PUBLIC NOTICE OF SPECIAL SCHOOL BOND ELECTION
SCHOOL DISTRICT NO. 8
IN THE COUNTY OF EL PASO
STATE OF COLORADO
TO BE HELD
JANUARY 19, 1965

PUBLIC NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that pursuant to law and requisite action of the Board of Education of School District No. 8 (herein sometimes designated the "District" or the "School District"), in the County of El Paso and State of Colorado, a special school bond election has been called and will be held in the District on Tuesday, January 19, 1965.

For the election, the District shall constitute one election precinct. The boundaries of said election precinct shall be coincident with that of the District and the voting place in said election precinct is the high school, Fountain, Colorado.

At the election there shall be submitted to the registered qualified taxpaying electors of the District the following question:

Shall the Board of Education of School District No. 8, in the County of El Paso, and State of Colorado, contract a bonded indebtedness of not exceeding $600,000.00, for the purpose of erecting and furnishing school buildings within and for said District, said bonds to be sold and issued in one or more series, to mature serially within a period commencing not later than five years from the date thereof and extending not more than twenty years from such date, and not more than twenty-five years from the date of this election, and to bear interest at a rate or rates not exceeding six per centum (6%) per annum?

The polls will be opened at the hour of seven a.m. on said day and will be kept open and will be closed at the hour of seven p.m. of said day at the above-designated voting place in the election precinct established by the Board of Education of the District. No vote for or against said question shall be permitted unless the person offering to vote is a registered qualified taxpaying elector of the District. Any registered qualified taxpaying elector desiring to vote at such bond election shall sign a written oath that he has, during the twelve months next preceding said election, paid an ad valorem school tax upon property situated within said School District and owned by said person. A registered qualified taxpaying elector is any person who is at least twenty-one years of age, a citizen of the United States, who has resided in the State for twelve months, in the County for ninety days, and in the School District thirty days, and in the school election precinct fifteen days immediately preceding the election at which he offers to vote, who, during the twelve months next preceding said election, has paid an ad valorem school tax upon property situated within the School District and owned by said person and who has registered in the manner required by law for the election of school directors.

Absentee voting will be permitted in the manner authorized by law. A registered qualified taxpaying elector may file or may cause to be filed an application, which may be in the form of a letter, for a paper ballot not earlier than twenty (20) days nor later than three (3) days before the election, such application stating his residence address and the fact that he will be absent from the District on the day of the election (or otherwise stating the reasons provided by law warranting the casting of an absentee ballot). Such filing shall be with the Secretary of the Board of the District, at the School Administration Office, 515 North Santa Fe, Fountain, Colorado.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the Board of Education of School District No. 8, in the County of El Paso, State of Colorado, has caused this notice to be given as required by law this 24th day of November, 1964.

/s/ Mark M. Fox
Secretary,

'Night Pastor' Ministers to 'Night People'

By MARGARET SCHERF

CHICAGO (AP) — Amid the gaudy neon lights which awaken Rush Street at dusk is a small desk lamp, illuminating in a second-story window a narrow white sign: "Night Pastor."

Behind it, six nights a week, sits the Rev. Robert H. Owen, minister to the "night people" — the bartenders, B-girls, musicians, cabbies and cooks of Chicago's near North Side entertainment strip.

Father Owen, 40, a Protestant Episcopal priest with a wife and six children, describes his work as an "offbeat ministry." His comments during an interview Wednesday bore out the description:

—"This guy had just been rolled of $800 and somebody referred him to me. I didn't get the $800 back but I think I made him feel a little better about losing it.

—"A young couple who had been living together for six months saw the sign in the window and came up out of curiosity. Three days later I married them."

—"A lot of drunks wander in. They need to get some swill in them before they can talk about their problems."

A piano player of sorts, he started his unusual pastorate as the result of his friendship with many of the Rush Street night-club musicians.

In September, after "talking and talking and talking," Father Owen got permission from Bishop Gerald F. Burrill of the Diocese of Chicago to start a "night pastorate."

Those who come to see him have family problems, marital problems, problems with liquor or narcotics, but basically they are bothered about religion.

"Usually they've been in the church earlier in their lives but have dropped out. Now they're looking for something — what they're really looking for is God," he said.

Assistant Principal Faces Haircut Suit

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — An assistant principal charged with assault in the clipping of a boy's hair waived preliminary hearing Wednesday and was bound over to Criminal Court.

Jerry Harper, 15, a ninth grader at Kirby-Smith, claims his hair was cut to the scalp last week by Mark.

Art Collection Is Given to School

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dr. Armand Hammer, chairman of the board and president of the Occidental Petroleum Co., has donated his private art collection, including works by Rembrandt, Frans Hals, Rubens and Lippi, to the University of Southern California in Los Angeles.

The 50 paintings are believed to be worth $1 million.

LEGAL NOTICE

PUBLIC NOTICE OF SPECIAL SCHOOL BOND ELECTION
IN THE COUNTY OF EL PASO
STATE OF COLORADO
TO BE HELD
JANUARY 19, 1965

PUBLIC NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that pursuant to law and requisite action of the Board of Education of School District No. 8 (herein sometimes designated the "District" or the "School District"), in the County of El Paso and State of Colorado, a special school bond election has been called and will be held in the District on Tuesday, January 19, 1965.

For the election, the District shall constitute one election precinct. The boundaries of said election precinct shall be coincident with that of the District and the voting place in said election precinct is the high school, Fountain, Colorado.

At the election there shall be submitted to the registered qualified taxpaying electors of the District the following question:

Shall the Board of Education of School District No. 8, in the County of El Paso, and State of Colorado, contract a bonded indebtedness of not exceeding $600,000.00, for the purpose of erecting and furnishing school buildings within and for said District, said bonds to be sold and issued in one or more series, to mature serially within a period commencing not later than five years from the date thereof and extending not more than twenty years from such date, and not more than twenty-five years from the date of this election, and to bear interest at a rate or rates not exceeding six per centum (6%) per annum?

The polls will be opened at the hour of seven a.m. on said day and will be kept open and will be closed at the hour of seven p.m. of said day at the above-designated voting place in the election precinct established by the Board of Education of the District. No vote for or against said question shall be permitted unless the person offering to vote is a registered qualified taxpaying elector of the District. Any registered qualified taxpaying elector desiring to vote at such bond election shall sign a written oath that he has, during the twelve months next preceding said election, paid an ad valorem school tax upon property situated within said School District and owned by said person. A registered qualified taxpaying elector is any person who is at least twenty-one years of age, a citizen of the United States, who has resided in the State for twelve months, in the County for ninety days, in the School District thirty days, and in the school election precinct fifteen days immediately preceding the election at which he offers to vote, who, during the twelve months next preceding said election, has paid an ad valorem school tax upon property situated within the School District and owned by said person and who has registered in the manner required by law for the election of school directors.

Absentee voting will be permitted in the manner authorized by law. A registered qualified taxpaying elector may file or may cause to be filed an application, which may be in the form of a letter, for a paper ballot not earlier than twenty (20) days nor later than three (3) days before the election, such application stating his residence address and the fact that he will be absent from the District on the day of the election (or otherwise stating the reasons provided by law warranting the casting of an absentee ballot). Such filing shall be with the Secretary of the Board of the District, at the School Administration Office, 515 North Santa Fe, Fountain, Colorado.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the Board of Education of School District No. 8, in the County of El Paso, State of Colorado, has caused this notice to be given as required by law this 24th day of November, 1964.

DIVIDEND DECLARED

BARTLESVILLE, Okla.—(UPI)—A regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents per share was declared Monday by the board of directors of the Phillips Petroleum Co. Officials said the dividend would be payable March 1 to stockholders of record Jan. 29.

Price Boosts Being Tested By Business

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — More business firms are testing price increases in the market place. More concerns are piling up stocks of materials and at a faster pace.

These two moves, which in the past often have gone together, are making some of the professional economy watchers nervous. They fear that price boosts and inventory building together might be early warning signs of either inflation or boom and bust, or both.

But in each case — price increases and stockpiling — there are particular circumstances to mitigate the danger, or at least to explain their appearance just now.

Inventories are growing at the fastest rate in a year. But sales have been rising swiftly, too. So the total accumulation in the stockrooms may count for less, at the current rate of turnover, than it did in earlier months before the stock building got going strong.

Price rises of late, especially in primary materials and industrial products, often can be charged either to rising costs of production, or even more to tightening of supplies. World production may have slid because of labor strife or other reasons at a time that demand was increasing due to general prosperity among industrial nations. If the rule of supply and demand is to apply, prices tend to rise in such a situation.

But the Federal Reserve Bank of New York expresses concern that both consumer and industrial wholesale prices rose in November, and perhaps again in December. And it sees the increases announced by the steel industry late in December as adding "to the recently emerging climate in which businessmen seem to be less reluctant to probe markets to determine whether price increases can be made to stick."

Some other economists are keeping a close eye on inventory trends. The Commerce Department's latest figures show a sharp gain in November in all sectors, factory, wholesale and retail.

Combined the stocks stood at $108 billion, a gain of $680 million in a month. But combined sales also rose 2 per cent in the month to $73.5 billion. This brought the inventories down to 1.47 months' supply, compared with 1.53 month's supply in the like 1963 month. The ratio leaves the picture looking far from dangerous.

Some of the November gain is attributed to stockpiling of steel by users who fear they might be pinched this spring if current labor negotiations hit a snag and lead either to a strike or to much higher prices.

Wife Is Happy That Pilot Husband Safe

CLOVIS, N.M. (AP) — "What do you mean, how did I feel?" said Mrs. Barbara Ferguson.

"I was thrilled. It was pretty wonderful," she said after learning that her husband had been found safe in Laos.

Air Force Capts. Charles L. Ferguson and Albert C. Vollmer were shot down by ground fire Wednesday in a raid against Communist supply and reinforcement lines in Laos.

The original announcement by the Defense Department said Vollmer was recovered and Ferguson was missing. Then came word shortly before midnight that Ferguson also was safe.

The news was greeted with relief and joy at Clovis, Parma, Idaho; Denton, Kan., Rochester, N.Y., and Okinawa.

Ferguson, his wife and three children, had made their home in Clovis since late in 1961 when he was assigned to Cannon Air Force Base. He left for the Far East about a month ago.

Ferguson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas C. Ferguson of Parma, Idaho, while admitting they were worried, said:

"We were hoping and paying — and he's all right."

At Denton, Kan., Mrs. L. O. Hazen, mother-in-law of Vollmer, said she had been "uneasy all day because I know he flies F105s." she said her daughter, Gloria, had informed her that Vollmer left Okinawa Dec. 19 on a secret mission.

The captain's wife and four children are on Okinawa .

In Rochester, N.Y., Vollmer's parents learned of his rescue moments before leaving home to attend funeral services for the pilot's uncle.

There was no indication when the pilots and their families would be reunited.

France Will Sell Wheat to Russia

PARIS (AP) — French exporters have agreed to sell 9.1 million bushels of wheat to the Soviet Union, informed sources said Wednesday. The price was not disclosed.

Under the agreement signed Jan. 7, deliveries will be made between February and May.

The sources said applications have been made for export licenses for an additional 18.2 million bushels.

Ex-Paratroop Chief Leaps to Controversies

By DONALD M. TOTHBERG

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — As a World War II paratroop commander and later as United States ambassador to France, Gen. James M. Gavin became famous for jumping into trouble. Now, a private businessman, he's still leaping into controversies, such as his support for French President De Gaulle in the uproar over a multilateral force.

Gavin is an outspoken critic of this country's proposal for a multilateral nuclear force within NATO. He backs the position of De Gaulle that such a force would be a farce.

The ex-paratrooper, who left the Army as a lieutenant general after a dispute with Pentagon superiors over missile defenses, also has taken on the job of finding a solution to the power struggle between the nation's two biggest amateur athletic associations.

In 1961, when President Kennedy named Gavin ambassador to France, the appointment was criticized because Gavin didn't speak French.

As for the proposal to create a NATO fleet of surface ships armed with Polaris missiles and manned by crews from NATO nations, Gavin said in an interview with The Associated Press: "The MLF (multilateral force), as being discussed now, will be allowed to die quietly."

Gavin believes it is unrealistic to expect European nations to participate in a nuclear force in which the United States held sole control of the use of nuclear weapons.

"We will always maintain control of the button. . .I don't think Congress ever will give that away," he said.

Gavin and De Gaulle have maintained the friendship they established four years ago.

He described De Gaulle as "a man who is very friendly toward Americans in general. . .and who is strongly anti-Communist."

But, he added, "De Gaulle will always act in what he believes to be the self-interest of his own country. , .

"He believes a nation isn't any better than its strength permits it to be. . .Whether we like it or not, he's going to insist that France be strong."

Last July, President Johnson asked the 57-year-old Gavin, who is president and board chairman of Arthur D. Little, Inc., an industrial consulting company, to seek a permanent solution to the differences between the Amateur Athletic Union and the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

The groups agreed to a pre-Olympic truce negotiated by the late Gen. Douglas MacArthur, but have resumed their feud.

The President asked Gavin to study the feasibility of establishing an independent, privately financed sports development foundation to supplement the work of existing sports bodies.

Gavin expects to submit his findings to the President soon.

U.S., Mexico Agree On River Salt Content

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The United States and Mexico have reached general agreement on the problem of the Colorado River's salt content, described as the most serious problem between the two nations in the past three years.

A Foreign Ministry announcement Wednesday night did not announce details of the agreement but said further consultations will be carried out before the accord is made formal.

Earlier reports indicated a likely agreement would involve building a canal to carry off the river's water at times when it becomes too salty. The United States would also assure that low-salt water would be available enough of the time to meet irrigation needs of Mexican cotton farmers in Sonora State and Baja California.

Algeria Postpones Summit Conference

CAIRO (AP) — Algeria is postponing the second African-Asian summit conference scheduled for Algiers March 10, Algerian Ambassador Lakhdar Ibrahim announced.

Ibrahim said Wednesday an African-Asian ambassadorial committee will meet in Algiers Monday to discuss a new date.

The ambassador said postponement was necessary "due to delayed accommodation preparations."

There was speculation, however, that the reason was the squabbling that is going on over what nations will attend. Indonesia is trying to bar Malaysia. Communist China is trying to keep the Soviet Union away.

BARTLESVILLE, Okla.—(UPI)—A regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents per share was declared Monday by the board of directors of the Phillips Petroleum Co. Officials said the dividend would be payable March 1 to stockholders of record Jan. 29.

Price Boosts Being Tested By Business

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — More business firms are testing price increases in the market place. More concerns are piling up stocks of materials and at a faster pace.

These two moves, which in the past often have gone together, are making some of the professional economy watchers nervous. They fear that price boosts and inventory building together might be early warning signs of either inflation or boom and bust, or both.

But in each case — price increases and stockpiling — there are particular circumstances to mitigate the danger, or at least to explain their appearance just now.

Inventories are growing at the fastest rate in a year. But sales have been rising swiftly, too. So the total accumulation in the stockrooms may count for less, at the current rate of turnover, than it did in earlier months before the stock building got going strong.

Price rises of late, especially in primary materials and industrial products, often can be charged either to rising costs of production, or even more to tightening of supplies. World production may have slid because of labor strife or other reasons at a time that demand was increasing due to general prosperity among industrial nations. If the rule of supply and demand is to apply, prices tend to rise in such a situation.

But the Federal Reserve Bank of New York expresses concern that both consumer and industrial wholesale prices rose in November, and perhaps again in December. And it sees the increases announced by the steel industry late in December as adding "to the recently emerging climate in which businessmen seem to be less reluctant to probe markets to determine whether price increases can be made to stick."

Some other economists are keeping a close eye on inventory trends. The Commerce Department's latest figures show a sharp gain in November in all sectors, factory, wholesale and retail.

Combined the stocks stood at $108 billion, a gain of $680 million in a month. But combined sales also rose 2 per cent in the month to $73.5 billion. This brought the inventories down to 1.47 months' supply, compared with 1.53 month's supply in the like 1963 month. The ratio leaves the picture looking far from dangerous.

Some of the November gain is attributed to stockpiling of steel by users who fear they might be pinched this spring if current labor negotiations hit a snag and lead either to a strike or to much higher prices.

WASHINGTON — Special to the Gazette Telegraph) — Authoritative budget sources here say that it is most likely that Congress will give a 3 to 5 per cent increase in Social Security coverage about July. There is a good possibility that this may be made retroactive to Jan. 1.

Civil Service retirees are practically assured of a 10 per cent increase with the "ceiling" being $240 a year. So far nothing has been said about an increase for military retirees, but it is a safe bet that if the two mentioned increases go through one for military retirees will follow.

U. S. Federal income tax for 1965 will be 14 per cent and not the 16 per cent which is the rate for 1964. For the information of military retirees the rate of credit on retired income drops from the existing 17 per cent to 15 per cent in 1965. The "ceiling" of retired income on which the credit is taken is $1,524.

One of the major items to be included in the new legislative program of the Department of Defense is the Bolte Program which would modernize the officer retirement practices.

If Congress approves the recommendation there would no longer be special retirement benefits for active duty Reserve officers.

These benefits give most Reserve officers retiring after 20 years of active duty $57 a month retired pay over what is received by a retired Regular officer retiring in the same grade for 20 years service. The reason for this is that Reserve officers retire in grade higher than their active duty grade in which no duty has been performed. This is their ROPA grade.

The Air Force will train several thousand airmen in new skills in order to reassign them from overage skills to skills in which there is a short supply of available men.

Plans for the merger of the Air Guard and the Air Reserve are expected to be considered by Chief of Air Force Gen. Curtis LeMay prior to his retirement this month. The pattern is expected to follow the program being implemented by the Army.

The Pentagon may study a proposal that Warrant Officers of all services in W-5 grades, be equalized with the pay of an 0-4.

While Defense is not planning on any expansion of skills that make up the proficiency pay program, there is an understanding that 10,500 additional men of all services will be added to the list in the next fiscal year.

The Pentagon has no intention of giving up the fight to have Federal income tax on dislocation allowances rescinded. While the Internal Revenue Service refuses to change its decision that the allowance is taxable, word here is that Defense Department will seek legislation from Congress to do away with the tax.

Army announces extension of its deadline for enrollment in the Educational Assistance Loans program to January 29. This is applicable to the 1964-65 program.

Due to shift in veteran population primarily to California and Florida, the Veterans Administration will close out or consolidate several hospitals and other facilities.

The VA will maintain its 120,000 hospital bed capacity by building new hospitals in present areas that show an overload. When the list is officially made public some time this month, look for a big "howl" from veteran organizations.

Word on the revampment of the VA has also brought into being a rumor that the agency will merge with Health, Education and Welfare. Payment of veteran benefits would be assigned to the Social Security System. There is no confirmation of this rumor which has frequently been mentioned during the past several years.

Reporter Goes To Check on Viet Battle

EDITORS NOTE: An Associated Press correspondent drove south of Saigon today to check reports of a battle. This is what he found.

By PETER ARNETT

TAN HIEP, South Viet Nam (AP) — The overloaded bus stopped with a clumsy jerk as machine guns clattered somewhere in the roadside trees.

A score of passengers leaped into a watery ditch as the firing continued amid clouds of green, red and blue smoke.

"Take it easy," said a young U.S. Army officer casually smoking a cigarette in a Jeep parked at the roadside.

"That isn't war. I thought I was coming over here to advise soldiers. They may as well as have sent me to Hollywood."

The U.S. Information Service was making a color movie on the Vietnamese war. A battle scene was being staged with a company of Vietnamese troops and spotter planes.

Other troops were on guard to keep the Communist Viet Cong from getting into the act.

"Marvelous, isn't it?" said a USIS officer as a dozen colored smoke grenades provided a thick screen for Vietnamese troops attacking the absent enemy with blazing weapons.

The U.S. officer at the roadside watched the Vietnamese troops taking the "enemy village."

"It's a pity they never get arond to doing it as professional as that in real life," he said.

The attack scene is to be used in a 30-minute film for worldwide distribution to show how the Vietnamese war is going.

"We want to show the world how things really are here," the information officer said.

Three soldiers were blasting a rice paddy with automatic weapons.

"Get that dirt flying," the producer yelled.

"What we are looking for is realism," a USIS officer said. "Two days ago we staged a great defense of an outpost. We had the men defending like heroes and the women binding their wounds.

The film unit has been on the job three weeks and hopes to finish in another month. They have avoided the real war and such major engagements as Binh Gia.

"We don't want to show cruel things like bodies," said the USIS officer. "And we will avoid references to tanks, fighter aircraft and artillery. This is a people-to-people film to win support from the free world.

"We want more flags here. We can sell Viet Nam by minimizing the brutality and emphasizing the personal aspects of the war."

"All this colored smoke and gung ho bayonet charges is for the birds," said a U.S. captain who advises a Vietnamese battalion in the Mekong delta.

"If they want pictures of the war, "they should come with me sometime. If they want to portray the war, they should try to do it at least like it really is."

"I only hope they don't end up ambushing themselves," said a veteran combat photographer.

Woman, Nurse Watch Jewelry Robbers

LONDON (AP) — A 90-year-old woman and her nurse watched helplessly Tuesday night while thieves robbed their apartment of jewels valued at more than $102,000.

Police said three men broke into the apartment, which once was the home of former Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, and tied up nurse Eleanor Cushman, 35.

Then they ransacked the room of her bedridden employer, Isabella Nickols. They got away with a pearl necklace valued by insurers at $112,000, earrings and a brooch.

HOME RATIO

NEW YORK (UPI) — The single-family home constitutes a smaller proportion of the addition to our total housing inventory now than formerly, but there is no indication that it will be ousted as the dominant dwelling unit, according to J. Russell Doiron of the Build America Better Committee.

He Thought He Would Die; Starts Shooting

By DIAL TORGERSON

GARDENA, Calif. (AP) — "This year I am going to die," Louis Koullapis told an acquaintance, "and before I do I am going to take 20 or 30 people with me."

Two days later, police said, Koullapis emptied six guns at three Gardena poker palaces, wounding 29 persons, and was then wrestled to the ground by two policemen he had charged with empty pistols.

His captors said Koullapis, 70, a retired machinist, wouldn't explain why he had done it. Later Tuesday detectives searched his rented room and said they found fragments of notes indicating he wanted the poker houses closed, thought shooting into them would force them to shut down, feared that he himself was dying, and thought he and his victims would die together.

But the more they probed, the more police compounded a riddle: he was wrong, they said, on almost every count:

His shots halted business in the legal poker parlors little longer than it took uninjured players to climb off the floor; Koullapis apparently wasn't suffering from anything worse than gout; and none of his victims died.

One of them, Arthur Archibald, 73, of Burbank, is in critical condition with a bullet wound through the intestines. Four others were in serious condition. Another 24 were treated and released.

Koullapis was hospitalized with a broken or dislocated collar bone suffered when two officers grabbed him. They said he ran at them, clicking empty revolvers, after they traced his car to his nearby home.

He was booked on suspicion of assault with intent to commit murder.

Koullapis lived alone and his landlady termed him a "very nice, very neat" roomer who had paid his rent on time and caused no trouble.

But to an employe of one of the poker clubs three days ago he spoke of his fears of death and plans not to die alone. He was frequently seen at the clubs, but played rarely; he wasn't known as a heavy loser.

"Tonight I am sacrificing my life just to see if the clubs will be closed forever. I am old and very sick man. Is nothing left for me in this world. What I am doing tonight, it would be done long time ago. It could save a lot of innocents.

"These gyp joints destroyed lots of homes. Thousands of divorces and good many thousands of children are without good homes. Crimes are increasing at least 100 per cent. Many young women became prostitute just to have money to play card."

An acquaintance, Margaret Demogenes, told a newsman:

"The card parlors were only part of it. He was loaded with viciousness for people in general. He had no friends. He hated the world. He hated America particularly."

Interstate Highway Costs Going Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — The estimated cost of the interstate highway system has gone up $5.8 billion since 1961, the Bureau of Public Roads said today.

A report to Congress on the 41,000-mile national system said the total estimated cost is now $46.8 billion compared to the estimate of $41 billion in 1961.

Administrator Rex M. Whitton said about $2 billion of the increase was due to higher estimated costs for land acquisition, engineering and construction.

"More than $3.6 billion of the $5.8 billion cost increase is accounted for by improvements incorporated into the system to provide increased service, safety, and longer highway life," he said.

The system, begun in 1956, is about one-third complete. It is scheduled to be finished in 1972.

CHAPLIN JR. TO WED

He Thought He Would Die; Starts Shooting

By DIAL TORGERSON

GARDENA, Calif. (AP) — "This year I am going to die," Louis Koullapis told an acquaintance, "and before I do I am going to take 20 or 30 people with me."

Two days later, police said, Koullapis emptied six guns at three Gardena poker palaces, wounding 29 persons, and was then wrestled to the ground by two policemen he had charged with empty pistols.

His captors said Koullapis, 70, a retired machinist, wouldn't explain why he had done it. Later Tuesday detectives searched his rented room and said they found fragments of notes indicating he wanted the poker houses closed, thought shooting into them would force them to shut down, feared that he himself was dying, and thought he and his victims would die together.

But the more they probed, the more police compounded a riddle: he was wrong, they said, on almost every count:

His shots halted business in the legal poker parlors little longer than it took uninjured players to climb off the floor; Koullapis apparently wasn't suffering from anything worse than gout; and none of his victims died.

One of them, Arthur Archibald, 73, of Burbank, is in critical condition with a bullet wound through the intestines. Four others were in serious condition. Another 24 were treated and released.

Koullapis was hospitalized with a broken or dislocated collar bone suffered when two officers grabbed him. They said he ran at them, clicking empty revolvers, after they traced his car to his nearby home.

He was booked on suspicion of assault with intent to commit murder.

Koullapis lived alone and his landlady termed him a "very nice, very neat" roomer who had paid his rent on time and caused no trouble.

But to an employe of one of the poker clubs three days ago he spoke of his fears of death and plans not to die alone. He was frequently seen at the clubs, but played rarely; he wasn't known as a heavy loser.

"Tonight I am sacrificing my life just to see if the clubs will be closed forever. I am old and very sick man. Is nothing left for me in this world. What I am doing tonight, it would be done long time ago. It could save a lot of innocents.

"These gyp joints destroyed lots of homes. Thousands of divorces and good many thousands of children are without good homes. Crimes are increasing at least 100 per cent. Many young women became prostitute just to have money to play card."

An acquaintance, Margaret Demogenes, told a newsman:

"The card parlors were only part of it. He was loaded with viciousness for people in general. He had no friends. He hated the world. He hated America particularly."

Interstate Highway Costs Going Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — The estimated cost of the interstate highway system has gone up $5.8 billion since 1961, the Bureau of Public Roads said today.

A report to Congress on the 41,000-mile national system said the total estimated cost is now $46.8 billion compared to the estimate of $41 billion in 1961.

Administrator Rex M. Whitton said about $2 billion of the increase was due to higher estimated costs for land acquisition, engineering and construction.

"More than $3.6 billion of the $5.8 billion cost increase is accounted for by improvements incorporated into the system to provide increased service, safety, and longer highway life," he said.

The system, begun in 1956, is about one-third complete. It is scheduled to be finished in 1972.

Church-State Issue to Be Met Head-on

By JOHN BECKLER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Adam C. Powell says the church-state issue that has stymied federal school aid legislation for years is going to be met head-on this year.

Powell, New York Democrat who heads the House Education and Labor Committee, told a news conference here the controversy over aid to parochial schools can no longer be allowed to block all education legislation.

"We've got to face up to it squarely," he said. 'I don't intend to try to get around it or over it. We're going to meet it."

Powell made his comments in discussing President Johnson's $1 66-billion education program, which was laid before Congress Tuesday. Prompt action by Congress is assured, but what form the legislation will take is highly uncertain.

Although Johnson's announced aim of improving the quality of education in low-income areas was generally approved by members of Congress, educators and the Roman Catholic hierarchy, it was clear that basic differences between them remain.

The main source of potential trouble lies in Johnson's pronouncement that the program should benefit "all children within the area served," coupled with the condition that the federal funds would go to the states for distribution to school districts.

Johnson, other than urging the public and non-public schools to cooperate on projects of benefit to all children, gave no guidelines as to how they should proceed.

Most advocates of public school aid, including the National Education Association, largely ignored the matter. The NEA, in a statement lauding Johnson's program, spoke only of its proposals for the public schools.

But to Rep. Hugh L. Carey, D-N.Y., a Catholic and a member of Powell's committee, there was a glaring inconsistency in Johnson's proposal to finance a program of benefit to all children — meaning those in public and private schools — through the states.

"If you put it through that strainer, you lose all the juice," commented Carey to a reporter. "In 48 states, either by law or policy, public funds cannot go to private schools."

The issue will be met early in both the House and Senate. Powell and Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., who will handle the bill in the Senate, introduced it at once.

Powell added another section, however. He wants the Office of education, now part of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, elevated to Cabinet level, with its own secretary.

Powell said hearings would begin as soon as the legislative committees are organized, which should be by the end of next week. Morse scheduled hearings to start Jan. 26.

Powell, confident that the big Democratic majorities in his committee and in the House will resolve all issues in favor of the administration, predicted the bill would be ready by March 1.

"I don't intend to fool around with long hearings," he said. "We've plowed this ground too much already. We'll hear a few key witnesses and we'll vote it out."

Labor Leading Senator's Asset GOP Setback

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

It wasn't so many years ago that some conservatives were mounting a crusade against "metro" meaning the combination of small but contiguous highly populated areas into a new form of metropolitan government. The conservative assumption was that this was a sure-fire way of turning local geographical units of settled habits over to invaders, usually of a leftist stripe. Prodded by the opponents of metro, I looked into the government of the Greater Miami area of Florida. But the Dade County adventure in metropolitan government disclosed nothing sinister. It seemed merely a matter of making some uniform sense out of a tangle of local traffic laws and other things of a purely "service" nature.

Now the conservatives are up in arms because of the Supreme Court edict that is compelling the states to reapportion their legislative areas in accordance with the "one man, one vote" principle. I share their anger for constitutional reasons: The decision on such matters was one of the things obviously left to the states under any rational interpretation of the ninth and tenth amendments. But if the battle for states rights in this area is lost, as now seems likely, it does not necessarily mean a permanent setback for conservatives on the local level. Victories, after all, are won by good men who stand on persuasively argued platforms, and the size and shape of the voting area are not necessarily crucial.

Quite aside from the question of Supreme Court decisions, the drift in this country is to larger metropolitan areas and more densely populated suburbs. The complaining conservatives, most of them Republicans, will have to get used to this as long as the population explosion continues. They had better, then, begin making studies of how to win victories in suburbia and in the new metropolitan consolidations.

Clifton White, the old pro of the Nixon campaign who cornered the convention delegates for Goldwater and then found himself relegated to a peripheral role in the subsequent presidential campaign, has been warning his fellow Republicans that they must pay far more attention to the type of candidate that they choose to represent the new suburban areas. The Democrats, he has noticed, have been moving out from the cities and taking on a relatively conservative look. And they have been finding attractive candidates: Eugene Nickerson, the Democratic executive of Nassau County on Suburban Long Island, who is now being talked of for governor of New York State, is a prime example.

The local Republicans, on the other hand, have often continued to put up old wheelhorses for office. While it is theoretically good to reward faithful service, the old wheelhorse in the new suburban area is apt to be a backward-looking rural type. Just let an invading Democratic candidate whose roots were lately in the city hide some of his old liberal ideology and it becomes a sure bet that he will take a deciding number of essentially conservative votes away from his Republican opponent.

So Clifton White — and, incidentally, the beleaguered Republican National Committee chairman, Dean Burch — are crying up the need for a profound study of Republican opportunities in the suburbs. The study should go hand in hand with a new Republican government to progressiveism at the state, city, and "metro" level. The old conservative cry against any and all tax increases, whether local or federal, must be tempered to permit regional solutions of educational, sanitary, transportation, and urban renewal problems. Every time a city runs to Washington for funds, it is a rebuke to local citizens for having failed to do their own job.

This is one of the hooks that Republican enemies of federal power grabs must evade in the future. If they can't come up with attractive suburban candidates and a revitalized philosophy of local and state self-help, they will never become the dominant political party again.

RAIN VIOLATES LAW

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)— A cattle truck making a trip to the Kansas City stockyards drove through a heavy rainstorm. The bed of the truck was waterproof, and the four inches of rain made the truck overweight. The trucking firm was fined $25 for violating a Kansas Law regulating the maximum weight of trucks on highways.

ROUND-UP BOSS—S. Cassell Barrett, left, will be the "big boss' Feb. 1 through Feb. 16 when the YMCA holds its annual membership round-up. At right is Dr. Robert Zimmer, chairman of the YMCA membership committee, who will be "straw boss." The goal for the 1965 round-up is 500 members. Barrett, a member of the YMCA Century Club, will boss two outfits with a total of some 200 workers. Names of ranch bosses and foremen will be announced soon.

Johnson Will Get Maximum Security

By STERLING F. GREEN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lyndon B. Johnson will be the best protected president in modern history on his inauguration day.

That much is agreed by all concerned with the ceremonies of next Wednesday, but the Secret Service security screen is so dense that it has blocked reporters' access to most of the details.

Among the protective measures known or understood to be planned, to prevent any would-be assassin's attempt to duplicate the tragedy in Dallas 14 months ago, are these:

— Agents with rifles, as well as Army television scanners, will keep watch from Capitol rooftops on the throngs massed in and around the Capitol Plaza where Johnson will take the oath of office and deliver his inaugural address.

— The newly rebuilt and re-armored presidential limousine, with a glass bubbletop 1½ inches thick, is expected to be used for the inaugural parade. It permits good visibility.

— A building-by-building inspection of windows overlooking the parade route will be made in advance by teams of police and Secret Service agents.

— A low wall of quarter-inch armorplate, topped by a bullet-proof glass windshield, will guard the President as he views the bands, marchers and floats from his reviewing stand in front of the White House.

A contractor was installing other sections of glass Tuesday, but his contract provides that the heavy, 10-foot-long center section is to be "finished, installed and removed by others" — presumably by trusted government employes working under Secret Service eyes.

The Secret Service declined today to confirm any of these arrangements. The service operates on the theory that persons with evil intent will have less chance of circumventing security plans if they don't know what the plans are.

Police officials referred all questions to the Secret Service, and a spokesman for that agency declined even to answer inquiries about some of the visible arrangements.

News and camera men have been advised that their movements along the line of march will be severely restricted. There have been some signs that applications for press and other credentials are getting a closer security check than usual.

Reporters at the Capitol expect to find some Secret Service men spotted in the press section. Even inside the Capitol, checkpoints will be set up in the corridors to screen out unauthorized persons. The President will lunch there with congressional leaders and other dignitaries just before the parade starts.

EXPRESSION'S ORIGIN

CAPITOL STUFF

By PAUL HEALY

WASHINGTON —Dean Burch has one distinction, a peculiar one. Perhaps never before has a man unabashedly tried so hard to hold onto a $30,000-a-year job (plus free use of an automobile) in the face of such sizeable opposition within his own organization.

Ever since Barry Goldwater's defeat, Burch, the ex-Senator's choice as hand-picked national GOP chairman, has used television and the mimeograph machine to fight off demands that he resign. Today Burch pleaded his case at a National Press Club luncheon, just two weeks before the Republican National Committee will decide his fate at a meeting in Chicago.

Burch's case, as he put it today, did not overpower his audience, and in any case his fate may already have been sealed. At least, that is the confident word from the Eastern Republicans. Wisely, the Eastern Establishment, for the most part, has been holding its fire, encouraging the GOP Midwesterns to shoot at Burch.

For example, George Hinman, national Republican committeeman from New York, has managed to keep Gov. Rockefeller quiet. Nothing would do Burch more good in the Midwest and West than headlines reading:

"Rocky says Burch must go."

Now, apparently, the strategy has paid off. While nobody is offering a nose count, Eastern Republicans began saying privately yesterday that there are enough votes to kick Burch out of office Jan. 22, thanks to the national committeemen from the Corn Belt.

On the sound theory that "you can't beat somebody with nobody," the anti - Burchers have concentrated on lining up Ray Bliss, Ohio national committeeman and Ohio state chairman, as an alternative. Typically, Donald R. Ross, an Omaha lawyer who backed Goldwater in the election, is a leading oust-Burch committeeman. But he has a qualification.

PREFERS BLISS, BARS EASTERNER

Ross puts it this way: "Between Burch and Bliss, I'm for Bliss. Between Burch and someone else (especially from the East), I'm for Burch."

A salary ranging as high as $35,000 or $40,000 reportedly is being dangled before Bliss to lure him away from his secure and very well paid job in Ohio. Bliss, considered by some a genius as a political organization man, has resisted blandishments from the GOP hierarchy before, but this time it is believed he can be had.

Bliss is being sought as the ideal replacement for Burch not only because he is an experienced technician and acceptable to the Midwest, but because he shuns cameras, microphones an controversy. He likes to keep his mouth shut. He does not yearn to be a policy-maker.

What's more, technician Bliss recommended a few years ago that the national Republican Party find new ways to woo the big-city vote. It irks the Eastern Republicans that this Bliss recommendation was ignored — and that the natiional committee at considerable expense followed the Goldwater strategy of concentrating on GOP organization in the South.

DIXIE DRIVE FLOP AT POLLS

Nobody knows better than Burch, a former administrative assistant to Goldwater in the Senate, that party policy and the party record are made by the Republican lawmakers on Capitol Hill. And so in his plea before the Press Club today he met the arguments for Bliss by stressing that he too sees the role of party chairman as that of an organizer rather than a spokesman.

But he added that this role includes "the desperately crucial function of assembling financial support for every promising party undertaking."

Here Burch was making the most of the fact that the Goldwater campaign ended up in the black. Jesting about this in his introduction, Press Club President Joe Dear remarked that Burch "enriched the party coffers by more than $1 million. How can they afford to let him go"

Most of the contributions that allowed the GOP to make a profit on Goldwater's debacle, however, came from hundreds of thousands of Goldwater believers. It is doubtful if they will continue to ante up to the party when their erstwhile candidate is a columnist — period.

Burch said the GOP was misunderstood — "A good product in a lousy wrapping." He offered no new ideas for the re-packaging himself.

HE CALLS IT 300 G-A-YEAR JOB

"What we need is four years of image - making," he said. Then he quipped, with painful truth, that "the task of building an image for the Republican party was a $300,000-a-year-job." But Burch himself bears the image of Goldwater, which lacks the sweet smell of success. This is one of the reasons he is due to go.

To his creidt, Burch carried off his "last supper" with the press with apolmb. At 37, he is a poised, husky, glib, good-looking, good-humored man. It was perhaps unfortunate that he noted, parenthetically, that hs is younger than 51-year-old Rep. Gerald Ford (Mich.). Ford, elected this week to replace House GOP leader Charles Halleck (Ind.), profited from the momentum in the party toward a "new look" (image).

In any case, Burch is not the sort of man to weep when his time comes. It is being recalled that Rep. Hugh Scott (R-Pa.) broke down and cried like a boy when the national committee prepared to put the skids under him as national chairman in January, 1949. The circumstances were not dissimilar — Scott had just presided over the defeat of Thomas E. Dewey. Now, ironically, Scott is one member of the Eastern establishment who is publicly calling for Burch to resign.

Public Thinks Traffic Cops Are 'Stinkers'

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — A psychology professor thinks the public has the impression traffic policemen are "a bunch of stinkers."

Dr. Blake Crider, chairman of the Department of Psychology at Fenn College, outlined public impression of traffic policemen Tuesday to a seminar of traffic officers at the Cleveland Automobile Club.

"The get-up of today's traffic cops is more like Hitler's Gestapo," said Dr. Crider. "Boots, leather jacket, pistol, helmet. An ordinary citizen is frightened of such an apparition."

Labor Leading Senator's Asset GOP Setback

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

It wasn't so many years ago that some conservatives were mounting a crusade against "metro" meaning the combination of small but contiguous highly populated areas into a new form of metropolitan government. The conservative assumption was that this was a sure-fire way of turning local geographical units of settled habits over to invaders, usually of a leftist stripe. Prodded by the opponents of metro, I looked into the government of the Greater Miami area of Florida. But the Dade County adventure in metropolitan government disclosed nothing sinister. It seemed merely a matter of making some uniform sense out of a tangle of local traffic laws and other things of a purely "service" nature.

Now the conservatives are up in arms because of the Supreme Court edict that is compelling the states to reapportion their legislative areas in accordance with the "one man, one vote" principle. I share their anger for constitutional reasons: The decision on such matters was one of the things obviously left to the states under any rational interpretation of the ninth and tenth amendments. But if the battle for states rights in this area is lost, as now seems likely, it does not necessarily mean a permanent setback for conservatives on the local level. Victories, after all, are won by good men who stand on persuasively argued platforms, and the size and shape of the voting area are not necessarily crucial.

Quite aside from the question of Supreme Court decisions, the drift in this country is to larger metropolitan areas and more densely populated suburbs. The complaining conservatives, most of them Republicans, will have to get used to this as long as the population explosion continues. They had better, then, begin making studies of how to win victories in suburbia and in the new metropolitan consolidations.

Clifton White, the old pro of the Nixon campaign who cornered the convention delegates for Goldwater and then found himself relegated to a peripheral role in the subsequent presidential campaign, has been warning his fellow Republicans that they must pay far more attention to the type of candidate that they choose to represent the new suburban areas. The Democrats, he has noticed, have been moving out from the cities and taking on a relatively conservative look. And they have been finding attractive candidates: Eugene Nickerson, the Democratic executive of Nassau County on Suburban Long Island, who is now being talked of for governor of New York State, is a prime example.

The local Republicans, on the other hand, have often continued to put up old wheelhorses for office. While it is theoretically good to reward faithful service, the old wheelhorse in the new suburban area is apt to be a backward-looking rural type. Just let an invading Democratic candidate whose roots were lately in the city hide some of his old liberal ideology and it becomes a sure bet that he will take a deciding number of essentially conservative votes away from his Republican opponent.

So Clifton White — and, incidentally, the beleaguered Republican National Committee chairman, Dean Burch — are crying up the need for a profound study of Republican opportunities in the suburbs. The study should go hand in hand with a new Republican government to progressiveism at the state, city, and "metro" level. The old conservative cry against any and all tax increases, whether local or federal, must be tempered to permit regional solutions of educational, sanitary, transportation, and urban renewal problems. Every time a city runs to Washington for funds, it is a rebuke to local citizens for having failed to do their own job.

This is one of the hooks that Republican enemies of federal power grabs must evade in the future. If they can't come up with attractive suburban candidates and a revitalized philosophy of local and state self-help, they will never become the dominant political party again.

RAIN VIOLATES LAW

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)— A cattle truck making a trip to the Kansas City stockyards drove through a heavy rainstorm. The bed of the truck was waterproof, and the four inches of rain made the truck overweight. The trucking firm was fined $25 for violating a Kansas Law regulating the maximum weight of trucks on highways.

ROUND-UP BOSS—S. Cassell Barrett, left, will be the "big boss' Feb. 1 through Feb. 16 when the YMCA holds its annual membership round-up. At right is Dr. Robert Zimmer, chairman of the YMCA membership committee, who will be "straw boss." The goal for the 1965 round-up is 500 members. Barrett, a member of the YMCA Century Club, will boss two outfits with a total of some 200 workers. Names of ranch bosses and foremen will be announced soon.

CAPITOL STUFF

By PAUL HEALY

WASHINGTON —Dean Burch has one distinction, a peculiar one. Perhaps never before has a man unabashedly tried so hard to hold onto a $30,000-a-year job (plus free use of an automobile) in the face of such sizeable opposition within his own organization.

Ever since Barry Goldwater's defeat, Burch, the ex-Senator's choice as hand-picked national GOP chairman, has used television and the mimeograph machine to fight off demands that he resign. Today Burch pleaded his case at a National Press Club luncheon, just two weeks before the Republican National Committee will decide his fate at a meeting in Chicago.

Burch's case, as he put it today, did not overpower his audience, and in any case his fate may already have been sealed. At least, that is the confident word from the Eastern Republicans. Wisely, the Eastern Establishment, for the most part, has been holding its fire, encouraging the GOP Midwesterns to shoot at Burch.

For example, George Hinman, national Republican committeeman from New York, has managed to keep Gov. Rockefeller quiet. Nothing would do Burch more good in the Midwest and West than headlines reading:

"Rocky says Burch must go."

Now, apparently, the strategy has paid off. While nobody is offering a nose count, Eastern Republicans began saying privately yesterday that there are enough votes to kick Burch out of office Jan. 22, thanks to the national committeemen from the Corn Belt.

On the sound theory that "you can't beat somebody with nobody," the anti - Burchers have concentrated on lining up Ray Bliss, Ohio national committeeman and Ohio state chairman, as an alternative. Typically, Donald R. Ross, an Omaha lawyer who backed Goldwater in the election, is a leading oust-Burch committeeman. But he has a qualification.

PREFERS BLISS, BARS EASTERNER

Ross puts it this way: "Between Burch and Bliss, I'm for Bliss. Between Burch and someone else (especially from the East), I'm for Burch."

A salary ranging as high as $35,000 or $40,000 reportedly is being dangled before Bliss to lure him away from his secure and very well paid job in Ohio. Bliss, considered by some a genius as a political organization man, has resisted blandishments from the GOP hierarchy before, but this time it is believed he can be had.

Bliss is being sought as the ideal replacement for Burch not only because he is an experienced technician and acceptable to the Midwest, but because he shuns cameras, microphones an controversy. He likes to keep his mouth shut. He does not yearn to be a policy-maker.

What's more, technician Bliss recommended a few years ago that the national Republican Party find new ways to woo the big-city vote. It irks the Eastern Republicans that this Bliss recommendation was ignored — and that the natiional committee at considerable expense followed the Goldwater strategy of concentrating on GOP organization in the South.

DIXIE DRIVE FLOP AT POLLS

Nobody knows better than Burch, a former administrative assistant to Goldwater in the Senate, that party policy and the party record are made by the Republican lawmakers on Capitol Hill. And so in his plea before the Press Club today he met the arguments for Bliss by stressing that he too sees the role of party chairman as that of an organizer rather than a spokesman.

But he added that this role includes "the desperately crucial function of assembling financial support for every promising party undertaking."

Here Burch was making the most of the fact that the Goldwater campaign ended up in the black. Jesting about this in his introduction, Press Club President Joe Dear remarked that Burch "enriched the party coffers by more than $1 million. How can they afford to let him go"

Most of the contributions that allowed the GOP to make a profit on Goldwater's debacle, however, came from hundreds of thousands of Goldwater believers. It is doubtful if they will continue to ante up to the party when their erstwhile candidate is a columnist — period.

Burch said the GOP was misunderstood — "A good product in a lousy wrapping." He offered no new ideas for the re-packaging himself.

HE CALLS IT 300 G-A-YEAR JOB

"What we need is four years of image - making," he said. Then he quipped, with painful truth, that "the task of building an image for the Republican party was a $300,000-a-year-job." But Burch himself bears the image of Goldwater, which lacks the sweet smell of success. This is one of the reasons he is due to go.

To his creidt, Burch carried off his "last supper" with the press with apolmb. At 37, he is a poised, husky, glib, good-looking, good-humored man. It was perhaps unfortunate that he noted, parenthetically, that hs is younger than 51-year-old Rep. Gerald Ford (Mich.). Ford, elected this week to replace House GOP leader Charles Halleck (Ind.), profited from the momentum in the party toward a "new look" (image).

In any case, Burch is not the sort of man to weep when his time comes. It is being recalled that Rep. Hugh Scott (R-Pa.) broke down and cried like a boy when the national committee prepared to put the skids under him as national chairman in January, 1949. The circumstances were not dissimilar — Scott had just presided over the defeat of Thomas E. Dewey. Now, ironically, Scott is one member of the Eastern establishment who is publicly calling for Burch to resign.

Public Thinks Traffic Cops Are 'Stinkers'

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — A psychology professor thinks the public has the impression traffic policemen are "a bunch of stinkers."

Dr. Blake Crider, chairman of the Department of Psychology at Fenn College, outlined public impression of traffic policemen Tuesday to a seminar of traffic officers at the Cleveland Automobile Club.

"The get-up of today's traffic cops is more like Hitler's Gestapo," said Dr. Crider. "Boots, leather jacket, pistol, helmet. An ordinary citizen is frightened of such an apparition."

Johnson Will Get Maximum Security

By STERLING F. GREEN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lyndon B. Johnson will be the best protected president in modern history on his inauguration day.

That much is agreed by all concerned with the ceremonies of next Wednesday, but the Secret Service security screen is so dense that it has blocked reporters' access to most of the details.

Among the protective measures known or understood to be planned, to prevent any would-be assassin's attempt to duplicate the tragedy in Dallas 14 months ago, are these:

— Agents with rifles, as well as Army television scanners, will keep watch from Capitol rooftops on the throngs massed in and around the Capitol Plaza where Johnson will take the oath of office and deliver his inaugural address.

— The newly rebuilt and re-armored presidential limousine, with a glass bubbletop 1½ inches thick, is expected to be used for the inaugural parade. It permits good visibility.

— A building-by-building inspection of windows overlooking the parade route will be made in advance by teams of police and Secret Service agents.

— A low wall of quarter-inch armorplate, topped by a bullet-proof glass windshield, will guard the President as he views the bands, marchers and floats from his reviewing stand in front of the White House.

A contractor was installing other sections of glass Tuesday, but his contract provides that the heavy, 10-foot-long center section is to be "finished, installed and removed by others" — presumably by trusted government employes working under Secret Service eyes.

The Secret Service declined today to confirm any of these arrangements. The service operates on the theory that persons with evil intent will have less chance of circumventing security plans if they don't know what the plans are.

Police officials referred all questions to the Secret Service, and a spokesman for that agency declined even to answer inquiries about some of the visible arrangements.

News and camera men have been advised that their movements along the line of march will be severely restricted. There have been some signs that applications for press and other credentials are getting a closer security check than usual.

Reporters at the Capitol expect to find some Secret Service men spotted in the press section. Even inside the Capitol, checkpoints will be set up in the corridors to screen out unauthorized persons. The President will lunch there with congressional leaders and other dignitaries just before the parade starts.

EXPRESSION'S ORIGIN

The expression to "laugh up one's sleeve" originated in the 16th century, when people dressed in clothes with wide sleeves, particularly in the royal court. To hide offensive laughter, they would put the whole sleeve over their heads.

Grand Dame of Theater Takes New York Stroll

By JOAN CROSBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK (NEA)—One of the world's great originals stood in the center of her sunny living room, said "shut up" to a canary who dared interrupt her with a note, and suggested everyone go for a walk along the river.

Then she pulled a coat over her slacks and sweater, reached into her pockets and extracted two fistfuls of facial tissues ("Does anyone want one?" she asked), began searching for her gloves and her dark glasses, found her glasses on a table near the front door, next to a pair of gold cloth evening gloves.

"I'll have to wear these gloves," Beatrice Lillie said, and led the way.

Beatrice Lillie, Lady Peer, Bea or Madame Arcati of "High Spirits," no matter what you call her, she is the same on stage and off—a tiny, blue-eyed woman with a magnificient nose, a glowing smile that crosses her face whenever she spots an audience from the stage, and a totally wacky and irrepressible spirit.

She loves a good, brisk walk, and every day she takes a long one along the elevated pedestrian walk over East River Drive near her New York City apartment. "I have always lived near rivers," she said in a rare serious moment.

Turning a corner, her team bumped into the company, headed by Jason Robards Jr., filming location scenes for the movie, "A Thousand Clowns."

"I was in your picture yesterday," she told Robards. "I came out for my walk, saw the group and decided to walk right through the scene you were filming."

She marched along, looking at the toddlers playing, under maternal supervision, in sandboxes enclosed by iron pickets, and said, "Children love me. They were following along after me the other day just like the Pied Piper. I thought it was because they loved me, but I discovered they were fascinated by my dark glasses."

Miss Lillie glanced toward the river, where a barge was plodding upstream, and said, "That's my yacht." One of her companions, seeing the company name on the side of the barge, said, "What a clever looked out and snapped, "That's not my yacht. I'm Number Two."

For nearly a year, Miss Lillie has been delighting Broadway audiences in "High Spirits," the musical version of Noe Coward's "Blithe Spirit." She is playing Madame Arcati, the fumbling, happy medium whose ghost - raising abilities play havoc with the home life of the show's hero. The role in the original comedy was written for her, but this is the first time she has played it. Her love affair with audiences is a mutual thing.

"I adore audiences when they adore me. It makes me happy when they are happy. They direct me. If the response to what I am doing is not good, I'm on to something else."

A Canadian who has raised in England, Miss Lillie's early desire in life was to be a serious singer. "I became aware of my first laugh when I was doing a serious number. The audience screamed. "I thought, 'If that's what they want, I'll give it to them.'

"I can be serious, too, you know. I don't want to be a funny - pants all the time, but it's difficult to find serious things to do.

"I have heard people say that I could be funny reading the telephone book. Well 'tisn't so. I tried it at a cocktail party one night, and no one laughed."

Farmington Wants Airlines Stop

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Mayor Floyd Davis of Farmington, N.M., has told a Civil Aeronautics Board hearing that a Frontier Airlines route between the Grand Canyon and Las Vegas would give his town a window on the West.

Frontier and Bonanza Airlines are before the two-day CAB hearing, vying for the route.

Davis said his testimony stressed the new route would "be helpful to the 'Four Corners' area, giving it an outlet to the West," and boosting tourism in the Mesa Verde-Farmington region.

Frontier service includes Farmington, Denver, and Flagstaff, Ariz.

McNichols Denounces Governor's Program

DENVER (AP) — Former Gov. Steve McNichols has criticized Republican Gov. John A. Love's tax program, claming Love has set Colorado back 15 years.

Love, who defeated McNichols, a Democrat, in the 1962 election, said in a speech to the Legislature Friday that his proposed sales tax increase would be offset by property tax reductions.

McNichols Sunday called this "as false as his promise to reduce taxes," referring to Love's 1962 campaign plank for lower taxes.

The former governor also claimed Love had crippled the state's medicare program and of failing to base old age pension payments on a cost of living index.

McNichols further charged that under the Love regime Colorado had become increasingly dependent on the federal government.

CROZIER RESTING

DETROIT (UPI) — The Detroit Red Wings have sent hard-working goalie Roger Crozier to Miami Beach, Fla., for a short rest.

Crozier, who has played every game for the National Hockey League team, was to be back in time for Detroit's game at Toronto on Saturday.

Protestants Favor Steps Of Integration

NEW YORK (AP) — A nationwide poll of 7,000 American Protestants showed today that a large majority of them support racial integration in church and also in residential communities.

But 52 per cent of those polled said they would respect the objections of neighbors by not selling their homes to a person of another race.

The poll, described as the first national survey of its kind, was taken by the Christian Herald magazine, an interdenominational Protestant monthly.

It distributed ballots with four questions for its 455,000 readers across the country and received replies from 7,000.

The questions — and responses to them — were as follows:

1. In your community would you object to a person of another race as your next door neighbor? Seventy-four per cent said no, 23 per cent said yes, and 3 per cent were undecided.

2. In your community, would you sell your house to a person of another race if your neighbors disapprove? Thirty-four per cent said yes, but 52 per cent said no, and 14 per cent were undecided.

3. In your church, if a person of another race applies for membership and meets the qualifications, would you personally accept him? Eighty-one per cent said yes; 18 per cent said no; 1 per cent was undecided.

4. In your church, if a person of another race were a member and qualified, would you vote for him for church office? Eighty-eight per cent said yes, 10 per cent no, and 2 per cent were undecided.

The Rev. Dr. Daniel A. Poling, the magazine's editor, said in a state-by-state computation of the "tolerance rank" showed Alaska, Hawaii and Utah at the top of the list, and at the bottom, Alabama, Mississippi and South Carolina.

At the top, in Alaska, 100 per cent were agreeable to interracial residential communities, church membership and church office-holding, and 78 per cent would sell houses to buyers of another race even if neighbors objected.

At the bottom, in South Carolina, 31 per cent supported integration in residential communities, 30 per cent in churches and church offices, and 12 per cent would sell their houses to persons of another race even if neighbors objected.

Commenting on the study, Methodist Bishop Gerald Kennedy of Los Angeles said it shows that "except for a few isolated places most Americans now believe that a man's worth is not to be determined by his color.

"This is good news and it says that we have made more progress toward brotherhood and racial integration than some of the news stories would intimate."

Big Ed Denounces Water Proposals

DENVER (UPI) — Former Colorado Gov. and ex-U.S. Sen. Ed C. Johnson has protested against proposals for use of Colorado ground water as made by Felix L. Sparks, director of the Colorado Water Conservation Board.

In a letter to Sparks, Johnson said: "if there is anarchy in the use of publicly owned water in Colorado, the remedy is neither confiscation of the non-tributary, privately owned water, nor surrender to the seizure of public water by the pumpers. . . ."

He said such action violated the State Constitution.

State officials have considered placing certain restrictions on ground water.

INCREASES SHARES

MONTREAL (UPI) — Canadian Superior Oil Ltd. announced Wednesday that its shareholders have approved a proposal to increase authorized shares to 10 million from 5,750,000 shares presently.

The move paves the way for an offer to purchase Calgary & Edmonton Corp. Ltd. with Canadian Superior stock.

KARACHI — Pakistan will put $5 million into canal building.

Grand Dame of Theater Takes New York Stroll

By JOAN CROSBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK (NEA)—One of the world's great originals stood in the center of her sunny living room, said "shut up" to a canary who dared interrupt her with a note, and suggested everyone go for a walk along the river.

Then she pulled a coat over her slacks and sweater, reached into her pockets and extracted two fistfuls of facial tissues ("Does anyone want one?" she asked), began searching for her gloves and her dark glasses, found her glasses on a table near the front door, next to a pair of gold cloth evening gloves.

"I'll have to wear these gloves," Beatrice Lillie said, and led the way.

Beatrice Lillie, Lady Peer, Bea or Madame Arcati of "High Spirits," no matter what you call her, she is the same on stage and off—a tiny, blue-eyed woman with a magnificient nose, a glowing smile that crosses her face whenever she spots an audience from the stage, and a totally wacky and irrepressible spirit.

She loves a good, brisk walk, and every day she takes a long one along the elevated pedestrian walk over East River Drive near her New York City apartment. "I have always lived near rivers," she said in a rare serious moment.

"I was in your picture yesterday," she told Robards. "I came out for my walk, saw the group and decided to walk right through the scene you were filming."

She marched along, looking at the toddlers playing, under maternal supervision, in sandboxes enclosed by iron pickets, and said, "Children love me. They were following along after me the other day just like the Pied Piper. I thought it was because they loved me, but I discovered they were fascinated by my dark glasses."

Miss Lillie glanced toward the river, where a barge was plodding upstream, and said, "That's my yacht." One of her companions, seeing the company name on the side of the barge, said, "What a clever looked out and snapped, "That's not my yacht. I'm Number Two."

For nearly a year, Miss Lillie has been delighting Broadway audiences in "High Spirits," the musical version of Noe Coward's "Blithe Spirit." She is playing Madame Arcati, the fumbling, happy medium whose ghost - raising abilities play havoc with the home life of the show's hero. The role in the original comedy was written for her, but this is the first time she has played it. Her love affair with audiences is a mutual thing.

"I adore audiences when they adore me. It makes me happy when they are happy. They direct me. If the response to what I am doing is not good, I'm on to something else."

A Canadian who has raised in England, Miss Lillie's early desire in life was to be a serious singer. "I became aware of my first laugh when I was doing a serious number. The audience screamed. "I thought, 'If that's what they want, I'll give it to them.'

"I can be serious, too, you know. I don't want to be a funny - pants all the time, but it's difficult to find serious things to do.

"I have heard people say that I could be funny reading the telephone book. Well 'tisn't so. I tried it at a cocktail party one night, and no one laughed."

Farmington Wants Airlines Stop

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Mayor Floyd Davis of Farmington, N.M., has told a Civil Aeronautics Board hearing that a Frontier Airlines route between the Grand Canyon and Las Vegas would give his town a window on the West.

Frontier and Bonanza Airlines are before the two-day CAB hearing, vying for the route.

Davis said his testimony stressed the new route would "be helpful to the 'Four Corners' area, giving it an outlet to the West," and boosting tourism in the Mesa Verde-Farmington region.

Frontier service includes Farmington, Denver, and Flagstaff, Ariz.

Bonanza routes connect Las Vegas with Reno, Phoenix, Salt Lake City, and Los Angeles.

McNichols Denounces Governor's Program

DENVER (AP) — Former Gov. Steve McNichols has criticized Republican Gov. John A. Love's tax program, claming Love has set Colorado back 15 years.

Love, who defeated McNichols, a Democrat, in the 1962 election, said in a speech to the Legislature Friday that his proposed sales tax increase would be offset by property tax reductions.

McNichols Sunday called this "as false as his promise to reduce taxes," referring to Love's 1962 campaign plank for lower taxes.

The former governor also claimed Love had crippled the state's medicare program and of failing to base old age pension payments on a cost of living index.

McNichols further charged that under the Love regime Colorado had become increasingly dependent on the federal government.

CROZIER RESTING

DETROIT (UPI) — The Detroit Red Wings have sent hard-working goalie Roger Crozier to Miami Beach, Fla., for a short rest.

Crozier, who has played every game for the National Hockey League team, was to be back in time for Detroit's game at Toronto on Saturday.

Protestants Favor Steps Of Integration

NEW YORK (AP) — A nationwide poll of 7,000 American Protestants showed today that a large majority of them support racial integration in church and also in residential communities.

But 52 per cent of those polled said they would respect the objections of neighbors by not selling their homes to a person of another race.

The poll, described as the first national survey of its kind, was taken by the Christian Herald magazine, an interdenominational Protestant monthly.

It distributed ballots with four questions for its 455,000 readers across the country and received replies from 7,000.

The questions — and responses to them — were as follows:

1. In your community would you object to a person of another race as your next door neighbor? Seventy-four per cent said no, 23 per cent said yes, and 3 per cent were undecided.

2. In your community, would you sell your house to a person of another race if your neighbors disapprove? Thirty-four per cent said yes, but 52 per cent said no, and 14 per cent were undecided.

3. In your church, if a person of another race applies for membership and meets the qualifications, would you personally accept him? Eighty-one per cent said yes; 18 per cent said no; 1 per cent was undecided.

4. In your church, if a person of another race were a member and qualified, would you vote for him for church office? Eighty-eight per cent said yes, 10 per cent no, and 2 per cent were undecided.

The Rev. Dr. Daniel A. Poling, the magazine's editor, said in a state-by-state computation of the "tolerance rank" showed Alaska, Hawaii and Utah at the top of the list, and at the bottom, Alabama, Mississippi and South Carolina.

At the top, in Alaska, 100 per cent were agreeable to interracial residential communities, church membership and church office-holding, and 78 per cent would sell houses to buyers of another race even if neighbors objected.

At the bottom, in South Carolina, 31 per cent supported integration in residential communities, 30 per cent in churches and church offices, and 12 per cent would sell their houses to persons of another race even if neighbors objected.

Commenting on the study, Methodist Bishop Gerald Kennedy of Los Angeles said it shows that "except for a few isolated places most Americans now believe that a man's worth is not to be determined by his color.

"This is good news and it says that we have made more progress toward brotherhood and racial integration than some of the news stories would intimate."

Big Ed Denounces Water Proposals

DENVER (UPI) — Former Colorado Gov. and ex-U.S. Sen. Ed C. Johnson has protested against proposals for use of Colorado ground water as made by Felix L. Sparks, director of the Colorado Water Conservation Board.

In a letter to Sparks, Johnson said: "if there is anarchy in the use of publicly owned water in Colorado, the remedy is neither confiscation of the non-tributary, privately owned water, nor surrender to the seizure of public water by the pumpers. . . ."

He said such action violated the State Constitution.

State officials have considered placing certain restrictions on ground water.

INCREASES SHARES

MONTREAL (UPI) — Canadian Superior Oil Ltd. announced Wednesday that its shareholders have approved a proposal to increase authorized shares to 10 million from 5,750,000 shares presently.

The move paves the way for an offer to purchase Calgary & Edmonton Corp. Ltd. with Canadian Superior stock.

KARACHI — Pakistan will put $5 million into canal building.

Money Counter Unruffled by Gold Crisis

By JESSE BOGUE

NEW YORK (UPI)—The current turmoil over the price of gold on international markets has left at least one bank employe in this financial center completely unruffled.

He is too busy each banking day taking care of a stock of millions of dollars in currency.

He is Cornelius Hopkins, ex-Marine, who works in the closely-guarded fifth basement level at Chase Manhattan's main office in the Wall Street area, as a supervisor of the currency and coin department.

Money is the stock intrade of any bank, of course, and Hopkins works amid shelves where currency is wrapped and stacked just as items in retail trade at any store. The currency division, and nearby Triborough Bridge and Tunnel Authority division handle about $15 million each day.

And as in any receiving department in a manufacturing or industrial concern, the incoming stock gets a thorough going over. Bills are counted on a federal bill counter and inspected at the same time. Worn currency is weeded out and sent to the federal reserve bank for disposition.

That which passes inspection goes back into packages, by denomination of 100 bills. Some is retained for use by the Chase; it is packaged in the familiar paper-band wrapping which cashiers' windows produce in quantity on paydays.

About 75 per cent of the currency Hopkins' department handles comes in from abroad, mostly by registered sea mail. The other 25 per cent comes from domestic sources.

"Currency isn't like a piece of paper that can be mislaid and replaced," Hopkins said recently. "You may never recover it if it is lost."

As in any job where accuracy and dependability are governing factors, Hopkins must be always careful and always on the alert. But after eight years on the job, he regards all that money as merely stock in trade. The sight of it, he says, doesn't affect him at all.

World Wheat Falls Behind in Earning

WASHINGTON (AP)—Wheat is falling far behind a year ago in earning in world trade markets the dollars that are needed to help stabilize this country's balance of exchange problem.

U. S. wheat exports during the last half of 1963 totaled 166 million bushels and flour the equivalent of 12.3 million bushels of wheat. In the like period of 1964, wheat exports for dollars had dropped to 51 million bushels and flour to the equivalent of 9.9 million bushels of wheat.

Other big wheat - exporting countries are getting a large share of dollars markets, largely because of lower prices.

Film Actor Hicks Dies at Age of 45

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Movie character actor Bert Hicks, father of former starlet Dolores Hart and brother-in-law of the late Mario Lanza, is dead at 45.

Hicks, who played parts in "Forever Amber" and "Gone with the Wind," met Lanza while both were serving in the Armed Forces. He helped Lanza launch a career as a singer.

Lanza's wife, Betty, sister of Hicks, died in 1960, six months after Lanza's death in October 1959. Hicks' daughter Dolores abandoned acting in 1963 to enter a Roman Catholic convent.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, M.D., Ph.D.

Paul Stadelman is one of the world's cleverest ventriloquists. He recently started teaching a course on this fascinating subject and among his graduates are some very talented girls. Send for the booklet below if you are unduly shy or inclined to stutter for it offers helpful prescriptions.

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D. M. D.

CASE U-482: Paul Stadelman is a very talented ventriloquist.

Some mutual friends introduced us so we had an interesting discussion for half an hour.

* * *

It was doubly pleasant to me, too, for I had seen his picture in the Chicago newspaper a short time earlier.

He was surrounded by a graduating class of about a dozen students of his official course that he conducts on ventriloquism.

Among his students were a few very attractive looking girls.

"I was interested in the fact that girls take your course on ventriloquism," I began.

"Yes, and they are often very adept at it," Paul replied.

Then he informed me that such gifts utilize their skill both for entertaining groups of people, but also in many commercial roles.

For female ventriloquists are ideal in toy shops and the children's section of our large department stores.

"Dr. Crane," Paul added, "I have followed your newspaper column with great interest ever since I saw an article in which you reported that my specialty is a great aid in treating chronic stuttering.

"What you said is certainly very true. I have had several hopeless stuttering cases that responded quickly when they took the first few lessons in ventriloquy.

"As you had mentioned, they do NOT stutter when they turn their attention upon their dummy.

Whereupon he intentionally made his dummy stutter! It was the first time I had ever heard such a demonstration.

"He was of foreign birth sp had grown somewhat shy and inclined to stutter, partly because of self-consciousness about ordinary conversation.

"For he would say 'dese' and 'dose' for the pronouns 'these' and 'those.'

"So he asked me if I would coach him. Well, after the first two lessons he was delighted and insisted that I outline a 10-lesson course.

"For he said his wife had commented that his dummy used correct English."

Then Paul quoted the dentist's enthusiastic report:

"Mr. Stadelman," the dentist exulted, "my dummy never says 'dese' and 'dose' but he always uses 'these' and 'those.' So my wife tells me I better take some lessons in English from my dummy, Ha."

Paul Stadelman also informed me about a 15-year-old boy who was almost tongue-tied in a crowd due to shyness.

"But after a few lessons in ventriloquism," he added, "this boy lost his timidity, for he diverted attention from himself to his dummy.

"And he also became the life of the party by means of his clever manipulation of the dummy."

If you wish to develop a very helpful hobby that has splendid social as well as business by-products, study ventriloquism.

And send for my booklet "How to Stop Stuttering," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20 cents.

Dr. King Says Time Won't Solve Problem

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., says the argument that time will solve the civil rights problem is a myth.

"One of the myths that we must dispel if we are to reach racial equality is that if we wait 100 or 200 years everything will solve itself." King said Sunday night in a speech sponsored by the Harvard-Radcliffe Young Democrats Club.

"Time is neutral," said King, winner of the 1964 Nobel Peace Prize. "Human progress never rolls in on the wave inevitably. We must get out and work and help get rid of this myth of time."

World Wheat Falls Behind in Earning

WASHINGTON (AP)—Wheat is falling far behind a year ago in earning in world trade markets the dollars that are needed to help stabilize this country's balance of exchange problem.

U. S. wheat exports during the last half of 1963 totaled 166 million bushels and flour the equivalent of 12.3 million bushels of wheat. In the like period of 1964, wheat exports for dollars had dropped to 51 million bushels and flour to the equivalent of 9.9 million bushels of wheat.

Other big wheat - exporting countries are getting a large share of dollars markets, largely because of lower prices.

Film Actor Hicks Dies at Age of 45

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Movie character actor Bert Hicks, father of former starlet Dolores Hart and brother-in-law of the late Mario Lanza, is dead at 45.

Hicks, who played parts in "Forever Amber" and "Gone with the Wind," met Lanza while both were serving in the Armed Forces. He helped Lanza launch a career as a singer.

Lanza's wife, Betty, sister of Hicks, died in 1960, six months after Lanza's death in October 1959. Hicks' daughter Dolores abandoned acting in 1963 to enter a Roman Catholic convent.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, M.D.,Ph.D.

Paul Stadelman is one of the world's cleverest ventriloquists. He recently started teaching a course on this fascinating subject and among his graduates are some very talented girls. Send for the booklet below if you are unduly shy or inclined to stutter for it offers helpful prescriptions.

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D. M. D.

CASE U-482: Paul Stadelman is a very talented ventriloquist.

Some mutual friends introduced us so we had an interesting discussion for half an hour.

* * *

It was doubly pleasant to me, too, for I had seen his picture in the Chicago newspaper a short time earlier.

He was surrounded by a graduating class of about a dozen students of his official course that he conducts on ventriloquism.

Among his students were a few very attractive looking girls.

"I was interested in the fact that girls take your course on ventriloquism," I began.

"Yes, and they are often very adept at it," Paul replied.

Then he informed me that such gifts utilize their skill both for entertaining groups of people, but also in many commercial roles.

For female ventriloquists are ideal in toy shops and the children's section of our large department stores.

"Dr. Crane," Paul added, "I have followed your newspaper column with great interest ever since I saw an article in which you reported that my specialty is a great aid in treating chronic stuttering.

"As you had mentioned, they do NOT stutter when they turn their attention upon their dummy.

Whereupon he intentionally made his dummy stutter! It was the first time I had ever heard such a demonstration.

More Nuclear Advances Seen By Red China

By K.C. THALER

LONDON (UPI)—Red China, which last fall achieved her first nuclear explosion, is believed to have made unexpected progress in other fields or modern weaponry.

Latest indications to reach the West suggest that Peking is building modern type fighter planes and, even more surprising surface-to-air rockets.

Some of these rockets are believed to have brought down two unmanned reconnaissance planes flying over southern China. Peking claimed that two remote - controlled, American made reconnaissance planes were downed recently.

Red Chinese Deputy Premier Marshal Ho Lung boasted in Peking that Red China has "greatly strengthened the weaponry and equipment" of her army. He claimed that Peking above all has "a comparatively powerful air force."

Whatever the justification of these claims, intelligence reports seeping through the Bamboo Curtain suggest that something is afoot in the modern weapons sector of Communist China.

Experts concede they have been surprised by the technical advance displayed by Peking's first nuclear explosion. Since then some Western experts have predicted that Peking may have nuclear weapons operational within two to five years, instead of the previous estimate of five to en years.

Astronaut Grissom To Get Commission

MERCEDES, Tex. (AP) — Astronaut Virgil I. Grissom, a major in the U.S. Air Force, soon will get a commission in the Confederate Air Force, and a colonel's at that.

Col. L. P. Nolen, deputy commander of the Confederate Air Force, said Sunday that Grissom will visit Mercedes to pick up his commission in the CAF, now limited to 200 officers and a seven-man staff.

Grissom, who piloted the Mercury capsule on its orbit of the earth in 1961, will be the only astronaut in the Confederate force, a fly-for-fun club.

Navy Is Aided By All-Weather Satellite System

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy disclosed Tuesday that some of its fleet units can now automatically and precisely pinpoint their position at sea from data beamed by an all-weather satellite system.

The fleet units utilizing the system were not named but it was stated that Polaris submarines are participating in the program. Such vessels need frequent, accurate fixes of their position to launch missiles at assigned targets.

The announcement was the first official word that the Transit navigation satellite is now operational. The system is presently made up of three 110- to 160-pound satellites, the last launched in December.

No information was provided on the altitude of the satellites but it was revealed they work like this: The satellites send signals to ships equipped with receiving and computing systems. The signal activates the receiving equipment as the satellite approaches. The receiver computes the information, and automatically types the ship's position for the navigator.

The Navy said the system "offers reliability and accuracy previously lacking." Conventional navigation by the stars requires clear skies and under best conditions is consistently accurate only to within half a mile.

The announcement said the system has been in operation since July. Each satellite is estimated to have a space life of about two years.

CONGO VICTIMS LISTED

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — At least 95 Catholic missionaries have been killed in the Congo since the country became independent June 30, 1960, the missionary news service Fides reported.

Fides said the victims included one bishop, 59 priests, 13 brothers and 22 nuns.

More Nuclear Advances Seen By Red China

By K.C. THALER

LONDON (UPI)—Red China, which last fall achieved her first nuclear explosion, is believed to have made unexpected progress in other fields or modern weaponry.

Latest indications to reach the West suggest that Peking is building modern type fighter planes and, even more surprising surface-to-air rockets.

Some of these rockets are believed to have brought down two unmanned reconnaissance planes flying over southern China. Peking claimed that two remote - controlled, American made reconnaissance planes were downed recently.

Red Chinese Deputy Premier Marshal Ho Lung boasted in Peking that Red China has "greatly strengthened the weaponry and equipment" of her army. He claimed that Peking above all has "a comparatively powerful air force."

Whatever the justification of these claims, intelligence reports seeping through the Bamboo Curtain suggest that something is afoot in the modern weapons sector of Communist China.

Experts concede they have been surprised by the technical advance displayed by Peking's first nuclear explosion. Since then some Western experts have predicted that Peking may have nuclear weapons operational within two to five years, instead of the previous estimate of five to en years.

Astronaut Grissom To Get Commission

MERCEDES, Tex. (AP) — Astronaut Virgil I. Grissom, a major in the U.S. Air Force, soon will get a commission in the Confederate Air Force, and a colonel's at that.

Col. L. P. Nolen, deputy commander of the Confederate Air Force, said Sunday that Grissom will visit Mercedes to pick up his commission in the CAF, now limited to 200 officers and a seven-man staff.

Grissom, who piloted the Mercury capsule on its orbit of the earth in 1961, will be the only astronaut in the Confederate force, a fly-for-fun club.

Navy Is Aided By All-Weather Satellite System

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy disclosed Tuesday that some of its fleet units can now automatically and precisely pinpoint their position at sea from data beamed by an all-weather satellite system.

The fleet units utilizing the system were not named but it was stated that Polaris submarines are participating in the program. Such vessels need frequent, accurate fixes of their position to launch missiles at assigned targets.

The announcement was the first official word that the Transit navigation satellite is now operational. The system is presently made up of three 110- to 160-pound satellites, the last launched in December.

No information was provided on the altitude of the satellites but it was revealed they work like this: The satellites send signals to ships equipped with receiving and computing systems. The signal activates the receiving equipment as the satellite approaches. The receiver computes the information, and automatically types the ship's position for the navigator.

The Navy said the system "offers reliability and accuracy previously lacking." Conventional navigation by the stars requires clear skies and under best conditions is consistently accurate only to within half a mile.

The announcement said the system has been in operation since July. Each satellite is estimated to have a space life of about two years.

CONGO VICTIMS LISTED

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — At least 95 Catholic missionaries have been killed in the Congo since the country became independent June 30, 1960, the missionary news service Fides reported.

Fides said the victims included one bishop, 59 priests, 13 brothers and 22 nuns.

Nuclear Rocket Engine Clears Major Hurdle

By RALPH DIGHTON

JACKASS FLATS, Nev. (AP) — This nation's nuclear rocket engine program has leaped an important safety hurdle. Scientists blew one up in a deliberate accident with no more damage or radioactivity than they expected.

Still to be learned, however, is what would happen if such an engine fell into the sea in a launching mishap.

Salz water increases the number of fissions or atom-splittings per second in a nuclear-fueled reactor, and thus multiplies the explosive effect.

Tuesday's test resulted in a spectacular explosion. There was a 15-foot-diameter fireball, a great cloud of dust, and a multicolored shower of twinkling, radioactive sparks.

Telephone poles 50 feet away were blown high in the air, and set afire by the 8,000-degree Fahrenheit heat generated by the blast.

The flatcar on which the 12-foot-high, trashcan-shaped engine rested was crushed as if by a giant foot.

Dr. Keith Boyer, director of the test for the Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory, said a first look at radiation monitors indicated humans would have been completely safe 1½ miles away.

"People would be in much greater danger," he said, "if they were that close to a non-nuclear explosion of conventional fuel in one of the Saturn rockets being developed to take men to the moon."

Twelve miles away, at the boundary of the Atomic Energy Commission's atomic testing grounds 90 miles northwest of Las Vegas, the white cloud of radioactive particles blown southwest by the wind passed over the little community of Lathrop Wells.

Planes flying through the radioactive cloud recorded the radiation at a rate of 2 milliroentagens per hour. It took the cloud 20 minutes to pass over, and an AEC spokesman said anyone in the evacuated town would have absorbed a dose of less than 1 milliroentgen. He said a safe limit has been established as 500 milliroentgens per year.

The reactor destroyed was a prototype, called Kiwi after the flightless New Zealand bird, of engines being developed to power manned flights to the moon and the planets.

Dr. Percival King, safety director for the test, said the Kiwi was deliberately rigged to produce a worse accident than could happen to a nuclear engine if it fell to the ground during a rocket launching.

Explosive yield of the actual blast was equivalent to that resulting to the detonation of about 100 pounds of TNT. Normally, nuclear detonations are measured in the equivalent of thousands of tons of TNT.

An AEC spokesman said the test did not violate the nuclear test-ban treaty for two reasons: the destruction did not actually constiute a detonation, and it was a peaceful use of atomic energy.

Woman Loses Fight Against Repossession

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Josephine Genit, a real estate saleswoman, ran to her car when she saw two men climb into it.

One of the men yelled, "I got it, I got it."

"We'll see about that," said Mrs. Genit, as she jumped onto the hood.

That was 4:30 p.m. Monday, and on the hood Mrs. Genit remained all night — unresponsive to the men's pleas that they were repossessors legally recovering her car because she was three payments behind.

Neighbors came to her assistance with a mattress, blankets, a hot water bottle and food.

Mrs. Genit said: "The conduct of the repossessors was gentlemanly. The hood was nice and warm. They started the engine up every once in a while."

At 5:30 a.m. Tuesday they started it up — and drove it away, slowly, with the blanket-swathed Mrs. Genet still aboard, clinging to the windshield wipers.

Three miles later they were at their parking lot and Mrs. Genit, who admitted she was delinquent in payments, became a pedestrian.

Former Chain Smoker Fights Cigarettes

By FRANCIS STILLEY

NEW YORK (AP) — As a longtime chain-smoker who finally kicked the habit, Emerson Foote has emerged as perhaps the nation's foremost private citizen trying to get others to give up cigarettes.

Foote personally gave up a lot more than cigarettes in taking on his new endeavor.

He gave up a six-figure annual salary as head of the country's second largest advertising firm. He did it to avoid "conflict of interest" between his view that cigarette smoking is harmful and the company's profits from tobacco accounts.

Foote, 58, now is chairman of the National Interagency Council on Smoking and Health. He has been active in the health field for more than 20 years.

"My saying I wanted to speak out as a private citizen and then going into the council is sort of incongruous," he admitted Tuesday night.

"But at the time I left advertising, I had no idea of joining any council," he said. "That came later."

If you are invited to the Foote residence, he said, you will find plenty of ash trays and will be told to smoke if you wish.

"I am not carrying this thing out on an individual basis," he said. "I am seeking either to have the cigarette companies give up advertising on their own or get legislation passed to make them stop."

He said he was disappointed with the effect his and other efforts, including the government reports, have had on curtailing smoking.

"Up to this point, I don't think any of us have influenced very many people," he said. "As long as you have $200 million a year in cigarette advertising, it will be difficult."

He said he considers smoking a hazard to a majority of the population, while whisky has a harmful effect only on a small minority.

Foote predicted that if advertising were cut and antismoking educational programs pushed, the number of cigarette smokers would be reduced by 75 per cent in the next seven years.

Last September he resigned from the McCann-Erickson advertising agency, saying he wanted to be free to speak out against cigarettes. The company, second only to the J. Walter Thompson agency in advertising billings, handles no domestic cigarette advertising but has overseas accounts.

He fully agrees with the U.S. surgeon general's report linking cigarette smoking and lung cancer.

Back in 1948, he stunned the advertising world when, as president of the Foote, Cone & Belding advertising agency, he resigned the $12-million Lucky Strike account in a disagreement over advertising policy.

About the same time, he gave up cigarettes after a 30-year period as a chain smoker.

Despite the tobacco industry's contention that any harmful effects of tobacco smoking haven't been proved conclusively, Foote asserted in a Washington speech Monday that "cigarettes kill people — and they kill people in very large numbers."

"There are, of course, many hazards in life but in peacetime there is nothing else like this hazard — not automobiles or anything else anyone can think of," Foote said.

French Fashion Gets Last Word In New York

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
AP Fashion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The French got in the last word at the closing program of spring style previews for fashion writers here.

It was the American designer series, but the French had a hand here in each of them one way or another, featuring ye-ye," "oui-oui" and "oh boy."

The young ye-yes, the French counterpart of the English modes, had stirred the Arkin fashion house to mass produce their kind of crazy, mixed-up fashions.

The ye-ye dresses have very short and flouncy skirts, sexy waistlines, scooped out necklines, droopy ruffles and laces, and a combination of unorthodox fabric patterns.

Although the Christian Dior collection originated at its New York house with the American market in mind, it was one of the late Dior's proteges, Gaston Berthelot, a mere year out of Paris, who created it.

Old-fashioned demureness was his fresh approach, in contract to the non-stop necklines and see-through bodices which came out of the French house last year. Purely Puritan were his gray and white wool checks with crisp white collars, and utterly prissy was a black and white middy dress. Suits were spare, chic and young, with hip-length jackets over swingy skirts.

This year, instead of glittering and clanking in jewel-embroidered and crystal-fringed dresses as in the past, the rich young Dior customer will wear shimmering satin suits, fluttering petals of chiffon, or quilted white velvet or linen with just a twinkling of opulence.

It was "oui-oui" too for Pauline Trigere, a daughter of France and now America's pride. Typical of a Parisienne's talent for originality were here double-dresses and suits.

Models flipped off skirts and peeled away jackets, or shrugged off V-necked jumper dresses and still had enough and the right kind of clothes on them to go to a cocktail party. Usually the hidden dresses were soft and billowing chiffons or silks in brilliant colors with cowl necklines or giant scarves.

Other fresh ideas included yards and yards of fabric attached at one shoulder which when draped over various patterns of a printed dress, changed its appearance.

There were narrow capes, bellless and pinch-waisted dresses, skirts that flared at the hem because of so-called dovetail insets, and big, bold designs on elegant silk night life costumes.

Still another French import, designer Jacques Tiffeau, started the climb of already short skirts when he introduced his collection at the buyers market last fall.

Tiffeau's audience then was shocked. A lot of hemlines have hiked upwards since, and Tuesday's audience hardly batted an eye at his thigh-high shifts worn with thongs that crisscrosses up the legs to the knees.

But it was an "oh boy" reaction that Tiffeau got from the men from such fashions as: a porthole cut in a jumpsuit to frame the model's navel; necklines low, wide and handsome; and a gown slit so high on one side that it exposed much of the lady's hip.

Guitars Make Prison Life More Enjoyable

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Now that he can play his two guitars to his heart's content, Robert D. Peterson is expected to enjoy prison life a little more.

While he was confined in Clinton Prison, Dannemora, prison officials took away Peterson's guitars, saying that could not tolerate unrestricted use of the instruments. It was suggested, however, that Green Haven Prison had a musical program and that he could apply for a transfer.

Peterson had brought suit to force return of the guitars. The state now is expected to make a motion to dismiss it and Peterson is expected to give his consent.

He has two years left for jail cell strumming. The two remain out of a five-year sentence he received on conviction for larceny in New York City.

Former Chain Smoker Fights Cigarettes

By FRANCIS STILLEY

NEW YORK (AP) — As a longtime chain-smoker who finally kicked the habit, Emerson Foote has emerged as perhaps the nation's foremost private citizen trying to get others to give up cigarettes.

Foote personally gave up a lot more than cigarettes in taking on his new endeavor.

He gave up a six-figure annual salary as head of the country's second largest advertising firm. He did it to avoid "conflict of interest" between his view that cigarette smoking is harmful and the company's profits from tobacco accounts.

Foote, 58, now is chairman of the National Interagency Council on Smoking and Health. He has been active in the health field for more than 20 years.

"My saying I wanted to speak out as a private citizen and then going into the council is sort of incongruous," he admitted Tuesday night.

"But at the time I left advertising, I had no idea of joining any council," he said. "That came later."

If you are invited to the Foote residence, he said, you will find plenty of ash trays and will be told to smoke if you wish.

"I am not carrying this thing out on an individual basis," he said. "I am seeking either to have the cigarette companies give up advertising on their own or get legislation passed to make them stop."

He said he was disappointed with the effect his and other efforts, including the government reports, have had on curtailing smoking.

"Up to this point, I don't think any of us have influenced very many people," he said. "As long as you have $200 million a year in cigarette advertising, it will be difficult."

He said he considers smoking a hazard to a majority of the population, while whisky has a harmful effect only on a small minority.

Foote predicted that if advertising were cut and antismoking educational programs pushed, the number of cigarette smokers would be reduced by 75 per cent in the next seven years.

Last September he resigned from the McCann-Erickson advertising agency, saying he wanted to be free to speak out against cigarettes. The company, second only to the J. Walter Thompson agency in advertising billings, handles no domestic cigarette advertising but has overseas accounts.

He fully agrees with the U.S. surgeon general's report linking cigarette smoking and lung cancer.

Back in 1948, he stunned the advertising world when, as president of the Foote, Cone & Belding advertising agency, he resigned the $12-million Lucky Strike account in a disagreement over advertising policy.

About the same time, he gave up cigarettes after a 30-year period as a chain smoker.

Despite the tobacco industry's contention that any harmful effects of tobacco smoking haven't been proved conclusively, Foote asserted in a Washington speech Monday that "cigarettes kill people — and they kill people in very large numbers."

"There are, of course, many hazards in life but in peacetime there is nothing else like this hazard — not automobiles or anything else anyone can think of," Foote said.

DUST AND FEATHERS IN THE HOME

Asthmatic attacks usually are caused by allergy to foods, furs, feathers, dust, or pollen. Now and then wheezing is triggered by a bacterial infection of the nose, throat, or sinuses. Tension also is a factor as nervousness aggravates the condition.

The victim is lucky when the causative allergen can be eliminated. Those sensitive to animal dander are helped by avoiding cats, dogs, and horses. But this cannot be accomplished by keeping the pet in the basement or yard. Dr. Richard D. and Dr. Joseph R. Wiseman, New York City allergists, make it a point to visit the home of their patients, especially when no improvement is noted. In this way, more can be learned in five minutes than in one hour of questioning at the office.

One of their male patients was sensitive to feathers. A house call was made and the physicians found the patient's wife kept more than 50 canaries in a room adjoining the bedroom. The husband said nothing about his aviary during the office consultation.

The bedroom is investigated first. The mother of one of their dust-sensitive patients was certain she had followed instructions on dust precautions by using nonallergenic pillows and mattress. But during the day, the child sat in an overstuffed chair in a room with a wool carpet, propped up with a feather pillow, and played with stuffed animals. All of these objects contained allergens that kept the child's bronchial asthma alive.

These allergists inspect the entire house, including the cellar. Dampness encourages the growth of molds. The cement floor creates dust that can be overcome by painting with a sealer or rubber based paint. The conglomeration of odds and ends often is forgotten and the results are amazing when these dust collectors are thrown out.

Spraying will hold down lint but blankets, furniture, felt rug pads, and wool carpeting should be replaced with nonallergic items such as foam rubber and synthetics.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self - addressedenvelope accompanies request.

CRIES FOR NOTHING

Mrs. S. writes: I'm 35 years old and happily married. More and more frequently of late I feel like sitting down and crying a bushelful of tears. This worries me. Why do I want to cry when I have nothing to cry about?

REPLY

Many people go into a depressed state without realizing what is happening. A tranquilizer may help.

Commissioner Refuses to Quit Her Post

By JOHN P. MCCATHERIN

AUGUSTA, Maine (AP) — For 18 years Miss Marion E. Martin has been stirring things up as Maine's commissioner of labor.

She will be 65 this week and eligible to retire on a state pension.

But she isn't going to quit now, not until retirement becomes mandatory in five more years.

She said she has seen poeple getting ready to retire, and "they just want to sit back and coast."

"I still want to upset things," she said. "I want to make improvements — I'd be no good to myself if I didn't."

She was the first woman ever appointed to a major position in the Maine state service. She had been vice chairman of the Republican National Committee, a founder of the National Federation of Women's Republican Clubs, and prominent in international labor and safety organizations.

Miss Martin has upset a lot of things since she was appointed by Gov. Horace Hildreth in 1947.

The department was reorganized and needed legislation was enacted, including a minimum wage law.

The arbitration and conciliation law has been revised and a mediation panel established. A right of appeal to the courts on department decision was won.

"I was shocked at the dictatorial power we had here and I wanted to live up to my philosophy of government: that is that the people have rights," Miss Martin said.

So the "dictatorial power" went and new regulations came and were scrupulously safeguarded by Miss Martin, state house observers have noted. Her reputation as iron-fisted director of her department's activities, however, is disguised by personal charm.

Asked about qualifications needed as commissioner, Miss Martin replied: "I was glad I had served in the legislature and had been in politics. I was glad I had started out to be a research chemist. I was delighted I had studied law and I'd majored in economics."

"There is no education that I've had that has not been called into play in this job."

Her education at Wellesley College, University of Maine, and Yale and Northwsetern University law schools was supplemented by two terms each in the Maine House and Senate, service as a Republican national committeewoman and assistant chairman for 10 years of the Republican National Committee.

She also has served as chairman of the Advisory Committee on Occupational Health to the U.S. surgeon general. She was appointed a government advisor to the International Labor Organization meeting in Geneva, Switzerland, and served on many more boards.

"I don't think women in office are quite the curiosity that they were when I was first elected to the legislature," she said, "because in those days if our petticoats showed, it made the headlines."

REVENUES INCREASE—Property taxes account for the largest chunk of revenues for state and local governments. In a 10-year period, total revenues increased from $27.1 billion to $61.9 billion.

Commissioner Refuses to Quit Her Post

By JOHN P. MCCATHERIN

AUGUSTA, Maine (AP) — For 18 years Miss Marion E. Martin has been stirring things up as Maine's commissioner of labor.

She will be 65 this week and eligible to retire on a state pension.

But she isn't going to quit now, not until retirement becomes mandatory in five more years.

She said she has seen poeple getting ready to retire, and "they just want to sit back and coast."

"I still want to upset things," she said. "I want to make improvements — I'd be no good to myself if I didn't."

She was the first woman ever appointed to a major position in the Maine state service. She had been vice chairman of the Republican National Committee, a founder of the National Federation of Women's Republican Clubs, and prominent in international labor and safety organizations.

Miss Martin has upset a lot of things since she was appointed by Gov. Horace Hildreth in 1947.

The department was reorganized and needed legislation was enacted, including a minimum wage law.

The arbitration and conciliation law has been revised and a mediation panel established. A right of appeal to the courts on department decision was won.

"I was shocked at the dictatorial power we had here and I wanted to live up to my philosophy of government: that is that the people have rights," Miss Martin said.

So the "dictatorial power" went and new regulations came and were scrupulously safeguarded by Miss Martin, state house observers have noted. Her reputation as iron-fisted director of her department's activities, however, is disguised by personal charm.

Asked about qualifications needed as commissioner, Miss Martin replied: "I was glad I had served in the legislature and had been in politics. I was glad I had started out to be a research chemist. I was delighted I had studied law and I'd majored in economics."

"There is no education that I've had that has not been called into play in this job."

Her education at Wellesley College, University of Maine, and Yale and Northwsetern University law schools was supplemented by two terms each in the Maine House and Senate, service as a Republican national committeewoman and assistant chairman for 10 years of the Republican National Committee.

She also has served as chairman of the Advisory Committee on Occupational Health to the U.S. surgeon general. She was appointed a government advisor to the International Labor Organization meeting in Geneva, Switzerland, and served on many more boards.

"I don't think women in office are quite the curiosity that they were when I was first elected to the legislature," she said, "because in those days if our petticoats showed, it made the headlines."

Its forest industries provide 58 per cent of all of Oregon's manufacturing employment.

Labor Strife Is Affecting Prosperity

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — Labor strife — active, pending or feared — is already rewriting some of the statistics of prosperity. It seems sure to scramble them still more as the year progresses.

A dock strike along the entire Atlantic and Gulf coasts will cripple shipping first and then other forms of transport bringing goods to the ports. But if the strike drags on it would upset some manufacturing schedules.

And by curbing exports a dock strike is tied in with such seemingly far afield problems as the deficit in the U.S. balance of payments. This in turn is tied closely to the nation's gold reserves and what to do about them. The United States is plugging for more exports this year, not fewer.

A railroad strike has threatened off and on for months. It would snag the nation's economy in quick order.

Talk of a possible steel strike is giving the economy a glow right now, because of a scramble of ordering to buildup inventories. But this threatens a letdown in the economy later while the stockpiles are used. Talk of what the steel unions will ask also is back of much of the fear of future inflation, through rising production costs, which has kept the bulls active in the stock market.

And the auto strikes of last fall are still more than just a memory. They caused industrial output, retail sales, consumer credit, to dip at the time. Today the aftermath is pushing all three aspects of the economy higher than it might otherwise be just now. The auto companies and their suppliers are pushing harder than normally to catch up in production and seek to recapture postponed sales. Whether this also foretells a letdown later is yet to be seen.

Labor also is making news in less dramatic ways. Wage increases going into effect this year under contracts previously written will average 7.3 cents an hour, compared with 7.1 cents a year ago.

This has two effects: It adds materially to rising personal incomes, and this in turn will spark retail sales, consumer credit, home buying and all the other fruits of affluence. Rising wages influence management decisions on output schedules, price policies, and buying more machinery to cut labor time.

The range by industries is 17 cents in construction to 4.8 cents in apparel and other finished textiles.

The deferred wage increases now going into effect is expected to have considerable influence on this year's wage negotiations. Union leaders tend to consider them a base or floor to possible settlements.

Revised Laws Is Urged for Aged Pensions

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — Spokesmen for senior citizens said Tuesday there are hundreds of old couples living together in Miami Beach without benefit of wedlock.

But it's not a matter of living in sin in the autumn of their lives but instead a platonic and pension arrangement to share the cost of living, the spokesmen hastened to add.

"When I see them holding hands in church, I don't feel there is any sin," the Rev. Benjamin Schumacher, president of the Florida Council for the Aging, said.

"I see no moral or religious problem," Schumacher added. "These people are 75 or 80 years old. It's strictly platonic."

The oldsters live together out of wedlock because to remarry would cost them too dearly in pension dollars.

This soon may be changed. Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Fla., introduced a bill in Congress Tuesday to permit widows over 62 to remarry without losing their pension.

Miami Beach Mayor Melvin Richard also has gone to bat for the old folks, seeking a decision from Social Security Commissioner Robert M. Ball on whether the law can be changed to permit remarrying without a pension cut.

First U.S. naval vessel to circumnavigate the earth was the USS Vincennes, which completed the 46-month voyage in June of 1830.
